Nation Faces $1.5 Billion Deficit in '49, Truman Says

Republicans Scoff At 'Scrambled' Figures, Predict $6 Billion Surplus

By The Associated Press

President Truman said yesterday the country faces a $1,500,000,000 deficit and a near-record $42,200,000,000 of peacetime spending with "deficit financing" looming indefinitely ahead.

In a hotly worded midyear review of the Nation's budget, Mr. Truman said new billions for defense, plus the stop-Communism foreign-aid program, have shot spending up more than six billion dollars above last year's 36-billion-dollar total.

The President blamed "ill-timed" tax reduction, passed by a Republican-controlled Congress over his veto, for running the Government into red ink in the fiscal year ending next June 30.

Republicans instantly loosed a volley of criticism.

Millikin Sees Debt Cut

Senator Millikin (R., Colo.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, got out a statement saying warmly that there is going to be a surplus, not a deficit. He said:

"Barring further emergencies and looking at it any way we want to . . . there is not going to be a deficit; there is going to be a surplus; there will be opportunity for debt reduction and possibly for additional tax reduction."

Millikin called Mr. Truman's budget review "another of the weird distortions which are coming from the White House while its occupant is a nervous candidate for reelection."

Sees Six-Billion Surplus

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, charged that "juggled" and "scrambled" figures in the White House report conceal a surplus "that will not be less than six billion dollars."

Bridges called Mr. Truman's budget review "just another campaign speech. He has estimated expenditures too high and revenues too low."

Senator Wiley (R., Wisc.) said, "This is another of the President's unsound Black Monday philosophies."

Mr. Truman in his analysis of the Government's finances said outlays during this fiscal year will be $2,500,000,000 higher than he reported to Congress in January.

But Senator Bridges charged that the President "padded" the

Babe Stages Rally; Rests Well, Leaves Bed 20 Minutes

New York, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—The first real improvement in Babe Ruth's condition was reported today by Memorial Hospital attendants.

A midafternoon bulletin on the condition of the stricken baseball idol said:

"Babe Ruth is resting quietly and is taking more nourishment. He got out of bed for 20 minutes this morning."

The hospital said that the Babe had spent his most restful night of the last 10. Ruth's temperature and pulse were lower this morning, officials said.

Young well-wishers, obviously cheered by their hero's improvement, were absent from the steps in front of the hospital for the first time in a week.

Ruth still was on the critical list at last reports.

Fiery Blast In Reno Kills 5, Hurts 137

Reno, Nev., Aug. 15 (AP).—Five men—possibly six—died today and more than 137 persons were injured in a fire and explosion in the old business district of Reno.

An eye-witness said the blast that followed the fire was so heavy that it blew a slot machine across the street. Panic among spectators caused many of the injuries.

Coroner Lawrence Layman said the identified dead were:

Frank Hobson, fire chief of nearby Sparks; Earl B. Platt, a Reno fireman, and Bill Byron, a laborer.

Another victim was identified tentatively as Glenn Davis, Reno fireman. The fifth was unidentified. Layman said a sixth body may still be in the debris.

The mysterious blast showered hundreds of spectators with broken glass. Many were cut critically in the backs and necks as they turned to flee in panic.

The spectators had gathered to watch the fire in a one-story commercial building when the unexplained explosion occurred. The front of the building was blown out. The fire then spread to the Santa Fe Hotel on one side and the Mandarin Cafe on the other. Both were damaged.

The Washoe Hospital counted 107 injured, of whom "12 or 15"

Caution Urged In Curbing Of Inflation

GOP Senator Advises Truman to Go Slowly In Putting on Brakes

By The Associated Press

A Republican Senator yesterday urged that President Truman apply anti-inflation brakes slowly lest the country skid into a "catastrophic mess" with widespread unemployment.

This word came from Senator Flanders (R., Vt.), former president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, who has supported some of Mr. Truman's economic proposals. It came as the President was expected to sign into law a GOP measure allowing him to tighten consumer credits and bank reserve controls—only a small part of the controls Mr. Truman demanded of the special session of Congress.

Flanders told a reporter that if attempts are made to jam on monetary and credit controls too rapidly, this "could cut down employment and production and may well result in starting a depression."

Fears Depression

"Slowly and regretfully I have come to the conclusion that inflation cannot be handled entirely by Government," he said. "If we try to do that, there is a real danger of rolling into a catastrophic mess."

Flanders said he agrees that "it is possible to cure inflation by generating unemployment but these methods have no appeal for me."

"There is no patent medicine cure," he said. "We can taper off without jumping into a depression, but that rests chiefly with business, organized labor and consumers."

Startles Colleagues

Flanders startled many of his GOP colleagues in Congress last year by proposing a trial of Government rationing and price controls on meats.

"But this is no time to try that trick," he said yesterday.

Flanders said the recent Treasury decision to raise interest rates slightly on short-term Government securities is a "wise and moderate move." But the Senator said the President and his advisers also have other drastic powers that they might use to tighten all credits.

Fierce Firing Rends Truce In Jerusalem

Jewish and Arabian Forces Blame Each Other; Tribesmen Join Stern Gang

Jerusalem, Aug. 15 (AP).—The biggest outbreak of shooting since the second truce began four weeks ago raged today in Jerusalem.

The detonation of mortar shells and heavy machinegun fire awoke inhabitants of Jerusalem around dawn as the battle developed.

The Jews, listing five casualties, charged the Arabs were responsible.

(In Amman, a spokesman for the Trans-Jordan Arab Legion said two Arabs were killed in a three-hour attack by Jews against legion forward posts in Jerusalem. He said the attack was launched after United Nations observers notified the legion last night Israel had accepted Count Folke Bernadotte's order that fire not be returned.)

Self-Defense Claimed

Dr. Bernard Joseph, Israel military governor of Jerusalem, said the Jews reserved the right to self-defense. At the same time he said his command had reissued instructions not to open fire and not to reply to enemy sniping in order to enable United Nations observers to establish responsibility for violations.

[At Stockholm, the latest U. N. reports forwarded to Count Folke Bernadotte said responsibility still had not been fixed for the recent blasting of the Latrun pumping station on the Jerusalem water pipe line.]

At a news conference today, a 27-year-old Arab village chieftain, Sheik Yussuf Abu Gosh, said he commanded a group of 70 Arab fighters within the Jewish "Fighters for the Freedom of Israel," the so-called Stern gang.

The sheik said he was convinced "the British were in Palestine for their own ends and not to promote peace among the people or to do constructive work."

Willing to Talk Peace

"Since the Stern group were the only ones fighting the British, I thought I should join them," he said. "I am interpreting the feeling of 50,000 Arabs of my district. They all are willing to discuss peace with the Jews. I believe both peoples can rebuild this country together for the benefit of both."

(In Tel Aviv, it was announced that a group of Circassians, Mohammedans of the Galilee area of Palestine, will join the Israeli army tomorrow. They are the second non-Jewish group to join the Israeli army. A Bedouin tribe in Galilee has been fighting with the Israeli army since the beginning of Palestine hostilities.)

$104,941,449 Aid Set for Europe, China in 1 Week

By The Associated Press

The Economic Cooperation Administration yesterday announced approval of $104,941,449 in recovery shipments to Europe and China, one of the largest weekly totals since the start of the Marshall Plan.

The list of United States-financed shipments included some industrial equipment and materials such as bulldozers, steel plates and automotive equipment—emphasizing ECA's growing trend toward "recovery" items instead of food.

However, the heaviest shipments were scheduled for Bizone Germany and these, totaling $27,239,216, were mainly foodstuffs.

Ten other countries shared in the week's grants, which brought the total approved shipments to date to $1,106,927,440. They were:

Austria, $2,372,047; Denmark, $3,783,098; France, $1,357,436; French zone of Germany, $1,150,000; Greece, $8,008,163; Italy, $9,388,008; Belgium, $1,419,938; Netherlands, $10,152,000; Norway, $4,867,155; Trieste, $563,300; China, $3,805,730.

Freedom of No Religion?

Churches Challenge FCC Rule Giving Atheists Radio Time

The Federal Communications Commission has been asked by the Religious Radio Association to clarify its stand on atheist radio programs.

Edward J. Hefferon, president of the religious radio group, which includes members of the three major faiths, has written the FCC expressing fear that broadcasters might construe a 1946 decision in a way detrimental to religious programs.

The 1946 case, Heffron pointed out, concerned Robert Harold Scott, who had complained he had been refused radio time to reply to programs which were either directly or indirectly "arguments against atheism."

By indirect arguments, Scott explained, he meant church services, Bible readings and other kinds of religious programs.

While the FCC decided that every idea does not rise to the dignity of a public controversy, thus warranting a right of reply to attacks, and not every organization is per se entitled to time on the air, it also declared:

"But an organization or idea may be projected into the realm of controversy by virtue of being attacked. The holders of a belief should not be denied the right to answer attacks upon them or their belief solely because they are few in number."

The members of the Religious Radio Association, Heffron said, fear that broadcasters might construe the decision to mean that they must provide atheists opportunity to reply every time they broadcast church and other religious programs. This, the letter points out, might tend to keep such programs at a minimum or make broadcasters avoid them completely if possible.

To Incite People

German Reds Use Blockade As Threat

Berlin, Aug. 15 (AP).—German Communists attempted today, by threats of a winter blockade of Berlin, to incite the people against the anti-Communist city government.

At the same time the first of 82 United States jet fighter planes to be stationed in Germany landed at Wiesbaden, in Hesse.

Neues Deutschland, official Communist paper, demanded that the city government resign immediately "to spare (blockaded) western Berlin further suffering."

"Winter stands before the door: Where will you get coal?" it asked.

Berlin's "battle of the currencies" was the immediate cause of this new outburst against the elected government's non-Communist majority. The Russians and German Communists have demanded that western-sponsored currency be withdrawn from Berlin and that Soviet marks be made the sole legal tender for the entire city.

Sections of the western-controlled German press here complained today the French are "stripping their occupation zone of Germany" and suggested that the American and British intervene.

The Germans asserted removals of factories and economic resources would pauperize the French zone before it merged with the British and American zones.

31 Arrested In 3d Street Gaming Raid

28 'Guests' Forfeit Collateral of $5, Others Post Bonds

Watchdog vigilance by two First Precinct detectives paid off early yesterday when more than a dozen police arrested 31 persons in a raid on a suspected gambling den.

Two sisters and a third woman were booked on a total of 13 gambling and whisky-selling charges. Twenty-eight "guests" forfeited $5 collateral each on disorderly conduct counts after the raid, led by Detectives Charles K. Daub and Olof J. Schelin.

Louise Cannon, 29, who police called proprietress of the establishment at 614 3d st. nw., posted $4000 bond on eight charges, and was released. She was accused on three counts of keeping whisky, on three of selling it, on one of setting up a gaming table and on one of possession of lottery slips.

Her sister, Theda Mae Cannon, 21, of the same address, posted $1500 bond on two charges of keeping whisky and two of selling it.

Mrs. Geraldine Carter, 21, no fixed address, was being held last night on a charge of operating a gaming table.

The 3d st. house first came under scrutiny of the law on July 22, when Daub and Schelin investigated a wounding of a minor nature at that address. They learned that Louise Cannon, known to them previously, was moving there from 223 Massachusetts ave. nw.

They soon receive numerous complaints of activity at 614 3d st., and on August 8 dispatched an undercover man in plain clothes to investigate. He bought a fifth of gin for $6 on that trip and returned August 10 to buy setups and drinks, plus a pint of whisky on his way out, police reported.

Ten minutes before yesterday's raid at 1:40 a. m., he returned to engage in a card game.

Lack of Chief Of Staff Held Defense Peril

Unanimity Rule Expected to Balk Quick Action; Points Need for One Head

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Should the fury of ultramodern war strike America tomorrow, continental defense and counterattack would hinge upon unanimous decision in a committee meeting.

That is the only solution the United States now provides for a situation in which the solution must be ready beforehand with devastation the alternative. And that is, in the face of conditions pregnant with quick disaster.

No one can doubt that these are dangerous times.

Berlin is blockaded by the Red army and Vienna is at its mercy whenever it chooses to crack the whip. Korea is arbitrarily divided against itself. China is torn by civil war thrust upon it from the north. The Balkans have been devoured by the Red evangel. Greece and Turkey maintain their identity by virtue of American arms and money and counsel.

Soviet Recalls Officials

Here at home Soviet citizens are leaping from consulate windows to place themselves under United States protection. Others are going in hiding and spilling all they know to the FBI and committees of Congress. There is under way what appears to be a mass emigration of Soviet "officials" back to Russia.

On Capitol Hill investigations of Russian espionage capture headlines while the Soviet Ambassador protests four times in almost as many days against "kidnaping" of Soviet citizens. Only yesterday a United States naval attache in Moscow was charged by the Kremlin with espionage.

A few years ago this diplomatic cudgelling and these cries of "you're another" would never have gone so far. The situation long before would have degenerated into warfare.

Keeping Fingers Crossed

Nobody knows when the diplomatic facade may crumble and bring mankind into the bloodiest war of all. Fingers at the State Department and in the Pentagon are cramped from protracted crossing and educated guesses veer erratically from hope to blackest pessimism.

Yet in the face of this delicate situation, the United States must rely for its defense upon the decisions of a committee.

No informed person disagrees with the belief that any future war will be marked by:

1. An unannounced attack, overwhelming in its ferocity and power, aimed at speedy immobilization of this Nation's military potential, and that it must be countered by:

2. Prompt retaliation by air and sea eventually followed by a powerful amphibious assault and protracted land warfare.

Single Commander Called For

The essence of success in these two projects is:

1. A workable plan of defense and counterattack.

2. A military force capable of restoring order in devastated localities and aiding civilian victims of the attack, and:

3. Authority to put this plan

Frequency of Identity Errors Mars Federal Loyalty Probe

By Jerry Kluttz

It's clearly possible for a Federal worker to be the victim of mistaken identity in a loyalty investigation case. In fact, it's a rather common occurrence. Its alarming frequency is borne out by the first report of the Civil Service loyalty review board. These are facts:

1. Forty-one, or 17 per cent of the first 245 reports of full field FBI investigations sent to regional loyalty boards outside of this city were of mistaken identity, and

2. Thirty-three of 483 full-dress FBI investigations of employes in this city were of mistaken identity.

The FBI makes only full-scale inquiries of employes when charges or derogatory information are uncovered by a routine check. If these charges were all made public, it's painfully apparent that a lot of innocent people would be hurt. On the other hand, the FBI is due a bow in clearing up the mistakes.

As of August 1, the FBI had sent in reports on 3177 full-scale inquiries. For one reason or the other, it had discontinued 728 of the investigations. The loyalty board breaks down 483 of the reports it sent to agency loyalty boards here. This is it:

Employes no longer in service, 328; investigated by agency, 26; mistaken identity, 33; previously exonerated, 11; charges insufficient, 14; failed to substantiate, 58, and others, 13.

And this is the breakdown of 245 cases forwarded to regional loyalty boards outside of this city: no longer in service, 141; mistaken identity, 41; previously exonerated, 3; charges insufficient, 24; failed to substantiate, 30, and others, 6.

As of August, the board had either closed or was in the process of closing 676 loyalty cases. It had accepted 16 appeals from agency actions. Of the 676, it post-audited 131 decisions made by the agencies and it disagreed with nine of them, mainly for procedural reasons. And 529 of the employes involved left Government for one reason or the other. To date, the board won't allow 219 to reenter the service unless charges against them are cleared up.

AFGE: James B. Burns is a candidate for reelection as president of the AFL's American Federation of Government Employes. He made a formal announcement in a statement mailed over the weekend to the union's 1000 lodges. In the statement, Burns promised, if elected, to:

Fight any proposal to reduce either annual or sick-leave benefits; work for an upward revision of the Federal pay structure, and equal treatment of all Federal workers—annual, hourly, and per diems; cooperate fully with the union's executive council on all matters that will promote the interest of Federal workers; do everything possible to increase the

U. S. Attache Ousted From Moscow as a Spy; Case Called Frame-Up

Alger Hiss to Face Chambers Today; Results May Make Or Break Inquiry

By The Associated Press

A dramatic face-to-face meeting today of Alger Hiss, the accused, and Whittaker Chambers, the accuser, may make or break the congressional spy probe.

Plans for the showdown were disclosed yesterday by members of the House Committee on Un-American Activities as their espionage investigation took a new international turn.

Hiss, a former State Department official who now heads the Carnegie Endowment for World Peace, has been named by Chambers as a member of an "elite" Communist underground operating in Washington prior to Chambers' "conversion" from communism in 1937. Hiss flatly denied all his charges.

Chambers, now a senior editor of Time magazine, told the committee that he himself served in the underground. He named other Government officials, too, but Hiss' denial was so impressive as to convince committee members that a face-to-face meeting is essential.

Both testified previously under oath and at their own request.

Press May Be Excluded

The committee has not decided whether the meeting should be behind closed doors and in the presence of committee members and investigators only, or out in the open with the public and the press looking on. Present indications are it will be behind closed doors.

Members admitted privately that the committee is gambling by bringing the two men together to observe their reactions in a face-to-face meeting.

"If it develops that Chambers was wrong and that he did not know Hiss or visit his home, then one of our main props has been knocked from under us," a member told newsmen privately.

On the other hand, he added, "if it turns out that Hiss has not told the truth, then our main witness is vindicated and our case stands up."

Perjury Angle Studied

Magazine Tells Joys of Being Russian Teacher

By The Associated Press

The joys of being a Russian school teacher are described in the current issue of USRR, published by the Soviet Embassy here.

The magazine apparently went to press before Mrs. Oksana S. Kosenkina threw herself out of a window to escape "slavery and death."

The article describes the "enthusiasm and self-confidence" of a representative Russian teacher, Natalia Kotlvarova, and says she "enjoys great authority and respect" in the Soviet union.

It concludes with this paragraph:

"A woman who loves her work and considers the education of young Soviet citizens one of the most important and noblest professions, Natalia Kotlyarova is typical of the hundreds of thousands of Soviet teachers . . . who are throwing themselves passionately into the work of forming Soviet young people for a life that will be full and rich. . ."

Plea for File On Remington Again Refused

Ferguson's Request For Data on Loyalty Is Rejected by Clark

Confidential employment information on William W. Remington again has been refused a Senate investigating subcommittee by the Department of Justice, it was disclosed yesterday.

In a letter to Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), subcommittee chairman, Attorney General Clark "respectfully declined" to turn over any "letters, memoranda, or other written notices which the Department may have furnished to other Government agencies" or executives.

Clark's letter was in reply to a request from Ferguson dated August 7, the day Congress adjourned, asking that if the Department would not supply full information, it would supply certain information with names and dates deleted concerning Remington, accused by Ex-Communist Elizabeth Bentley of having supplied information to a spy ring. Remington has denied the charges.

Ferguson's subcommittee closed its public hearings on the Remington case about 10 days ago because, the committee said, President Truman had refused to turn over necessary records and information on Remington.

Would Be "Detrimental"

The President called the spy hearings a "red herring." Ferguson spoke of "impeachment" and said the President had lowered "an iron curtain between Congress and the public business."

Clark said the case presented by Remington, a Department of Commerce employe now suspended, involved not only a question of loyalty to the United States, but "allegations of espionage on behalf of a foreign power," and that to provide the requested information would be "detrimental" to the national interest.

"To disclose the manner in which, and the time when, particular officials or agencies of the United States Government receive notice in such cases; the nature of the notice and of the recommendations given; the manner in which the suspected employe is to be treated, and the extent to which he may be permitted to carry on his customary activities; all such disclosures would be of considerable importance to any persons and governments having interests adverse to those of the United States," Clark wrote.

Red Secret Police Claim They Caught Man Now in D. C. Redhanded in May

From Press Dispatches

Russia charged that a young American naval attache was caught spying and expelled from the Soviet Union last spring, but the State Department promptly replied that the officer was the victim of a frame-up engineered by the Kremlin and Russian secret police.

The officer is 32-year-old Lieut. Robert H. Dreher of Oil City, Pa., who was assistant United States naval attache in Moscow until last May when he was transferred to the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations here, Admiral Louis E. Denfield.

The official Communist Party newspaper Pravda charged in Moscow yesterday that Dreher was expelled after he was caught spying. It said Dreher admitted receiving "secret information" from a Soviet customs official, and that the United States Embassy found the evidence against him "so indisputable" that it agreed to send him home at once.

Story Branded False

The State Department, through Press Secretary M. J. McDermott, held a special Sunday conference, immediately branded the Pravda story false, and revealed that United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith had long ago accused the Soviet government of deliberately involving Dreher in a frame-up.

McDermott said Dreher was scheduled to return to this country last spring anyway, and that the Soviet government knew this fact 10 days before the Soviet secret police (MVD, formerly NKVD) broke in on a conversation between Dreher and a Russian customs officer and arrested both.

"In good American lingo, it was a plant," McDermott said.

The official United States version of the incident was that Dreher received a telephone call last April 23 from a Russian customs official with whom Dreher had worked at the Russian port of Odessa.

The Russian (whose name was not known here and who was identified in Pravda only as "E") asked Dreher to meet him to discuss "official business" relating to shipment of some American goods.

As soon as Dreher arrived at the

Russia's Navy Alerted for War, Expands Rapidly

Moscow, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Moscow newspapers reported today that the Red navy is being expanded rapidly and kept in a state of "permanent combat preparedness."

Marking the annual celebration of Navy Day, Admiral Gordei Levchenko reported that twice as many warships would be launched during 1950 as in 1940.

A Pravda editorial denounced "good-will" cruises by United States naval craft as "shameless intervention in the internal affairs of other states, and declared that the Soviet navy "does not require naval demonstrations like those arranged by the chiefs of the imperialist camp."

Vice Admiral Pavel Abankin said "the fleet stands vigilantly and alertly on guard" as "the Soviet Union wages a consistent policy of peace and international collaboration opposed to the policy of international reaction led by the American imperialists, who hope to subjugate the whole world."

Stalin Reported Regretful Over Yalta 'Concession'

Columbia University Professor Philip E. Mosely stated yesterday that Premier Stalin expressed regret during the Potsdam meeting for the concession he had made at the Yalta conference to permit free elections in eastern Europe.

Mosely quoted Stalin as saying at Potsdam, "A freely elected government in any of these countries (the Balkan states) would be anti-Soviet, and that we cannot allow."

Mosley, an adviser to the United States delegation, was quoted by the Foreign Policy Association, a private organization.

5 Olympians Stay On

Satellite Athletes Like Free Air Of England Too Well to Leave

London, Aug. 15 (AP).—Olympic athletes from a number of eastern European lands, finding the atmosphere of political freedom in Britain to their liking, decided today not to go home.

At least three Hungarians and two Czechs have made arrangements to remain in Britain, and more are thinking about staying, now that they are outside the closely guarded borders of their home lands.

Several Yugoslavs and Poles, it was known, have made inquiries about the possibility of remaining here or going on to Canada and the United States.

Three Hungarian swimmers, Oszkar Csuvik, 23, Elmer Szatmari, 22, arrival a couple of weeks ago, and Desso Gyarmati, 21, applied to the home office for permission to remain an extended time. It was granted, and now they are looking for jobs.

Czech athletes reported that they managed somehow to drop out of the party of Czechoslovakians being taken to an airport for a flight back to Prague. Their baggage went but they didn't, and they did not return to the Czech Olympic athletes' camp.

The three Hungarian swimmers could not be found in London today and tonight the Hungarian Olympic committee issued a statement saying that one of them, Gyarmati, had left for Budapest with a party of athletes.

The other two, the statement said, decided to remain in Britain as professional sportsmen and asserted they described themselves as political refugees to overcome the difficulties of getting permits to remain.

The athletes who decided to stay have families "back home," but said they were acting without the knowledge of their relatives.

Lieut. Dreher, Target of Russian Spy Countercharge, Now Stationed Here

The victim of Russia's first counter-thrust in current cloak-and-dagger maneuvering is a 32-year-old naval officer stationed in Washington.

The Washington Post

LIEUT ROBERT DREHER

Leaving home last night

Center of a case in which the shoe of international intrigue may be on the other foot is Lieut. Robert Dreher, who lives at 3307 Fessenden st. nw.

Whether it is a case of "if the shoe fits, wear it," could not be determined yesterday. His landlady said the officer, former assistant to naval attaches at Odessa and Moscow, was taking a postman's holiday.

He was charged by Pravda, official Communist organ in Moscow, with having been expelled from Russia for espionage activities. Lieut. Dreher, however, was "out with friends in a collapsible rubber boat," his landlady said yesterday, so a reply was not readily available.

From Navy records, nevertheless, it was learned that he received a mechanical engineering degree at Lafayette College in 1939. After attending graduate school at Columbia University, he worked for the Oil Well Supply Co. in Oil City, Pa., listed as his home.

His record further reveals:

Lieut. Dreher was an instructor at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy, N. Y., before being commissioned an ensign in the Naval Reserve on October 12, 1942.

His first tour of duty was with the supervisor of shipyards at Savannah, Ga., and later at Jacksonville, Fla. He was then sent to the Naval Training School at Boulder, Colo., where he studied the Russian language.

Lieut. Dreher reported in April, 1946, to the Chief of Naval Operations here for temporary duty. He was appointed in May of that year as assistant to the naval attache and assistant to the naval attache for air, first at Odessa and later at Moscow.

He lists his father and mother, George Francis and Mrs. Frances Catherine Dreher of Oil City, Pa., as next of kin.

The naval officer was described by his landlady as "a very likable chap." She expressed a mild fear that the "Russians might drop a bomb on my house" if the story concerning Lieut. Dreher were published.

When Dreher, a dark, handsome 6-footer, returned home shortly before 8 o'clock last night—and spotted a reporter and photographers who had been waiting for him all day—he sprinted and bounded into the red-brick house.

Later, he allowed photographers to snap pictures as he walked to his car, en route to the Watergate opera.

His only reply to questions was: "You'll have to get the answers from the Navy Department. You know that, fellows."

2000 Slain 'Fascists' To Be Disinterred

Trieste, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Civilian authorities said today workers will start removing 2000 bodies from a common grave in the Carso Mountains near here next week so that efforts can be made to identify prsons killed by Yugoslav partisans in 1945.

The victims, whom the partisans claimed were fascists, were thrown into a 750-foot deep crevasse.

customs office, the Russian official began talking volubly about other matters, and the Russian secret police rushed into the room and placed both under arrest. Dreher was released after "several hours detention" and went back to the Embassy.

Officials said Dreher's task at Odessa was to expedite shipments received from the United States for the Embassy in Moscow.

"E" was a customs official designated by higher Soviet authorities to be the contact man with the lieutenant in carrying out his job.

Thus, according to State Department informants, there was a proper and officially recognized relationship between the two men which had existed for some time.

Then Dreher was transferred back to Moscow where he was also given responsibility for expediting incoming embassy shipments.

McDermott said Dreher had completed his two-year tour of duty in Moscow and had applied to the Soviet government for an exit visa to return to the United States just 10 days before the incident took place.

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky called Smith to the Kremlin on April 26 and demanded that Dreher be shipped home at once.

Meeting Held Arranged

Smith replied that Dreher was going home anyway, and the U. S. Ambassador remarked acidly that the timely arrival of MVD agents at Dreher's meeting with the Russian official "would indicate that this interview had been arranged by the Soviet authorities.'

Pravda's version was that the MVD noticed "E" holding clandestine meetings with "an unknown individual wearing civilian clothes." Finally, the Russian paper said, the secret police surprised the two men meeting in an unused customs office in Moscow, and arrested them despite the vigorous resistance of the American, then identified as Dreher.

Pravda quoted Dreher as saying:

"I confirm that I received secret data from 'E' which I entered into my notebook."

It said the evidence against Dreher was "so indisputable that the American Embassy did not attempt to challenge it and without any objection fulfilled the request (for) immediate departure of Lieutenant Dreher from the Soviet Union . . ."

Dreher declined to comment personally on the Soviet account, saying that his answer would come through official channels.

Aside from making it emphatically clear that the United States Embassy in Moscow had challenged the spy allegations against Dreher, the State Department did not bother to make a point-by-point refutation of the Pravda report.

Other diplomatic circles here expressed belief that Moscow broadcast a distorted version of the incident, four months after it happened, because the Kremlin needed a propaganda "diversion."

The diversion was needed, they said, to draw attention of the Russian people and the world away from the desperate steps taken by two Soviet school teachers to keep from being shipped from America back to their native land.

One official suggested that the Kremlin was trumping up a four-months old "scandal" to keep tthe Russian people from thinking too much about Mrs. Oksana S. Kosenkina, who hurled herself from a three-story window of the Soviet consulate in New York last week to escape "slavery and death."

Pravda's accusation against Dreher came as word from Moscow showed the Soviet press and radio suddenly ceased reporting developments in the cases of Mikhail I. Samarine and Mrs. Kosenkina, the Soviet school teachers.

The official newspapers and radio broadcasts completely ignored the Samarine-Kosenkina case for the first time since the story leaped into the headlines all over the world on August 7.

The Pravda story was under the headline "American spy caught redhanded!"

Despite publicity over the Samarine-Kosenkina case in New York and the case of Dreher, Americans in Moscow are living as they did previously, going and coming about as they please, dispatches indicated.

Ambassador Smith said in Moscow that he had told all Embassy personnel they must "conduct themselves correctly." He said he told the staff members that if they conducted themselves correctly and avoided both the essence and appearance of incorrectness they had nothing to fear from any quarter.

Pravda said it printed the story of Dreher because the case only "recently came to the attention of a Pravda official."

Ambassador Smith declined comment on Pravda's accusation. So did the United States naval attache, Rear Admiral Leslie C. Stevens.

Pravda's detailed story said Dreher, dressed in civilian clothes, met the Russian customs official—whom it termed a Soviet "agent of American naval intelligence"—in the Moscow customs office to receive "secret military information."

The customs official had attracted the attention of Soviet security officers, Pravda said, because he gathered "secret information" and from time to time made trips to Moscow.

The newspaper said that while the two men actually were exchanging written information, Soviet security agents entered the room and caught them in the act.

Dreher and the customs official "hurriedly attempted to hide certain papers and notebooks," Pravda said. When a security officer seized several sheets of paper lying on a table, Dreher, "trying to tear them out of the hands of the representative of Soviet security organs, began to beat the security representative," it said.

"When he failed to take away these papers, he began to tear up papers on his person," Pravda said.

The newspaper said that, on investigation, it was found that the customs official's notebook contained "completely secret military information" and other papers seized were a transcript of them into English.

Say He Confessed

Dreher confessed on the spot, Pravda said, quoting his statement to Soviet security authorities as follows:

"I affirm that I received from "E." secret information which I personally wrote down in my notebook. In January of this year I met with him in the customs building and also received from him secret information."

The customs worker also confessed on the spot in front of Dreher, the newspaper said, that "having been caught in the act I am obliged to confess that I gathered and turned over spy information to Dreher at his assignment."

"The notes seized on my person also represent a list of all those secret data which I collected and today turned over to Dreher," the statement was quoted. "Our previous meeting took place in January of this year in Moscow, and at that time I also turned over to Dreher secret information on military questions."

The request for Dreher's immediate departure was the strongest action that could be taken against an individual having diplomatic status. A noncommissioned officer, a consular clerk or a private United States citizen would be subject to arrest and trial in the circumstances reported by Pravda.

The story did not indicate what had happened to the customs official.

Appeared in Costume

His tour of duty in Moscow lasted from November, 1947, to May 1. Prior to that time he was naval representative in Odessa for more than a year. He made his first appearance before Americans here at a costume ball, dressed as a ballet dancer.

Dreher wore tights, with ruffled skirts and red wig at the ball, held in Spasso House, the residence of Ambassador Smith.

Dreher Parents Proud Of Son's Actions

Oil City, Pa., Aug. 15 (AP).—The parents of Robert Dreher, assistant United States naval attache accused by the Russians of receiving secret information, said today they are "definitely proud" of their son.

His mother, Mrs. Frances Dreher, refused to comment on the Russian charges but said she had talked with her son in Washington by telephone today.

"I told him I would say nothing," she reported. He said, "That's fine. We'll take care of it all at this end."

"This will all be cleared up in a few days," Mrs. Dreher added. "It's just like the Russian policy to do those things over the weekend."

His mother said Dreher had been working steadily in Washington and had not been home since the Fourth of July.

Asked if her son ever commented on life with the Russians, Mrs. Dreher said quickly:

"That's censored." Then she added:

"But actually he didn't discuss those things at home."

Dreher's father, George Dreher, is a consulting engineer for the Oil Well Supply Co. at Oil City.

Dreher, who is 32 and unmarried, has a younger sister.

Students Fear War, So Why Study?

London, Aug. 15 (AP).—Fear of war tends to give American college students an attitude of "there's no use studying—let's dance," a report to the International Congress on Mental Health said today.

The congress, now in session in London, received the study from a group of Stockbridge, Mass., sponsored by the Austen Riggs Foundation and led by Roy Schafer.

"There are indications that the threat of a new war today is at least partly responsible for a strong sense of futuility among many young college students, male and female (and among many adults)" the report said.

Greek Army Closing Trap Around Guerilla's Grammos Mountains Stronghold

Athens, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Greek army, in a surprise lightning attack on the southwest sector of its arc around the guerilla's Grammos Mountains stronghold, occupied Orla Ridge today and began closing a trap on the defenders of the southern approaches.

A general staff spokesman said several feints were made in other sectors the last two days.

Loud Shout Heard Before Teacher Fell

New York, Aug. 15 (NYHT).—Although still on the critical list, the Russian teacher, Mrs. Oksana Stepanova Kosenkina was reported slightly improved today at Roosevelt Hospital where she was taken after her leap Thursday from a third-floor rear window of the Soviet consulate, 7 East Sixty-first st.

It was learned today that just before Mrs. Kosenkina jumped, at 4:19 p. m. Thursday, she shouted protestingly in Russian to someone in the consulate.

Her shouts were heard by Vincent Miller on the third floor of the consulate.

"By the time I got to the window, she had landed in the courtyard," he said. "There was no one at the window from which she jumped. But I counted 17 Russian faces at other windows."

He added: "I do not understand Russian."

Reports that the reason the ambulance was held outside the consulate for half an hour was because police and consulate officials were arguing about Mrs. Kosenkina's custody were laid to rest today. Police said the ambulance was delayed because attendants had to put a large splint on Mrs. Kosenkina's right leg before carrying her out. They said the Russians appeared more frightened than belligerent.

Tass Discounts Quotes From Mrs. Kosenkina

London, Monday, Aug. 16 (U.P.).—The Soviet news agency Tass asserted today that Mrs. Oksana S. Kosenkina's statements "have no value whatever, since they are being made through American police and intelligence agents."

The Tass story claimed the schoolteacher could not be believed because her "life or death now depends on the arbitrary actions and plans" of United States officials.

Miss Bentley Called Relic Of Dark Ages

Elizabeth T. Bentley, confessed former Communist spy, is a citizen of the Dark Ages, the Rev. J. Warren Hastings asserted yesterday.

Rev. Hastings

Speaking to his congregation at the National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, Dr. Hastings pointed out that Miss Bentley said she had studied practically no American history.

"She accepted the advantages of our public school system, took a graduate degree from an outstanding university, and knew nothing of the philosophy that undergirds the American system," he declared.

"She never seems to have realized that had she been a citizen of Russia she would not have had the educational advantages she enjoyed in the United States," the minister continued.

Miss Bentley, 40, attended public schools in New York and Pennsylvania. She was graduated from Vassar College in 1930 and received her master's degree from Columbia University in 1935.

In testifying before the House Committee on Un-American Activities on July 31, she said that she was "very little schooled as to the American Government." She told the comittee she believed there are many people brought up like myself who have not the slightest comprehension of what America is really like, nor what it means to live in a democratic country under a democratic system."

Democracy and what it stands for must become a passion with each one of us, Dr. Hastings declared, in a sermon broadcast over WINX.

We must insist that the principles of Christianty and Democracy, which emphasize the value of the individual, are taught in every public school and college, he said, adding that American history cannot be relegated to the area of elective courses.

Democracy and Christianity serve every individual in this country and to a degree in the entire world, he said.

"Our only escape from war is to serve the principles in life which today are rendering the greatest service to each one of us," he concluded.

"As we serve these principles an all-out passion for them will take possession of our lives."

U. S. Embassy Denies Closing Haas Probe

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—The United States Embassy today denied a report in an Arabian newspaper that the American Government considers the assassination of Stephen Haas, Philadelphia, a closed case.

The embassy issued a statement referring to a report by Akbar El Yom, an independent weekly, allegedly quoting from the Egyptian prosecutor general's report on the fatal stoning of Haas by a mob near the Cairo citadel July 18.

"This is contrary to the fact, since the American Embassy is awaiting a reply to two official representations concerning the case," the embassy statement said.

File Withheld On Remington

Ferguson committee was advised before it started its hearings that Miss Bentley testified at length before a Federal grand jury in New York, as did Remington "and many other persons.

"Your committee was also advised that the grand jury is still serving, and that the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been engaged for a long period of time in conducting an intensive investigation into this and other alleged communistic activities.

"Just how much damage to these efforts to arrive at a sound basis for prosecution has been done by the open hearings which have been conducted is difficult to say," Clark wrote.

The Attorney General said his refusal to provide the requested information was made after consultation with the Office of the President.

Pamela's mother, who had opposed the operation, consented yesterday when she learned several other children had survived similar surgery

Czech Communists Prepare To Screen 2 Million Members

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—The Communist Party today announced detailed plans for a three-month purge of its own ranks in a final step to consolidate its power.

A central committee announcement said all of the party's more than two million members will be screened between October 1 and December 31. Anyone who fails to meet the exacting standards will be expelled.

Each member, it said, will be judged according to:

"1. How he comprehends, carries out and defends party policy; whether he fulfills the duties assigned to him honorably and sacrificially;

"2. How he attends membership meetings and carries out the decisions made there;

"3. How regularly he pays his dues;

"4. What efforts he makes towards deepening his political knowledge.

"5. Whether he subscribes to and how he reads the party's daily press."

The announcement emphasized that party leaders also will note how each member "fulfills public functions and the functions in national organizations entrusted to him by the party."

Communist government and city officials, leaders in trade unions, national youth organizations, the association of Czech farms, the Sokol Athletic organization and similar groups will be closely scrutinized.

The Communist closing of ranks will follow on the heels of similar purges in non-Communist groups which is expected to be completed September 30.

Red Control of Lower Danube Seen Disaster to River States

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Chancellor Leopold Figl said today that Russian efforts to monopolize Danube River traffic are likely to bring about "the end of prosperity" for the Danubian states.

Speaking to a farmers rally at Kleganfurth, Figl said Austria demands that the Danube traffic be "free and safeguarded by an international guarantee." He said "it appears to be the general belief in Belgrade that the Danube will run out of water if this river does not join the East bloc."

He said that, while the Danube is actually an Austrian river, Austria has not even been admitted as a voting member of the Danube conference."

Soviet River Draft Certain of Passage

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 15 (AP).—The 11-nation conference on control of Danube shipping will enter its final week Monday.

Passage of the Soviet-drafted convention to give Danubian states exclusive jurisdiction over the waterway was certain, probably by late Tuesday or Wednesday, and by a vote of seven to three.

The three Western powers—the United States, Britain and France, probably will refuse to sign.

For an indefinite period this probably will mean the Danube will remain cut in two at Linz, Austria, below which Russia halted all non-Soviet traffic shortly after the war ended.

Irish Union Plan Denied

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Aug. 15 (AP).—Prime Minister Sir Basil Brooke issued a statement today denying rumors that steps to bring about a union of Northern Ireland and Eire will be taken soon.

Alger Hiss to Meet Chambers Before House Group Today

trict of Columbia now has the case under study.

Since Chambers' testimony on other incidents corroborated much of the testimony of another star witness, Elizabeth Bentley, the committee admittedly would suffer a setback if loopholes were discovered in Chambers' statements.

Miss Bentley, an avowed former Communist, did not implicate Hiss in the case, but some people named by her have been named also by Chambers. Some already have flatly denied the accusations; others have stood on their constitutional rights and refused to say whether they even knew her.

The committee claims to have additional evidence to support Chambers' claim that he not only knew Hiss but visited his home here.

Plans Hinge on Showdown

When he decided to quit the Communists, Chambers testified, he went to Hiss' home one evening and "tried to break him away from the party. As a matter of fact, he cried when I left. I was very fond of Mr. Hiss."

To which Hiss replied at a later hearing that he had requested:

"To best of my knowledge I never heard of Whittaker Chambers until in 1947 when two representatives of the Federal Bureau of Investigation asked me if I knew him and various other people. . . . So far as I am aware I have never laid eyes on him and I should like to have the opportunity to do so."

The committee's future plans won't be made until after the Hiss-Chambers showdown. Some members want a recess until September. Others want more hearings this month, with a recess during September.

Now under subpena is Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina, 52-year-old Russian teacher recovering in Roosevelt Hospital, New York, from injuries she suffered when she jumped from the third floor of the Soviet consulate last Thursday.

Mrs. Kosenkina "Comfortable"

She was reported yesterday to be "resting comfortably," her condition unchanged.

The committee put a subpena on her Saturday primarily to keep her out of Soviet jurisdiction. It may not question her in Washington.

A teacher of children of Russian members of the United Nations delegation, she was to have returned to Russia recently. The Soviet consul took her from an anti-Communist White Russian group where she was found after she missed the boat to Russia.

Russia officially has made a vehement protest over what it called the kidnaping of Mrs. Kosenkina by the United States authorities.

But the State Department has announced that she can stay here as long as she obeys the law. Saturday it rejected a personal demand by Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin that the Soviet consul be allowed to post a 24-hour guard at her bedside, that the consul be permitted to visit her, and that he be allowed to transfer her to another hospital.

Gen. Partridge Arrives in London On Special Mission

London, Aug. 15 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge of the United States Air Force arrived in London today in a Flying Fortress after a flight from Washington. An American Embassy spokesman said he is on a "special mission" to Europe which will require his visiting Germany this week.

Big 3 Envoys Talk Strategy Before 6th Kremlin Parley

Moscow, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—The envoys of the Western world held a strategy conference today while they waited for the Kremlin to arrange their sixth conference with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau and special British Representative Frank Roberts met early in the day to discuss plans for their next session with Molotov.

The Western envoys have been waiting since yesterday for the Kremlin to give the green light for renewed talks on the Berlin crisis. None of the previous conferences had been held on Sunday, and it seemed unlikely that they would be called in before Monday at earliest.

The conferences have been conducted in an atmosphere of strict secrecy, and nothing is known of the progress of the negotiations. The United States, Britain and France are believed to be proposing a Big Four conference on European problems provided the Soviet blockade of Berlin is lifted.

Forrestal Visits Canadian Capital

Ottawa, Aug. 15 (AP). — United States Secretary of Defense James Forrestal arrived here by plane today for a two-day visit.

His trip to the Canadian capital was described as a courtesy visit to return one to Washington some time ago by Canadian Defense Minister Brooke Claxton.

Forrestal is scheduled to meet with the defense committee of the Canadian cabinet tomorrow morning.

Incinerator Ready To Burn Documents

Installment IX

(This is the story of the former Russian cipher expert who exposed Stalin's spy ring in Canada in September, 1945. It parallels the one now being told in this country.—Editor's Note).

By Igor Gouzenko

At first, there were only the three of us on the Military Attache's staff at Ottawa. There wasn't much to do in those early days and our mutual relations were very pleasant. Colonel Zabotin, Major Romanov and I discussed our impressions quite freely.

Zabotin's magnetic personality attracted contacts almost immediately and he secured frequent invitations for us to visit the suburbs and go swimming with him.

Within a short time, other members of the Military Attache's staff began to arrive and Zabotin bought a house on Range st. which was to serve as our base. Work became more serious and our relationship more official. Zabotin kept to himself. There were no more trips to the suburbs. The members of his staff were divided roughly into two groups: the diplomatic group and the technical employes. The diplomatic group including Zabotin, Motinov, Rogov and later Domashev. They all wore uniforms. To keep my identity as cipher clerk to Zabotin absolutely secret, I wore civilian clothes.

Cipher Branch Isolated

Several days after I had been admitted to the secret cipher branch of the embassy, the rules under which I was to work there were brought to me by the chief of this branch, Ouspensky, who was later sent to Washington in the same capacity.

He showed me where to find a bell which was hidden under the banister of the staircase. After pressing this bell I must walk upstairs to the second floor. The cipher branch occupied an isolated section of this floor, and its steel-covered door was concealed behind a velvet curtain. On drawing the curtain, I must place my face in front of an aperture in the door, so that the man on duty inside the branch might recognize me before opening the steel-covered door.

Having passed through this first door, I must wait until a second door—bigger and boasting more steel than the first one—was opened by the guard. Once inside this second door, I was in a carpeted corridor from which several more steel doors opened into small rooms. The windows of each room had been painted white to make them opaque. They were protected by steel bars and, at night, with steel shutters.

During working hours, a radio blared in the office of Chief Ouspensky; jazz music, monotonous soap operas, and sundry commercials; not that he cared for that sort of radio entertainment, but simply to drown conversations which might be overheard by others of the "trusted" unit.

Incinerators Available

In the two end rooms of the corridor were incinerators wherein papers and documents were burned from time to time. All persons working in the secret branch had access to the room at the left, where the smaller incinerator was located; but only Ouspensky was permitted to enter the other room, where a large powerful incinerator, built in Toronto to special specifications, had been installed.

The reason for such a massive incinerator was to make possible the hurried destruction of large quantities of documents, codes, ciphers, telegrams and dossiers on agents, if such an emergency ever arose. Pavlov, whom I knew from coding cables was the NKVD head in Canada, admitted that he had designed the incinerator, saying with a suggestive smirk:

"It is big enough and powerful enough to consume the body of a man."

This gave me an apprehensive shiver and I have often wondered if it were ever used for that purpose.

Whenever a telegram arrived ordering the destruction of a code, an instruction would be included concerning the formation of a commission to supervise the simple act of burning it. The commission had to include the Military Attache, his cipher clerk, the chief of the secret branch and a representative of the "Neighbors," which was the cover name for the NKVD agents abroad.

Loose Talk Dangerous

Nobody ever dared discuss espionage in the embassy. Loose conversation was dangerous in the extreme. Frequently persons made some remark with double meaning. This would be reported and result in the speaker being asked for an explanation. Any critism, no matter how minor, was interpreted as "anti-Soviet sentiment" and generally resulted in the offender being dispatched forthwith to Moscow. Our greatest fear was the constant danger of some action or word placing us on the "black list." Usually, you were granted no chance to defend yourself even if you were informed why your name had been placed there. Thus any enemy or rival in the embassy could easily get rid of you—a thought which hardly inspired happy working conditions.

One evening I picked up a copy of the Soviet journal Bolshevik, which had just arrived from Moscow. The feature article described the development of industry in the United States and the author, a well-known economist named Evgeny, who used the nom de plume Varga described more or less truthfully the progress made in the war industries of the United States. But in describing the workers, Vaga excelled himself. He told of the horrible slavery under which they toiled, of the starvation wages and atrocious living conditions in their slum-like homes. He described the jails and dungeons through fear of which capitalists forced their workers to produce. He told of them dying at their machines in a frantic effort to fulfill "new record production quotas."

If I had read this drivel in the Soviet Union I would have accepted such lies as the truth. But after seeing how the workingman worked and lived in Canada I liteally exploded with:

"What a liar!"

Angelov, who was in the room with me at the time, asked what was the matter. I summarized what I had read and Angelov smiled. But suddenly he caught himself and shifted to the official attitude.

"Varga can see more clearly," he said tersely. "In general, I would suggest that you think too much." With that, he stood up and walked stiffly from the room, leaving me in abject terror. Nothing further came of my remark, so I assumed that I hadn't been reported.

Going Home With New Scalp

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

HAPPY DAY—Esther Carrier, 22, of Dracut, Mass., smiles happily as she leaves Boston hospital for home, head bandaged to protect her new scalp. The skin grafts were made after her head was torn from eyebrows backward to her neck in a factory accident last June 28. Doctor who performed the skin grafts for the new scalp said Esther can take up normal life "in month or two"

Textile Strike Idles 2200 Georgia Workers

Rome, Ga., Aug. 15 (AP).—A strike at the Rome plant of the Celanese Corporation of America idled 2200 employes today.

Second shift workers began leaving the plant last night after the Textile Workers Union of America (CIO) voted to reject a company offer of an eight per cent wage increase.

The union voted to strike after weeks of negotiations failed to produce a settlement.

Dr. Silver in Haifa

Haifa, Israel, Aug. 15 (AP).—Dr. Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, Ohio, American Zionist leader, arrived here tonight to attend a meeting of the Zionist General Council in Tel Aviv. He said his purpose in coming to Israel is to discuss reorganization of the Zionist movement and means of strengthening the Jewish state.

Communist Rifts Reported In Yugoslavia

Belgrade, Aug. 15 (NYHT).—The first open admission of dissensions within the Yugoslav Communist Party resulting from the row between Premier Marshal Tito and the Cominform was made today by Blazho Jovanovic, president of Montenegro. He revealed the reason for the recent dismissal of the Montenegrin vice president, Bozho Ljumovic, and three other cabinet members was their support of the Cominform's accusations against Marshal Tito.

The housecleaning in Montenegro preceded by six days another shakeup in the republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina, where four ministers were ousted.

President Jovanovic said the Cominform accusations "led to a split in the party."

Any attempts to reconcile the dissident faction would be like "putting water in wine—it would weaken the party line," he added.

Nervousness over economic espionage was reflected in today's "Borba," the Communist Party newspaper. In a front-page editorial it warned the press and the public against supplying "imperialistic" agents with information about Yugoslavia's economy.

Communists Not Immune From Draft

By The Associated Press

Communists will be drafted into the United States Army along with other men 19 through 25, but elaborate machinery has been set up to keep them out of secret military jobs, it was disclosed yesterday.

Army Intelligence officials are very close-mouthed on the subject. It is known, however, that the Army had a "loyalty check" of men in uniform operating years before President Truman ordered a similar investigation of civilian employes of the Government.

Selective Service officials have announced they will make no effort to screen out any Communist who may be among the 9,600,000 draft registrants this fall.

Out of nearly 100 questions potential draftees must answer, not one is designed to uncover subversive affiliations. But that does not mean the Army believes Communists will make as good soldiers as anyone else.

On the contrary, the Army Department is on record officially as regarding "membership in or close affiliation with the Communist Party inimical to the security of the United States." High Army officials point out that Nikolai Lenin, the founder of Russian communism, expounded the doctrine that "illegal work is partciularly necessary in the Army, the Navy and the police."

Since early 1946, it has been official Army policy that Communists must not be "assigned to or retained in sensitive duties."

Sensitive duties include officer or aviation cadet training; intelligence work; radar; atomic energy; cryptography, and the information-education corps which conducts "orientation classes" for servicemen.

'Colonel Chabert' Film 'Depressive'

By Sonia Stein

There is an extraordinarily sustained air of depression throughout the French film, "Colonel Chabert," which is currently at the Hippodrome Theater.

From beginning to end there is not one scene of gaiety. And even over those few pitiful scenes in which the colonel is at last enjoying some spurious affection, the pall of his wife's duplicity hangs heavily.

The triumph of mood belongs partly to Honore de Balzac whose story it is, to the entire cast, and to the director who makes the most of each of these talents. But the major triumph belongs, of course, to Raimu. It is not by accident that he is inevitably billed above the title of the picture.

The New York Times once called him the "Great God Pan Himself." But it is not that celebrated aspect of the late Raimu's art which distinguishes this film. Nor is it that mixture of tears and laughter that marks the work of the great comics; as Colonel Chabert, Raimu is a completely tragic figure in spite of his ugliness, his rags and tatters and his manners.

Raised to rank and fortune from a nameless and penniless beginning, Chabert is a loyal follower of Napoleon. Badly wounded in the Battle of Eylau, he is believed dead, and is half buried in a common grave. Chabert has lost his right arm and spends some time in the hospital recovering. After that he spends long and bitter years confined to an insane asylum, for claiming to be the hero, Chabert, who is known to be dead. After enduring all this, the wretched man finds his way to Paris, where his wife lives, chiefly on the "late" colonel's wealth, with her second husband who is a count and her two children.

It is at this point the film begins. It proceeds through the Countess' attempt to have the very inconvenient Chabert committed to an asylum, and her honeyed maneuvering when she discovers he proposes to take legal action against her.

In somber defiance to the Johnston Office's edicts, which fortunately apply only to American films, the picture ends with the lady still in possession of the money, the Count and her social position. Chabert, broken and disillusioned, finishes out his life in a home for the aged.

The entire cast is extremely competent. From the snickering clerks in the law office to Chabert's wife, they are well-rounded characterizations. Marie Bell who plays the wife, and Aime Clairond, the servant trusted to help Madame in her nefarious plans, are both Comedie Francaise players, as is Raimu.

There is some beauty in the film, though not beauty of soul. Miss Bell has a cameo-like look, enhanced at times with lovely bonnets, when she is setting a trap for the trusting Chabert. The town and country houses in which the lady divides her time, are elegant, indeed.

But what beauty there is, serves only to emphasize the ugliness of Chabert's fate.

To help us follow the plot, there are English subtitles. But the essence of the story is not to be found in them—it's in Raimu's face, his fingers and his stumbling feet.

Richard L. Coe is on vacation. His column, "One on the Aisle," will be resumed on his return.

Mary Matthews To Rule Fete as 'Queen Nicotina'

Miss Mary Virginia Matthews of La Plata, Md., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Matthews, was elected Queen Nicotina XIV at a dance held at Chapel Point in Charles County, Md., Saturday night.

Miss Matthews will be crowned queen on September 26 at the Charles County Silver Jubilee Fair at La Plata. A tobacco festival is an annual feature of the fair.

Named as princesses were Misses Alma Cooksey, Dentsville; Jean Simms, Bel Alton; Dotty Clagget, La Plata; Mary Daven, Waldorf; Mary Jo Brown, La Plata, and Frances Wills, Faulkner.

Orson Welles Signed For Role in New Film

Rome, Italy, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Actor-Producer Orson Welles has been signed for the role of Cesar Borgia, rennaissance prince who rose to power through murder and treason, in the Twentieth Century-Fox film, "Prince of Foxes," it was announced today.

prestige and influence of the union.

Burns' main opponent to date is James Yaden, a Civil Service official. A Yaden-for-President Club headed by James Googe of Civil Service has been formed.

NOTES: It was Oscar Ewing, the Federal Security Administrator, who persuaded the President to order the Civil Service Commission to set up a fair employment practices committee for Federal workers . . . The Office of National Defense is expanding . . . A proposal that the job classification system of postal workers be merged into a single system with that of other Federal workers is being given serious study . . . Edward A. Gould is assistant to the controller of Economic Cooperation. He will have offices in Paris . . . ECA has temporarily halted overseas recruiting. However, it still needs a few stenos who can speak a foreign language, and a few trade and industrial specialists.

RATINGS: Any day now the Civil Service Commission will approve changes in the efficiency rating system. To make it easier and cheaper to conduct elections to name employes to the rating appeals board, the commission will lengthen employe terms from 1 to 2 years. It will order the employe elected who gets the most votes. This will stop run-off elections.

The employe will be given only 30 days in which to file an appeal after he receives his notice of rating. He now has 90 days. There is no controversy on these points. But there is a difference of opinion on the proposal that appeal boards be stripped of the authority to lower ratings. Those who want the power continued say it prevents supersensitive employes from appealing their ratings.

NOTES: Chairman Langer of the Senate Civil Service Committee is off on a six-week tour of postoffices, employe conventions, etc. In his speeches he will claim that the GOP Congress did more for Federal workers than any other Congress in history . . . The AFGE is in the market for an editor of its union publication . . . The acting chairman of the Civil Service loyalty review board is Burton L. French, a former GOP member of Congress from Idaho for 26 years. French was a member of the House Appropriations Committee.

Key Industry Gains Top Those of 1940

By the United Press

The Federal Trade Commission yesterday released statistics showing how much some manufacturing profits have increased since the war.

The survey covered 25 key industries. It compared their rate of return on investment in the prewar year 1940 and in the postwar year 1947. Profits after taxes were paid were used in both cases.

For all but three of the industries, the FTC reported, rates of return were higher in 1947. The industries showing a decline were cigaret manufacturing; miscellaneous tobacco products manufacturing (chewing, pipe, snuff); and the engines and turbines industry.

The FTC explained that tobacco prices have risen while finished products have remained stable. It attributed the engines industry situation to a severe loss suffered by one major corporation.

Some of the sharpest gains were scored by the manufacturers of paper, bakery products, dairy products, office machinery, tires, auto equipment (but not the cars themselves), rugs, and rayons.

Here is the table released by the FTC showing the percentage rate of return on investment after taxes in 1940 and 1947, industry by industry.

Industry	1940	1947
Primary smelting and refining nonferrous metals	9.1	14.9
Blast furnaces, steel works, rolling mills	8.1	11.0

May Be 'Poison'

Annual Wage Plan Called No Cure-All

The guaranteed annual wage plan "is not a cure all" and "might be a poison if hastily taken in large doses."

This is the conclusion reached in a report by Alexander Calder and James L. Knipe to be issued today by the National Planning Association, 800 21st st. nw., which is described as a nonprofit, nonpolitical organization devoted to planning.

Calder is president and board chairman of the Union Bag & Paper Corp. Knipe set up an economic research staff in Honolulu for the Hawaii Employers Council before joining Union Bag & Paper early in 1947 as assistant to the president.

Promise More Security

The Latimer Report to the President in 1947, a two-year study, found that guaranteed wages, though not a panacea, promised more security to workers in many fields, advocated a hands-off policy by government, and urged labor and management to cooperate to spread the plan.

Calder and Knipe, who studied economic effects of sudden and widespread use of the annual wage plan, stated as their conclusions that it would be "better to rely on other techniques to improve work or income stability" in sections of industry which have fluctuating production periods.

In steadier sections of industry, they conclude, "the limited experience to date indicates that the guaranteed annual wage has real possibilities, and deserves careful consideration by top management."

The authors pose the question, "What would be the consequences if nearly all concerns employing more than 100 persons and in existence more than five years were to set up guaranteed annual wage plans within a relatively short time?"

Adapted To Individuals

In answer they say that plans carefully adapted to each individual company's situation "would stand a good chance of being useful," and might "aid in leveling off depressions and booms—without destroying investment enthusiasm."

If, however, the plans were imposed on management by labor or government, businessmen would lose a lot of their investment enthusiasm, and enough less would probably be spent on company improvements "to overbalance substantially added payments to workers." The guarantee plans would then exercise "a net retardative effect," Calder and Knipe say.

They also say that with guarantee plans business firms might hesitate to increase their employes in boom times, thereby causing prices to rise sharply at the peak and to drop very quickly when the downturn began.

Express Fear of Panic

With fixed costs higher because of addition of wage guarantees, the report observes, pressure would exist to maintain operations, even at a loss, so as to yield as much as possible toward th large fixed cost. This would help sustain production and employment levels, but price cutting might cause large quick losses and cause a panic.

The guarantee plan tends to immobilize the Nation's labor force, the report observed, discouraging workers from shifting to new or growing industries without such plans and encouraging them to remain in dying industries.

The report calls attention to the 196 guarnteed wage plans in effect at the end of 1945, and the reasons for discontinuance of 55 others.

India Observes Year of Freedom

New Delhi, India, Aug. 15 (AP).—Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharal Nehru closed celebrations of independence week in India tonight in a broadcast urging Indians to "pledge themselves anew to the service of the motherland and for the ideals of Gandhi."

He said he preferred not to talk of conflicts and wars on this auspicious day," the first anniversary of Indian independence, but he asked India to be ready for 'every emergency or contingency . . . in view of rumors of a greater conflict all over the world."

The Ambassador And The Law

The focus of diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia has suddenly switched from the assertion of American rights in Berlin to the assertion of American rights in America. On this issue there can be only one stand. In elementary self-respect the United States must insist on observance of its rights on the part of foreign officials and on reparation and punishment in case of transgression. Such an answer should have been returned to the egregious Ambassador Panyushkin when he called at the State Department on Saturday and for an hour and 40 minutes harangued Undersecretary Lovett on nonexistent Soviet rights to the custody and control of Mme. Kosenkina. It is now incontrovertibly clear that the Russian school teacher wants neither Soviet custody nor Soviet control. She demonstrated this by throwing herself out of a window in the Consulate General in New York City where she was confined, and she is entitled under international law to the American protection which she has been given and which Mr. Lovett has reaffirmed.

What the Ambassador is contesting are two American rights: first, the right of the United States to afford asylum, if it wishes, to foreigners on American soil who ask for American protection; and, secondly, the jurisdiction of the United States over foreign nationals in the United States. The basic issue is American sovereignty in America itself. It is a fantastic state of affairs that this should be called in question, and the challenge must be met without hesitation and with the utmost firmness. It is as if the United States has a semicolonial status in the eyes of the Soviet Union. Whatever the Soviet thinks is its own business, but when it acts in America on such an assumption, a swift and sharp correction is required. There is no sort of extraterritoriality on American soil for Soviet citizens.

It is our conclusion that for sheer brass the Ambassador deserves a medal, and has put himself in a position where he can no longer be considered persona grata. He has been persona non grata to a lot of Americans, we fancy, since last Tuesday, when he called a press conference, and made scathing and gratuitous remarks about a member of the American Congress, Representative Mundt. Mr. Mundt, even though he is horning in on the case, had nothing to do with it, and neither has the spy hearing.

The United States has been very patient in finding out the facts on the Kosenkina case. But not the slightest cooperation has been had from the New York Consulate General. There is only one blank that still has to be filled in, and Consul General Lomakin has the key. It is the letter that Mme. Kosenkina wrote to the Consul General from Reed Farm, N. Y. Molotov says she was chloroformed and taken to Reed Farm by a "White guard gangster organization." Last Saturday, at an extraordinary press conference, Mr. Lomakin read parts of Mme. Kosenkina's letter, and made it appear that it was an appeal to rescue her from the "clutches" of the "White Russians." Mme. Kosenkina retorts from her hospital bed that the letter was a renunciation of her Soviet citizenship. The truth could be established by production of the letter. This would prove whether or not Mme. Kosenkina was taken to Reed Farm under duress, as Molotov and his representatives in America allege. If this can be proved, then charges should be preferred against the abductors.

It is already known that in a dime novel exploit Lomakin and his minions in the Consulate General snatched Mme. Kosenkina from Reed Farm. In taking the law into his own hands Lomakin is equally chargeable with a violation of American law, and there is nothing in the rights of foreign officials to prevent the responsible Soviet parties from being haled before the courts for kidnaping. There is no immunity for consuls and consulates from visit and search and prosecution even under Soviet interpretation of international law. After Lomakin and his underlings have been brought to trial, and the case disposed of in court, they should be given their marching orders, and the Consulate General closed down—until reciprocity in consular arrangements is forthcoming in the Soviet Union.

It is time that the United States assumed the initiative in this matter, instead of allowing the Soviet to cover up its wrongdoing by intimidation. Already we have suffered ourselves to receive a protest by Molotov, reiterating the blatant untruths of his representatives in America, and subjecting ourselves to the indignity of making a conciliatory response. It is as if the Soviet Union were injured. The demonstrable fact is that the United States has been injured, and its institutions held in contumely. Our own honor requires action, "face" with other countries demands it, and the very excesses of Molotov's note shows that he expects it.

The precedents are ample for prompt action against foreign officials who abuse American hospitality and interfere in America's domestic affairs. In 1793 the Citizen Genet, coming here as the first representative of the French Republic, was blacklisted for dubious behavior, though the government of the day allowed him to stay in America in a private capacity because the advent of a rival revolutionary party in Paris would have insured his dispatch on the guillotine. In 1888 the British Ambassador, Lord Sackville, was handed his passports. His offense was merely an act of imprudence arising from the receipt of a fraudulent letter in election year asking his advice on the way to cast a ballot. Even the Ambassador's answer was indirect, but Lord Sackville had to go, nevertheless. In mid-1941 the United States closed down all the Axis consulates in America because they were sources of Axis propaganda. The United States was not then at war, but this abuse of American institutions was beyond American stomaching. Lomakin's offense, compounded by the Ambassador, was much worse than any of these precedents.

It is as certain as certain can be that the Soviet Union would put the worst construction on American hesitation. It knows that Lomakin and Panyushkin have blundered. That is the reason that Molotov tried to beat the State Department to the diplomatic draw with his ridiculous and highhanded demarche—an effort, if ever there was one, at bullying. If this Government does not regain the initiative, Moscow will think that America is simply pusillanimous. The reaction on the negotiations about negotiations over Germany in Moscow is likely, in consequence, to be disastrous. It will be thought that the United States is afraid, and it is fear and weakness on which Soviet diplomacy capitalize. Timing is all important in relations with Moscow, and nothing is worse than to be paralyzed when action is necessary, and bold when prudence is indicated.

Joseph D. Harrington

One of the most highly regarded officials in our memory of District of Columbia officialdom has just died. He was Lieut. Joseph D. Harrington, hack inspector between 1925 and 1930 and again from 1941 till he retired last March 1. "Uncle Joe" was known all over the city, and every cab driver in town went into mourning when the news swept through the cab ranks that he was dead. He was a father to the cab drivers, stern when there was any dereliction, but always just and understanding. An indication of their affection and esteem for "Uncle Joe" was the presentation to him on his retirement of a handsome Dodge. Almost every one of the 7000 drivers in the city contributed a dollar or more, and the surplus came to $2000, an extra gift to Lieutenant Harrington. The secret of the hold that the hack inspector had over his "boys" was very simple. He gave an example of courtesy—so much so that he was sometimes known as "Courtesy Joe." He never took the word of a passenger in any dispute without checking it. And, as he once put it, "Every job is worthy of respect, and nobody has the right to look down on a job, no matter how humble it is." This was by way of reproving those who think they have a right to push a hacker around "because he is only a cab driver." The 64-year-old hack inspector, who fell into a long illness after he had lost the wife to whom he was greatly attached, will live long in local memory. He was a worthy model of an official who regards service to the community as a pleasure as well as a duty.

Dumping Dangers

The Russians have repeatedly charged that the foreign-aid program of this country was designed not for the benefit of Europe but to provide export markets for high-priced American surpluses. We know that this malicious charge is not true, for when the program was first conceived it was honestly believed that it would entail a severe drain on American resources and add substantially to inflationary pressures by draining off scarce commodities without offsetting payments in the form of imports. That is still the situation as regards many commodities; but bumper grain crops here and greatly improved crop prospects in Europe have radically changed the situation as regards food supplies at home and export requirements.

As a result of our agricultural price support policy, it is anticipated that the Government will have to take over large surpluses of wheat and corn to prevent prices from slumping below support levels. Cotton production, too, is expected to be far above domestic consumption needs and exports at supported price levels. Consequently the temptation will be great to get rid of these embarrassing surpluses by thrusting them on countries participating in the recovery program. The director of ECA's food and agriculture division has already announced that grain exports will be "appreciably larger" than originally planned. A subsequent statement by Secretary of Commerce Sawyer that wheat exports should be substantially reduced from the level of the last two years was received with dismay by the grain trade, although it is logical to assume that the improved European crop outlook will reduce demands for American wheat.

Without doubt millions of undernourished people in Europe and other parts of the world and some Americans, too, need the food surpluses that this country is piling up in a year of record-breaking production. But let's face the facts: under the foreign aid program—generous as it is—the amount of goods that can be given away or sold under liberal loan arrangements is restricted by law. Moreover, at all times poverty and misery prevail in large parts of the world coincidental with abundance in favored regions of the globe. The United States Government has undertaken to alleviate distress in certain countries, but it does not and could not undertake to feed all the world's hungry. Although we have agreed to help a large number of European nations to increase their productive capacity by sending them foods, raw materials and capital equipment, the amount of aid allocated to the participating countries is necessarily limited, and the efficacy of that aid will depend upon the wisdom shown in apportioning it.

It may be that some countries will be more than willing to increase the imports of foodstuffs from the United States made possible by the large carryovers in prospect. But decisions regarding apportionment should not be influenced by pressures motivated by a desire to find markets for American farm products that are unsalable at artificially high supported price levels. For dollars allocated to step up purchases of foods reduce correspondingly the amount of dollars available for purchasing industrial raw materials, machinery and other commodities that may be more essential to recovery. In short, the ECA program is a foreign-aid program, not, as the Russians claim, a plan for the benefit of American producers. If it is to succeed, it must be administered solely for the purpose of building up the productive capacity of participating nations, even though that may necessitate sharing with others some goods that are in short supply and forgoing disposal of other goods that we should be more than glad to get out of overflowing granaries and warehouses.

First Year

On June 3, 1947, the British government announced its plan for the liquidation of its rule over India. There were 73 days to go. Since partition already had been decided between India and Pakistan, the task of splitting the assets and liabilities of the country was truly immense. A tear-leaf calendar was printed and copies were circulated to all officials, clerks and others engaged in the task of division. It began with the heading "73 days before Independence," and worked down to zero, the day of independence, August 15, 1947; or exactly one year ago yesterday.

Looking back, the wonder is not that there was so much confusion and conflict, but that there was not more. India is a continent of a country. The communal difficulty is unique, and was exacerbated under British rule. Plebiscites had to be held, populations removed. And, over and above all, there were the Communists, eager to fish in troubled waters, as they are doing in the India-Hyderabad dispute. To the world at large the shocking incidents accompanying the birthpangs of India and Pakistan seemed as if they engulfed the entire nation. Actually the only places affected were the East Punjab, Delhi, and some of the western districts of the United Provinces.

Perhaps the greatest trial of the first year of independence was the assassination of Mahatma Gandhi. If the assassin had been a Moslem, the convulsion would have been incalculable. But he was a Hindu fanatic, who, with a small group of like-minded Hindu terrorists, regarded Gandhi as an appeaser of the Moslem League and Pakistan. It is on this kind of appeasement on a reciprocal basis that the two countries will prosper.

Spying In Belgrade

If you are one of those who are agitated, as many reasonable people no doubt are, by the revelations and allegations concerning Soviet espionage in the United States, there may be some comfort in a dispatch from Belgrade by Mr. Homer Bigart. It shows that the conspiratorial genius of the Communist Party and the Kremlin may as easily defeat as advance their purposes.

Mr. Bigart's dispatch was concerned with the correspondence between the Communists of Belgrade and those of Moscow, which preceded the recent breach between Marshal Tito and the Kremlin. In an introduction to this correspondence the Tito faction of the party now discloses that the real origin of the breach was the effort of the Kremlin to organize a spy ring within the Belgrade regime itself. This apparently was at a time when Marshal Tito and his henchmen were devout adherents of the party line whose fidelity and orthodoxy had not been questioned. The Yugoslav government, according to its apologia, was prepared to turn over to the Kremlin whatever information was desired. In spite of this the Soviet Ambassador to Belgrade and other Russian agents attempted to organize an underground within the government and within the Communist Party itself. One of these agents, in attempting to entice a government cipher clerk into the network, is supposed to have assured him "Tito is all right for the moment," evidently with the emphasis on the last three words. The implication, therefore, was that one of these days Tito might not be all right.

Thus the net effect of the conspiracy was to warn Tito of what was in the wind and to enable him to act accordingly. When the showdown came, Tito was fully prepared for it, and the Cominform could do no more than issue its bulls of excommunication and hurl its anathemas. Similarly, there is every reason to believe that any benefits in the way of information the Kremlin may have obtained from its spies and obedient stooges in the United States has been fully offset by the terrible mess that they have now got into.

Mr. Meyer's Reporting

It now becomes apparent that a publishers' conspiracy is afoot to abolish the ancient profession of reporting, or at least to replace reporters with reporting publishers.

There had been evidence afloat for some time of the existence of a publishers' ring engaged in subversive activities. Now the matter has been substantiated. Obviously drunk with the feeling of power, the publishers' conspiracy has come out in the open, brazenly flaunting its wares, if not its motives, before the public eye.

This letter is merely fair warning that the entire plot will be laid before the Thomas Committee as another example of the most un-American of activities. If we fail of a hearing there, there is always the Ferguson Committee, to say nothing of Dr. Steelman, the NLRB or maybe even Clare Hoffman.

While all will concede that it is the American privilege of publishers to place an oppressive heel on the necks of reporters, what curious neurotic streak is causing publishers to pay the oppressed the going wage rate while depriving them of the tools of their livelihood? The next step is obviously payment of overtime whenever a publisher steals a reporter's by-line. Reporters are beginning to wonder whether, like the buffalo, they are on the road to extinction, with time and a half for Sunday.

It must be admitted that the whole subject seemed academic to me for a while. I chuckled on August 11, upon reading The Washington Post to find that Mr. Ball was buried in the want ads while Mr. Meyer and his assistant, a man named Jones, screamed the tidings of American abundance from page one.

This mirth quickly curdled, however, upon finding that the same thing had occurred in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Mr. Knebel, a reporter of some parts—part work and part play—was on page 8, next to the Buick ad, with the story of the glad farm crop, while Messrs. Meyer and Jones were on page one with a similar glowing description of nature.

Where will it end? Will Sunday editors, the cloistered priests of the editorial writers' sanctum, and business managers surrender to the urge to get a by-line on page one? For years now, the society lady writers have sought to invade the reporters' field and the baseball columnists have tried their hand from time to time. It is obvious now that the publishers themselves have had a sinister hand in this invasion.

Beware, my friend, reporters yet may rise, break their shackles, and summon the publishers to a reckoning. Just whose newspaper business is this, anyway?

"Featherbedding"

Your instructive editorial of August 11, "Featherbedding," moves me to suggest that a sound and workable solution to problems growing out of improved and more economical processes and machines in factory, construction or elsewhere might be the recognition by all parties that the income of a business arises solely from the sale of its products or services; that its total income comes from its customers.

Wage payments, interest, upkeep and all other group charges bear an established relation to total income.

Improved processes or more use of machinery may change these relations. A fair contract with an individual workman or with a group might readily be related to a given percentage of income with the understanding that that percentage remain constant and the total to be distributed be subject to recalculation every three or six months.

This is not profit-sharing but incentive participation in the sum received from customers, thus giving all concerned a valid incentive to reduce costs of production.

"Faulty Hiring"

It is my earnest hope that every reader of The Washington Post will scan your editorial, "Faulty Hiring" of August 7, as well as Mr. Marquis Childs' column (noting particularly the concluding paragraph) of July 23.

Smeared Reputations

I glanced through a recent item in The Washington Post concerning the raid of a bordello in New York and one in Los Angeles. According to the write-up it appears that the patrons of these places included names of diamond merchants, big industrialists, furriers, movie magnates and top dignitaries of radio and motion pictures. The authorities in charge rightly ordered the list of names sealed because obviously "their publication would be ruinous to the private lives and reputation of these people."

The questions that come to my mind are: By the grace of whose judgment must the private lives and reputation of some people be protected from damaging smears while others of no less importance, except perhaps in different lines of endeavor, are denied this same protection? By virtue of what right are the industrialists and Hollywood magnates spared humiliating public notoriety while the private life and reputation of some lesser-light (the scientist, the Hollywood script-writer or director, or even the lowly Federal employe) isn't worth a tinker's damn? Does it boil down to whether your reputation happens to be in the hands of a judge or in the hands of congressional investigating committee?

Prefabricated Housing

The obvious engineering answer to the housing problem lies in industrialized, i.e. shop fabricated housing. Failure to adopt a realistic program can be laid directly at the door of our inflated real estate interests, conventional builders and suppliers and their political cohorts traveling under the rationalizing banner of fighting socialism.

The recently passed, emasculated T-E-W bill is unrealistic because it does not make adequate provision for remedying the materials and skilled labor bottlenecks in our conventional construction industry. Unless these shortages are first remedied it will only add to already astronomical building costs which are primarily responsible for the reluctance of private capital investors to enter the vital low rental housing field. The only quickly available remedies are to use shop fabrication methods which require very little highly skilled labor and the allocation, voluntary or mandatory, of materials from nonessential building and manufactures.

Although there are multitudinous designs in the prefabrication field, in my engineering judgment the one of major promise is a simple adaptation of well established commercial practice, i.e. a building whose load bearing frame is an all-welded steel structure with walls, roofs and flooring composed of shop manufactured, simply attached, modular size panels constructed of a universal selection of building material, both modern and conventional. Panels of this type are presently being manufactured for multi-storied steel frame buildings which, at one-tenth of the weight and one-third the thickness give weatherproofness, insulative and fireproofness values equal to 12 inches of conventional masonry construction.

The connotations of such figures are immense in savings of labor, material, money and time. The shop and erection labor is already largely available in the hundreds of thousands of wartime trained mechanics from our ship-building, aircraft and munitions industries, or new men can be adequately trained for production line work in a month at most as compared to the slow recruiting and four years apprenticeships of conventional home-building mechanics. The welding equipment, metal-working machinery, war plants suitable for conversion to housing manufacture, etc., are already largely available from war surplus in many localities. The modular construction permits an almost infinite variety of floor plans at little if any extra cost. This coupled with the very large variety of well-tested modern and/or conventional insulating and finishing materials that can be used in construction of the panels avoids the rigidity and monotony of many types of prefabrication. Materials bottlenecks are likewise lessened by the large variety of materials that can be used in this type of construction.

The primary remedy for the bottleneck in such a home-building program is in a simple allocation program for the steel home-building industry. Our steel industry has fought mandatory allocation, claiming it will equitably allocate the steel production of this country. Somehow I doubt it. The Voluntary Steel Allocations Board recently made the magnanimous "drop in the bucket" allocation of 29,000 tons of steel to our steel housing industry to build 10,000 homes. This allocation toward meeting our number two priority national domestic problem comprises an infinitesimal fraction (0.00032) of our 90 million-ton per year steel productivity. One has only to take a short trip to see where goes our other 89,971,000 tons of steel—to building racetracks, football stadia, unneeded supermarkets, "pork barrel" public works, automobiles, etc., all of immensely less priority than homes for our ill housed. At the rate of 2.9 tons of steel per house allowed by the allocation board our pleasure automobile industry alone is consuming steel and/or iron convertible into steel at a rate that would produce 2,500,000 new housing units per annum.

The Last Judgment

OUR PLUNDERED PLANET, by Fairfield Osborne. (Little, Brown, $2.50.)
ROAD TO SURVIVAL, by William Vogt. (William Sloane Associates, $4.)

Here we have two excursions into eschatology, each by a celebrated naturalist. Leaving the potentialities of atomic warfare entirely out of account, each foresees a day, not too comfortably distant, when human life, and perhaps life of any sort, will become impossible on this earth. The argument in each case is pretty much the same: The reckless and prodigal habits of homo sapiens, especially in the civilized state, have been steadily destroying the life-giving resources of the planet, and his destructive powers have been enormously increased by the new toys he has made for himself and by the rate at which he is able to multiply his kind. In other words, the principal occupation of mankind, at any rate, since the beginning of the historical epoch, seems to have been the making of deserts. We are now making them on a vaster scale and more rapidly than ever, although there are no longer any new lands left to which the human race can migrate when it has rendered the earth totally uninhabitable. The evidence assembled by the respective authors in support of their thesis is from fields in which I have little competence but most of it has the air of plausibility. Neither, to be sure, is writing from a point of calm scientific detachment, but then I take it that the purpose of these startling cadenzas on Gabriel's trump is to shock us into some realization of necessity of radical efforts to conserve whatever natural resources remain.

Mr. Osborne's argument, which is the more straightforward though perhaps a bit old-fashioned, is predicated on the concept of an economy of nature. It is, it seems, the human disposition to disturb this economy which is very largely resonsible for all the ills that inflict us, including wars, crime and insanity. The basic evil, apparently, is the ultra-social disposition of our race. Everywhere, the story of civilized man has been much the same—the tendency to congregate in numbers far too great for the soil to support, and also the immemorial attraction of settled and cultivated lands for hungry invaders. Against these tendencies the arts of agriculture are apparently impotent. The pressures of population make it impossible to return to the soil all that is taken from it; and both factors together have contributed to the vast deforestations that everywhere have been principal causes of soil erosion. The ruined terraces and empty cities of Babylon and Syria testify not only to an original fertility but also to some knowledge among the ancient inhabitants of the means of preserving it. But now, save in patches where the walls have held fast through the centuries or where the trees have escaped, it is all a desolation of limestone rock. In China and India where the soil has for the longest period been intelligently managed, the problem of restoration long ago became hopeless and famine became a permanent phenomenon. In the Mediterranean basin—the "fertile crescent" as Breasted called it—the story is scarcely less tragic. European Greece, the land of the fig and the olive and of beautiful cities is little more than a collection of barren hills. On the far shore of the Aegean the harbors of what was once Ionia are choked with silt. The vineyards of Northern Africa are buried under sand. In Egypt where crops have already been forced dangerously by artificial irrigation and continuous planting, the life-giving Nile itself is now threatened by the deforestation of their distant watersheds.

But it is our own continent of North America, where an almost incalculable wealth of woodlands, grassland and water sources have been squandered in less than a half dozen generations and where about half the arable or potentially arable soil has been drained into the ocean that provides the most harrowing chapter. Such, observes Mr. Osborne bitterly, is the history of the country which is now called upon to exhaust its remaining productivity in an effort to feed the world. Here he is supported in grim and relentless detail by Mr. Vogt, who explains what the American standard of living has cost in the way of timber, topsoil and animal and marine life. His gallery of land-murderers includes the poineer, the planter, the fur trapper, the railroad builder, the lumberjack, the cattleman, the sheepherder, the cash-crop farmer, the marginal cultivator, the merchant, the urban industrialist, the public utilities lawyer and the publisher. It also includes, of course, the classical economist; it even includes Aristotle, whose law of the excluded middle has prevented us from understanding how land can be and yet not be, and old Hippocrates, whose followers, it seems, everywhere are complicating the problem of population pressure on a diminishing food supply.

Mr. Vogt, in short, is a pious Malthusian who has a considerable gift of sardonic epigram, and his book has much more literary finish than Mr. Osborne's. Mr. Vogt is, if possible, the more pessimistic of the two, but he is also less vague about what we must do and how quickly if the race is to be rescued from universal starvation. Bad as may be the plight of these United States, that of Latin America is worse, Africa is from a human point of view the poorest continent of all, and Australia whose ravishers, it seems, have done an even better job than ours, is in danger of being blown out to sea. Soviet Russia is indeed a land of vast and almost untouched resources, if you think in terms of metals, but not if you think of soil. But after all, as Mr. Vogt observes, you can't eat tungsten.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The Meaning Of Kosenkina

THE CASE of Madame Kosenkina is undeniably good melodrama, except that it is so lurid that a good professional cloak and dagger writer would be obliged to tone it down to make it even faintly credible. Even so, the Kosenkina episode has a real meaning, a meaning which can be very simply illustrated by one fact. That is that there are now, in the western zones of Germany and Austria alone, some hundreds of thousands of Soviet citizens who have obeyed precisely the same impulse as moved Madame Kosenkina to her desperate expedient.

These people are united only in one desire—to stay out of the Soviet Union. They are of two sorts. The larger category consists of those Soviet nationals who, as the war drew to a close, found themselves to the west of the advancing Russian armies and, who, by one shift or another, managed to avoid being sent back to their native land. The smaller category, itself astonishingly large, consists of those Russian soldiers and civilian officials who since the war have seized some oportunity to flee from the Soviet zones of occupation to the western zones.

In this second category, as first reported in this space, there are at least 5000 Russians. One competent authority estimates that the real number, in all the western occupation zones, may well be 15,000 or even 20,000 ranging from Russian privates to generals and top bureaucrats and administrators. In the early years of the war, this flight west from the Soviet zones of occupation was almost a flood. About a year ago, the Soviet authorities began to take stern measures to dam the flow. Soviet occupation troops were confined to well-guarded barracks. Families were returned to the Soviet Union as potential hostages. By such measures, the flood has been reduced to a trickle.

YET IT IS DEEPLY significant that so great a number should risk their lives to escape the iron grip of the Soviet system. Moreover, this mass migration from the Soviet zones merely served to swell, by a small percentage, the ranks of those Soviet citizens who have, by hook or by crook, managed to avoid returning to the Soviet Union since the war.

There is no possible way to estimate the total number of these people, simply because they have been able to keep out of the Soviet Union only by successfully camouflaging their identities. But estimates range as high as half a million, and certainly the total is well up in six figures.

When the war ended, Soviet nationals in Germany, Austria and elsewhere in Europe numbered in the millions. Many were soldiers in the Nazi-sponsored Vaslov Army, which engaged the Red Army in some of the bloodiest and most terrible battles of the war. More were collected by the Rosenberg organization which the Nazis operated during the war in Kiev, Smolensk, and Minsk. Some came to Germany voluntarily, more were kidnapped by the Nazis as slave labor or because they had certain useful special skills.

AS A RESULT of the Yalta agreement, many of these people were herded into railway cars and sent East. Most of these are now either dead, or in the slave labor camps in Central Asia or Siberia or in the dread Kolyma gold mines. The repatriation policy was stopped by the Western authorities in mid-1946, largely because it resulted in too many mass suicides. But even before that, tens of thousands of Soviet citizens had managed to escape repatriation.

As the war ended, a mass forging of papers by Soviet nationals took place. As a result, there are now certainly thousands and thousands of Soviet citizens in the displaced persons camps, disguised as Balts or Poles or Turks or Armenians or what not. And many thousands more are living in the cities, often hiding under two or three false identities at once.

Among these people there are many Soviet citizens far more interesting and distinguished than the nervous, middle-aged teacher, Madame Kosenkina. Their names and histories cannot be revealed, simply because they are always in danger of kidnaping or reprisals by the MVD or by the German and Austrian Communists. But they include professors, scientists, generals, journalists, administrators, men who have achieved real distinction in the Soviet state itself. These people live somehow from day to day, without the legal right to exist, like so many ghosts. It is strange that no better way has been found to make use of their skills and their knowledge.

CLEARLY IT WILL BE unfortunate if the "case of the defenstrated teacher," however as entertaining melodrama, should be allowed to obscure the vastly more serious issues now being negotiated in Moscow. Yet the Kosenkina case implies a obvious conclusion. This conclusion is far more cogently suggested by the fact that hundreds of thousands of Soviet citizens should choose the half-life of fugitives or displaced persons rather than return to their own country. For it is increasingly evident that behind the imposing, monolithic facade of the Soviet state, there is a deep inner weakness.

Summary of Truman's Statement Reviewing 1949 Budget

By The Associated Press

Text of the summary of President Truman's statement reviewing the fiscal 1949 budget:

BUDGET receipts for the fiscal year 1949 are now estimated at 40.7 billion dollars, 3.7 billion dollars less than was estimated last January. This lower estimate of receipts reflects the impact of the Revenue Act of 1948. It assumes a continuation throughout the fiscal year of approximately the present level of incomes.

Budget expenditures are estimated at 42.2 billion dollars, an increase of 2.6 billion dollars above the estimate made in January.

On the basis of these estimates, an operating deficit of 1.5 billion dollars for the fiscal year 1949 is indicated. However, the Economic Cooperation Act required the transfer of three billion dollars of the 1948 surplus to pay part of the 1949 expenditures under the act. This results in an adjusted surplus of 1.5 billion dollars for 1949.

TABLE I

Budget Totals (in millions)

	1947 Actual	1948 Actual	1949 Estimated Budget Jan. '48	Revision Aug. '48

Adjusted surplus	...	5,419	...	1,455

1. Budget receipts and expenditures in this review exclude payments into the Treasury by wholly owned Government corporations for retirement of capital stock or for dividends. Such transactions, previously included in budget totals, simply inflate both receipts and expenditures by equal amounts. They do not represent operating costs, nor do they affect the size of the budget surplus or deficit.

DURING the past three years I have repeatedly taken action to enforce sound and prudent management of our fiscal affairs, in order to curb inflationary pressures, to safeguard our financial position, and to permit reduction of the public debt.

Nevertheless, as we enter the fiscal year 1949 we can foresee only a "paper" surplus of 1.5 billion dollars. This should be a sobering thought for all of us. Such a surplus—even if it were real, rather than produced merely by a bookkeeping shift from one year to another—would provide a financial margin far too small in view of present-day uncertainties and the necessity of reducing the debt during periods of prosperity.

In the message accompanying the 1949 budget I stated that the budget "demonstrates alike the heavy responsibilities of our international position and our concern for the maintenance of a sound domestic economy." I also pointed out that "our budget must remain high until we have met our international responsibilities and can see the way clear to a peaceful and prosperous world."

Events of the past six months have added emphasis to these facts. We have been compelled to reexamine our requirements for national defense. At the same time, the Federal Government, like the private citizen, has had to meet rising prices. In an effort to keep benefits, services and salaries in step with the mounting cost of living, the Congress has enacted increases in veterans' pensions, other veterans' benefits, grants to States for public assistance, Federal salary scales and other programs.

EVENTS of the last six months have also emphasized that we cannot plan our fiscal policy on the basis of a single year only. Programs already authorized for the national military establishment will require a higher level of expenditures for the fiscal year 1950. Expenditures for the European Recovery Program will reach their peak in the same year. These increases cannot be met next year by the convenient bookkeeping device of a three-billion-dollar transfer.

During the fiscal year, 1948, the debt was reduced from 258 billion dollars ot 252 billion dollars. On the basis of present estimates no further debt reduction can be achieved this year. Indeed, as long as the present fiscal outlook prevails, we may face an expanding debt—even in a period of high national income when financial prudence clearly would dictate continuing debt retirement.

It is possible that further inflationary developments may produce higher revenues than those now estimated—revenues might even rise above expenditures. Even if this should prove true, however, it is harldy sound fiscal policy to rely on inflation as a method of balancing the budget.

To cut Government revenues in the face of expanding national and international requirements, and at a time of increasing inflationary pressures, was obviously a grave error.

IN THIS review prospective Government outgo has so far been expressed in terms of estimated expenditures. It is also necessary to consider the appropriations and other authorizations enacted by the Congress, which permit Government agencies to incur obligations. Expenditures occur when obligations are paid; they do not necessarily coincide with congressional authorizations in any given fiscal year.

The Eightieth Congress in its second session reduced annual definite appropriations, relating to both the fiscal years 1948 and 1949, by 2.7 billion dollars below the amount which I submitted. For several reasons, however, this figure does not realistically reflect the results of congressional actions. It relates to only one segment of the budgetary actions of the session. It ignores types of authorizations other than appropriations, such as loan and contract authorizations, which the Congress increased more than one billion dollars over my recommendations. It does not allow, of course, for the supplemental appropriations for 1949 which will be required before the close of the year.

A better perspective may be obtained from the following:

I submitted for the fiscal year 1949 specific requests for appropriations and other forms of authorizations totaling 36.3 billion dollars. Congressional enactments to date, together with permanent appropriations, amount to 34.6 billion dollars, or 1.7 billion dollars less than requested. These congressional reductions in authorizations will have to be restored for some items, such as veterans' allowances and postal expenditures. Furthermore, it will be necessary to provide appropriations to carry out several laws enacted by the Congress for which it made no financial provision—such as the increases in Federal employes' salaries and veterans' pensions. Finally, a number of programs, such as international aid, will require additional appropriations. In all, it is now estimated that it will be necessary later this year to request 3.6 billion dollars as supplemental appropriations.

Budget Figures Compared

Truman Says Nation Faces $1.5 Billion Deficit in 1949

spending total "at least $1,200,000,000 beyond a reasonable amount based on action of the Eightieth Congress." And revenues, Bridges said, can be "conservatively" estimated at more than 44 billion dollars.

By benefit of the Millikin amendment—a legislative device which transfers three billion dollars of this year's foreign-aid spending into last year's budget—the total outlays will be 38 billion dollars, Bridges said.

Mr. Truman declared fewer billions from taxes mean an "operating deficit" of $1,545,000,000, compared with the record-smashing surplus of $8,400,000,000 in the fiscal year ended June 30.

"No further reduction in the total debt will be possible in 1949," he said. Instead, the 253-billion-dollar national debt may start rising again, after a six-billion-dollar reduction last year.

Mr. Truman's statement called the Republican maneuver which shifts three billion dollars of this year's foreign aid spending to last year's budget a "convenient bookkeeping device." The resulting surplus, he said, is "a paper surplus."

The President called the overall change in the Nation's fiscal picture a "sharp reversal" and said it "eliminates one of the principal forces that have been restraining inflation.

"As long as the present fiscal outlook prevails, we may face an expanding debt—even in a period of high national income when financial prudence would dictate continuing debt retirement."

This is the broad pattern of change from the outlook presented in Mr. Truman's January budget message.

Federal spending will be $42,203,000,000, a jump of $2,609,000,000.

Receipts will be $40,658,000,000, a drop of $3,744,000,000.

The result: An "operating" deficit of $1,545,000,000, instead of the foreseen surplus of $4,800,000,000.

"As we look ahead," the President's review added, "it is clear that our national and international responsibilities make impossible any sharp reduction in Government expenditures in 1950—indeed it is likely that there will be some increase.

"It is plain, therefore, that the ill-timed tax reduction of last spring has left the Government facing a period of deficit financing."

Sixty-two cents out of every tax dollar, the budget showed, now goes into national defense, veterans' programs, and foreign policy commitments.

National defense costs will be $12,140,000,000 up $1,500,000,000 from last year; foreign aid and other international outlays are $7,010,000,000; veterans' benefits will cost $6,791,000,000.

In estimating the Government's tax revenues, Mr. Truman assumed that the personal income of Americans would stay at the peak level reached in June, 212 billion dollars.

Actually, high prices, profits and wages are sending the personal income figure steadily up, so that greater tax revenues can be expected. Mr. Truman said they might even go so high as to exceed Federal spending in spite of the lower tax rates.

"Even if this should prove true, however, it is hardly sound fiscal policy to rely on inflation as a method of balancing the budget," the President said.

Mr. Truman replied in advance to expected Republican claims of money-saving cuts in the appropriations he asked last January. There are still $3,600,000,000 in supplemental appropriations which must be approved, he said. And he added them into his budget total.

Congressional slashes in his specific requests added up to $1,700,000,000, the President estimated. But cuts like those in veterans' allowances and postal costs will have to be restored, he said.

More Appropriations Seen

Further, several spending authorizations for which Congress failed to vote the money will need appropriations. These include increases in Federal workers' pay and veterans' pensions.

And finally, he said, a money-bill of $1,500,000,000 will be needed to round out the Marshall Plan to June 30, 1949. Congress authorized him to use up the whole 5-billion-dollar recovery fund by April 2, if necessary. Mr. Truman said, in effect: It will be necessary.

Following, in summary, are some of the major items in Mr. Truman's report on what is happening in Government spending:

National Defense

Expenditures are $12,140,000,000, a rise of $1,115,000,000 over the January estimate and almost $1,500,000,000 over the actual outlay last year. Even so, it doesn't include universal training, which Mr. Truman asked of Congress but didn't get.

The 70-group Air Force bill, which Mr. Truman didn't ask, will boost aircraft purchases by 520 million dollars.

International

Expenditures are estimated at 7 billion dollars, the same as in January, for foreign aid and international affairs. This includes the $1,500,000,000 in supplemental funds for the April, May and June program of the Economic Cooperation Administration.

Other foreign outlays: Greek-Turkish aid, 385 million dollars, up $181,000,000, from January estimates; China aid, $359 million dollars, up 181 million dollars, from January; Occupied areas, $1,280,000,000, down 70 million from January.

Veterans

Outlays for veterans are up 689 million dollars from the January estimate, to a total of $6,800,000,000. Nearly 80 per cent will be in direct cash payment of pensions and "readjustment" benefits, including education and job training. Some 942 million dollars of the total veterans' outlays, Mr. Truman said, will have to come in supplemental appropriations.

Housing

Outlays are estimated at 527 million dollars, mostly for Government purchase of guaranteed housing mortgages, as a stimulus to housing credit. But Congress rejected public housing, so total spending is down 44 million dollars from the January budget.

Education and Research

Outlays are now put at 86 million dollars of 300 million dollars less than estimated in January. Congress did not pass the proposed Federal-aid-to-schools law.

Agriculture

Aid to agriculture, including price supports, will cost 868 million dollars or 30 million dollars above January figures. Larger repayments on commodity loans will partly offset the higher outlays which result from continuing a full-scale price support program.

Natural Resources

Flood control, power, reclamation and atomic energy will take $1,600,000,000. This is 39 million dollars below the January estimate and 491 million dollars below actual 1948 costs.

Congress cut flood control appropriators by one third. It withheld funds for five projects Mr. Truman asked but voted money to start 22 projects which will show up in future years' budgets.

Transport and Communication

A bigger postal deficit boosts this item by 189 million dollars above the January estimate, to a total of $1,800,000. The post-office will run 539 million dollars in the red. Federal-aid highway building will cost 42 million dollars less than foreseen.

Outlays are 77 million dollars, a drop of 108 million dollars from what Mr. Truman asked in January. The reason: Refusal of Congress to pass the President's drastic antiinflation program.

General Government

Costs of general Government will run $1,200,000,000, about 30 million dollars above the January budget but a drop of 203 million dollars from last year's total.

Interest

Interest payments on the national debt will rise to $5,300,000,000 this year, 50 million dollars above the January estimate.

Refunds

Refunds of tax overpayments and similar items will be $2,800,000,000. This is a cost increase of 799 million dollars since January, resulting from the income tax reduction law.

She needs an Extension Telephone. Do you?

Every busy housewife can appreciate the convenience an extension telephone provides.

With an extension on the spot, you don't have to "drop everything" to run and answer the telephone. It's always at hand, ready to save you time and steps. And it may prevent you from missing calls you wouldn't want to miss.

On top of that, it's good to know that the telephone is within reach, in case of an emergency.

Why not call our Business Office today and order your extension telephone? The cost of this extra service is only a few pennies per day.

Why you can get an Extension Telephone while some folks are still waiting for telephone service

No new orders for telephone service are being held up for lack of telephone instruments. It is the need for additional central office equipment, cable and other outside plant that is temporarily holding us back. We'll be able to fill new orders for service as rapidly as those facilities can be enlarged. It's a big job, but we're working harder than ever to complete it. We don't like to keep anyone waiting for telephone service.

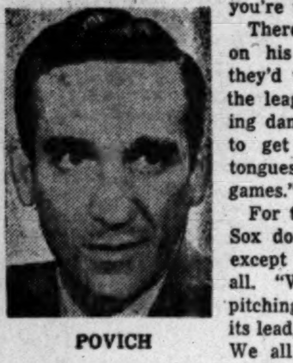
A's Whip Yankees Twice to Regain Second Place

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NAW, THE RED SOX weren't talking about the pennant, "that's Boy Scout stuff," said Joe McCarthy yesterday. "But we're doing plenty of thinking about it. After all, winning the pennant is the big idea, isn't it? But you don't have to babble about what you're trying to do."



POVICH

There wasn't any pennant talk, either, on his good Yankee teams—until after they'd won it. "But we were all reading the league standings every day and knowing damn well how many wins we needed to get home. We knew waggling our tongues wasn't going to help us win ball games."

For that matter, McCarthy says the Red Sox don't expect any help from anybody except themselves in their try to take it all. "We're not counting on the Yankees' pitching to go sour, or Cleveland to blow its lead, or the Athletics to go into a slump. We all know if we can keep winning it won't make any difference what happens to those other clubs."

HE'S BEEN IN CLOSE pennant races before. In his old National League days before he went to the Yankees and had the delightful experience of coasting home with powerful Yankee teams. "We used to have these same three-and-four-team races in the National League. If you blew a ball game, three clubs gained on you. Any mistakes cost you triple."

The Cubs accidentally beat themselves out of the 1928 pennant, McCarthy recalled. "We came East out in front and went into Boston and my pitcher, Charley Root, hit Shanty Hogan, the Braves' catcher, on the arm and put him on the shelf. Without Hogan catching for the Braves, the Cardinals came into Boston and mopped 'em up after we weakened them."

McCarthy likes the Red Sox position right now. He thinks the schedule is in his favor. "We have almost a four-week stand in Fenway Park in late August and September and they tell me the Red Sox go good in their home park," he said, as if he didn't know for a certainty that they did.

HE ISN'T PICKING any club as the team the Red Sox have to lick. "As far as I'm concerned, we'll have to lick the club that finishes second if we win the pennant," said McCarthy. "I'm not interested in who finishes second, as long as it's not us. The club we have to lick is the club we're playing against on any day, and it could be the White Sox or the Browns."

McCarthy admits a special respect for the Athletics, though. "Their pitching is solid and that Eddie Joost is a marvel. He doesn't make errors, and when you have a shortstop that don't make errors, it's wonderful. I know. I had Frankie Crosetti. The A's get more runs than they're supposed to, perhaps, but they get 'em."

He likes the comeback habits of the Athletics, too. "How about that series last month when Cleveland went into Shibe Park and thousands of fans couldn't get in. The A's dropped a double-header that day, and only about 10,000 fans showed up the next night for another double-header. The fans may have quit on the A's but they didn't quit on themselves. They knocked Cleveland off twice that night."

McCARTHY ADMITS HE'S under pressure as manager of the Red Sox. "For some reason, everywhere I manage I'm supposed to win and I'm a flop if I finish second. Joe Kuhel has the best job in the league. Clark Griffith is an understanding baseball man and knows exactly how much a manager can get out of his club. And how a club can lose ball games."

He mentioned that Stan Spence was a nice adjunct to the Red Sox. "He isn't hitting like he can, but he gives us a great try. And you don't have to worry about his playing condition. The only time this season I was mad at him he stopped me cold.

"That was after he made a needless throw to the plate that let two runners advance. When he came in to the bench, I told him 'That was a lousy throw you made,' and he said, 'Ain't I a dumb b—.' And how are you going to stay mad at a fellow like that?"

Full Program Arranged

Plaques Will Be Presented To Griffith Tuesday Night

Nat Owner Clark Griffith will be presented with a plaque from American League President Will Harridge and another from Washington baseball writers at "Griffith Night" ceremonies Tuesday.

President Truman and a host of governmental, sports and military figures will be at the stadium Tuesday to pay tribute to 78-year-old Griffith.

Final plans for the program were completed yesterday by local baseball writers, who are arranging the testimonial affair.

To accommodate the early throng, Goldman's Band will furnish music from 6:15 p. m. to 8:15, when the United States Army Band will take over.

Mr. Truman is expected at the ball park at 8:25 and will climax the occasion with a short address praising Griff's long and meritorious service in baseball.

Sports figures who will attend include members of Griff's 1924 world champions and the 1933 American League flag winners.

The Nats play the Yankees Tuesday. The game will not begin until 9:15, due to the pregame ceremonies.

Tuesday's program:

6:15—Goldman's Band.

8:15—Army Band.

8:25—Arrival of President Truman.

8:30—Baseball acrobatics by Nick Altrock and Early Wynn.

8:35—Slides depicting Griff's career in basbeall.

8:45—Introduction of dignitaries and former Washington players.

9:00—Presentation of plaques.

9:05—Address by President Truman.

9:15—Baseball: New York vs. Washington.

Bosox Throw Scare Into Nats

By William Klemm—The Washington Post

IN NINTH INNING—Boston's fighting Red Sox scored three runs in the ninth inning of yesterday's first game with the Nats at Griffith Stadium but fell one run short, the Nats winning, 5-4. At left, Johnny Pesky is safe at first on Eddie Yost's wide throw to Mickey Vernon on Pesky's bunt. Right, Ted Williams, who followed with a home run over the right field wall, crosses home plate. The umpire is Charley Berry.

Nats Win First, 5-4, Lose in Nightcap, 7-8

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

To the delight of 25,029 Griffith Stadium onlookers, the Nats and the Red Sox spent yesterday afternoon chasing each other.

Although they came mighty close when Ted Wiliams' twentieth homer of the season featured a three-run, ninth-inning rally, the Bosox couldn't catch the Griffs and lost the opener, 5-4.

In the nightcap, the Nats did manage to catch the pennant contenders at one stage, but Stan Spence's three-run homer in the fifth put the Sox out in front once more and this time they stayed there to win, 8-7.

Loss of the first game dropped the Bosox from second to third, but the Nats zoomed from seventh to sixth by splitting.

The first game was credited to Ray Scarborough, although he wasn't around at the windup. Two relief pitchers were required to halt the suddenly rambunctious Sockers and preserve Scarborough's eleventh victory.

Jack Kramer the Loser

The loss was pinned on Jack Kramer, Boston's leading flinger. He was trying for his fourteenth triumph, but what he suffered was his fourth reversal.

In losing his eleventh game of the year, Walter Masterson had no one to blame but himself in the second game. He walked seven in his five-inning stint. Boston turned four of those passes into runs.

The Sox used two of their seven hits and three Masterson walks in the first inning to jump into a 4-0 lead, which lasted until the fourth inning when Eddie Yost singled in Al Evans to tie the game.

Masterson lost his control again in the fifth and walked Williams, who was promptly singled to second by Junior Stephens. Spence then whacked his ninth homer and the Sox were back in front for keeps.

Nats Pull Up to 7-6

With some long-distance clouting, the Nats pulled up to 7-6 in the eighth. Junior Wooten's triple scored Mickey Vernon, who had doubled, and Evans followed with a triple to score Vernon.

The Bosox made it 8-6 off Earl Harrist in the first of the ninth. It was well for the Sockers that they scored that run, for the Nats flared up briefly in their last turn at bat for their seventh tally on Carden Gillenwater's triple and

Goodman Ill; Sox Fly Him Home

Removed from the first game of the doubleheader with the Nats because of stomach pains, Red Sox Rookie First Baseman Billie Goodman was flown to Boston last night and immediately hospitalized for further observation.

Dr. Ralph McCarthy, Sox physician who examined Goodman at the Boston airport before ordering him to Faulkner Hospital, reported the young athlete had "abdominal symptoms of appendicitis but it doesn't appear to be serious right now."

Copenhagen, Aug. 15 (AP).—F. Ampon, Manila, today won the men's singles title of the International tennis tournament in Copenhagen, beating his compatriot R. Deyro 7—5, 3—6, 3—6, 9—7, in a match that was greatly applauded by the spectators.

Babe Zaharias Takes National By Eight Shots

Northfield, N. J., Aug. 15 (AP).—Mrs. Mildred (Babe) Zaharias of Ferndale, N. Y., today won the Women's National Open Golf Tournament with an even 300 for 72 holes at the Atlantic City Country Club. She shot 78 on the final round.

The Babe missed a 5-foot putt on the seventy-second hole to lose $1000. A member of the Country Club offered a $1000 prize to any of the 11 professionals in the tournament who could score less than 300.

"That's the kind of game I've played," Mrs. Zaharias said. "Couldn't get a putt down. It doesn't make any difference to me, because I'd only have to give the $1000 to the Government. I'm in that kind of income bracket."

The Babe took the winner's purse of $1200. Her score was eight strokes better than second-place Betty Hicks of Detroit. Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., last year's winner, was third among the pros with 312.

Grace Lenczyk of Newington, Conn., won the amateur's first prize with a 313. Miss Lenczyk, intercollegiate women's champion, scored an 83 for the last 18 holes.

Patty Berg of Minneapolis, playing with Mrs. Zaharias and Miss Hicks, turned in her best game of the tournament. She scored a 74 for a 72-hole total of 313 and fourth place among the professionals.

Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, and Mary Wall of Menominee, Mich., scored 315s, but second place was awarded to Miss Kirk on a comparison of cards for the last nine.

Beverly Hanson of Fargo, N. Dak.) scored a 77 on the last 18 to nudge into fourth place among the amateurs with a 318.

Feller, Lemon Pitch Indians To Two Wins

Chicago, Aug. 15 (AP). — Bob Lemon pitched his seventh shutout and sixteenth victory before 45,286 persons today as the Cleveland Indians, American League leaders, swept a double-header from the Chicago White Sox, 6-2 and 8-0. Bob Feller gained his twelfth victory in the opener before Lemon held the last-place Chicagoans runless on a yield of seven singles.

Manager Lou Boudreau collected three singles and a triple for the Tribe in the first game.

Feller won his first complete game since July 11 with a yield of 11 hits. The Indians gave him a 3-0 working edge in the first inning when Larry Doby pounded Bill Wight for a base-cleaning double. Dale Mitchell and Manager Lou Boudreau used singles to drive in two more Cleveland runs in the sixth.

Doby also gave Lemon his first run in the second game. He singled Boudreau home in the fourth for Cleveland's 1-0 edge.

Boudreau paced Cleveland's swatting with two triples and five singles in 10 trips during the two games. Jim Hegan, Cleveland catcher, hit three doubles in the second game.

The Tribe now has won 12 of 14 games this season against Chicago.

He's Thrown for a Loss

Gambino Can't Understand Eligibility Case, Hopes It's Mistake, Wants to Play for Terps

Lu Gambino, one of the Nation's leading scorers last year with an average of eight yards a rush, yesterday felt as if he had been tackled by all 11 men of the opposing team.

"Why?" muttered the crestfallen Maryland halfback when he read The Washington Post and learned that the president of the Southern Conference had said he is ineligible to play football at Maryland this autumn.

William Couper, of VMI, president of the conference, said Gambino has already played three years of varsity football; that he has been "marked off the list . . . is through in every respect . . . the rules say a man can play three years and no more."

"Of course, Maryland can appeal," Couper said. "In that case, I would merely turn it over to the conference's executive committee. They know the rules as well as I do."

At his fraternity house in College Park, Gambino still clung to the hope that it was all a mistake in interpreting conference rules and that he would be able to play for the Terps this fall.

His coach, Jim Tatum, said that he interpreted the conference eligibility rules as meaning "any boy whose participation was affected by the war is allowed to play all four years as a varsity man."

Gambino played varsity ball in 1942, was in the service until 1946, when he was discharged. He played football for Maryland the past two years.

Gambino was hesitant about discussing his football future. He made it clear, however, that he wanted, above everything else, to play football for Maryland this fall. He is on the draft list of the Cleveland Browns of the All-America Conference and the Chicago Bears of the National Football League.

The Browns, champions of the ACC, twice tried to lure Gambino last year. He told them each time he planned to finish out his collegiate career at Maryland this year although his class was graduated in 1946.

Gambino enrolled at Maryland at the suggestion of George Halas, owner-coach of the Bears. Halas watched Gambino when Lu was making a name for himself at Cicero (Ill.) High. When Lu was discharged from the Air Forces, Halas suggested that he enroll at Maryland where Halas' friend, Clark Shaughnessy, then was coaching.

Fan Slides Into Second, Gets 10 Days to Recover

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—A spectator who slid into second base during the second Philadelphia-New York Yankee baseball game today, was sentenced in night court to 10 days in jail.

The man, who gave his name as William Neller of Litchfield, Conn., told Judge Hyman Bushel he did it "because a man bet me $100 I wouldn't."

Neller was charged with disorderly conduct. He pleaded guilty.

Emil Sardonelli, chief of the Yankee Stadium police, told the judge Neller jumped a guard rail, raced into thediamond and disrupted the game. He said Neller fought off players who tried to chase him from the field, then refused to leave the stadium when the park police caught up with him.

Neller didn't collect his $100. The police got him first.

New York Humbled Before 72,468 Fans

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics swept a double-header from the New York Yankees today, winning the opener, 5-3, in 10 innings and the nightcap also by a 5-3 count to move back into second place in the American League pennant race.

Four singles enabled the A's to score three runs and win the opener in overtime while Mickey Guerra's bases loaded triple highlighted a four-run second-inning rally that enabled the A's to take the second game.

The largest Yankee Stadium crowd of the year, 72,468, watched the Mackmen regain second place by a full game over the Boston Red Sox, who split with Washington.

Joe DiMaggio sent the opener into overtime with a two-run homer in the ninth before the A's won in the tenth.

Tigers Beat Browns on Two Runs in 9th, 3-1

St. Louis, Aug. 15 (AP).—Singles by Hal Wagner and Eddie Mayo accounted for two runs in the top of the ninth and the Detroit Tigers downed the St. Louis Browns, 3 to 1, today.

Cliff Fannin and Freddie Hutchinson battled to a 1-1 tie until the two singles, plus a double by Hutchinson and a single by Dick Wakefield broke up the game.

The Tigers took a one-run lead in the first inning on a double by Hoot Evers with Eddie Lake on base. The Browns tied the contest in the third on three singles.

Hutchinson allowed nine hits as he turned in his eighth victory of the season against as many defeats. It was Fannin's ninth loss against eight triumphs.

Vic Wertz was hit in the head with a pitched ball in the sixth inning, but apparently was not hurt altnough Manager Steve O'Neill sent Wakefield in to run and finish the game in left field.

Snider's Homer Sparks Bums to 4-2 Victory Over Braves

Shares Honors

W. F. Pound Wins Twice At Manor

W. F. Pounder shared in a pair of victories yesterday at Manor Country Club. He teamed with N. P. Patterson, W. I. Heffelfinger and R. A. Soderberg for the 18-hole aggregate foursome with a 336—46—290. With Mrs. Pounder, he won the Mr. and Mrs. nine-hole tournament on the ladies' inside nine, 41—22—19. Runnerup in the latter tourney were Dr. and Mrs. Higgins with 42—22—20.

BETHESDA—Francis X. Donaldson advanced to the semifinals of the President's Cup tournament by defeating R. D. McNaull, 2 up. In other quarterfinal round matches Tom Manning defeated J. E. Williams, 1 up; Ray Patterson defeated Commander William Sullivan, 5 and 4; and Phil Donaldson defeated M. M. Smith, 5 and 4.

In the mixed Scotch foursome play Mrs. Ray Patterson and Gene Arnold carded an 87—23—64 victory. Second honors went to Miss Barbara Wright and Col. R. B. Oxreider, 84—18—66.

COLUMBIA—Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Woodward won the four-ball mixed foursome tourney with an 81-96 less a 33 handicap for a 144 low net. Second were Mrs. W. C. Geleng and Bill Winslow, 99, 92—191—36—155, and third Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Minnix, 92, 101—193—34—159.

KENWOOD—Mrs. J. H. Vance and R. T. Woodfield carded 87—18—69 for low net honors in the mixed Scotch foursome tournament. Second low net was scored by Mrs. William Ready and Larry Imhoff, 83—13—70, and third, Mrs. Walter Brunette and J. W. Molyneaux, 90—18—72. Low gross prize went to Mrs. Rex Howard and Nick Hollander, 81, with Mrs. Ed Widmayer and E. G. Montgomery second at 87.

PRINCE GEORGES—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fauntleroy carded 189—43—146 to win the Love Trophy in the Mr. and Mrs. tournament. Low gross honors went to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chamison who scored 178. Low net runnersup were Mr. and Mrs. William O'Brien, 193—38—155; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frownfelter, 184—28—156, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Byers, 193—34—159. Mr. and Mrs. Frownfelter also won the putting prize with 64 strokes.

CONGRESSIONAL — Professional Men defeated the Clients, 18-15, yesterday in a team match. G. V. Brumfiel won low net honors with a 78-11—67 and J. L. Geddes claimed low gross with a 74.

Four-man team low net was won by F. E. McArdle, Dr. M. P. DeVito, W. L. Shea and T. K. Wheeler with a composite score of 332-35—297. Two-man low net honors went to G. P. Given and W. N. Schoenfeld, 161-19—142.

Griffs Split With Bosox

Tom McBride's single off Joe Dobson.

Taking no chances with the power-laden Red Sox, Manager Joe Kuhel pulled Scarborough in the ninth with one away, one Boston run already in, Pesky on second and the overdue Williams at bat.

In four tries against Scarborough's offerings, Williams fanned twice and grounded out. He didn't dally against Forrest Thompson, however, driving the little left-hander's first pitch over the wall in right to score Pesky and himself and make it 5-4.

After Vern Stephens popped up, Kozar kept the Red Sox in the ball game by booting Doerr's grounder. Stan Spence, whose double had driven in Boston's first run in the fourth, was walked, and Thompson was excused in favor of Tom Ferrick.

With the tying run on second and the potential winning run on first, Jake Jones took a third strike to wind up the flareup and preserve Scarborough's victory.

Against Scarborough, the Sox got 11 of their 12 hits, while the Nats made 6 of their 7 against Kramer. Doubles by Junior Wooten and Jake Early and Eddie Yost's single brought in the first two runs in the third.

Wooten's fly to Spence scored Robertson in the sixth to make it 3-1. The last two Washington runs were scored at the expense of Tex Hughson on two walks, Ed Stewart's single and Mickey Vernon's fly in the seventh.

Sherwood, Payne Pace Fairfax Win

Walter Sherwood, Bob Payne and Tabb Wells paced league-leading Fairfax to a 10-2 decision over Vienna yesterday in an Eastern Fairfax County League game at Vienna.

Sherwood scattered eight Vienna hits while striking out nine. Payne and Wells each bashed out two doubles. The loss dropped Vienna into third place behind idle Falls Church Garage. The Garagemen are a game and a half behind Fairfax.

In other league games McLean defeated the White Sox, 5 to 2, and Falls Church routed last-place Herndon, 20 to 4. It was the eleventh straight loss for winless Herndon.

Sain Beaten As Brooklyn Gains Game

Boston, Aug. 15 (AP).—Sparked by Duke Snider's two-run homer in the opening inning, his third of the season and his first since being recalled from Montreal, the challenging Brooklyn Dodgers today gained a full game on the league-leading Boston Braves by defeating the Tribe, 4-2, before a paid audience of 28,420. It was the eleventh loss for Johnny Sain who was seeking his sixteenth triumph.

Jeff Heath slugged his fourteenth homer of the season in the sixth for Boston's second run, a long, high clout which traveled 400 feet over the fence in right center.

Sain wasn't sharp when he needed to be. After Gene Hermanski singled with two out in the first, Snider got hold of the first pitch and lined it into the bull pen in right field.

Heintzelman Hurls 1-Hitter; Phils Win 2

Philadelphia, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies swept a double-header from the New York Giants today, 8-1 and 7-5, with Kenny Heintzelman missing a no-hitter in the opener because of Whitey Lockman's seventh-inning triple.

Ed Heusser, hurling in relief for Starter Dutch Leonard, was credited with the nightcap triumph.

O'Neill Hurls 2 Wins, Keeps Team in Lead

Harry O'Neill kept the Merchandising Plumbers in first place in the City Unlimited League yesterday as he pitched two wins, 14-4, over Northeast Body Works, and 8-3, over Government Employes Insurance.

O'Neill, hampered by wildness against Body Works, was removed in the fifth ining, while ahead, 5-4. Warren Webb, who relieved, stopped Body Works, and O'Neill received credit for the win. O'Neill regained his composure in the second game, yielded only three walks and eight hits to beat the Insurance men. O'Neill has a 6-0 record, same as his team's record in second-half play.

Bornstein & Son remained a game behind the Plumbers by sweeping a twin bill. The first game was a 6-1 win over Government Employes Insurance, and the second was a 13-2 decision over Griffith Consumers.

Bamby Bread won a double-header, beating Southeast Merchants, 11-2, and Philco Radio, 3-0. Bernie Schools fanned 10 and gave up only 2 singles in the second game. Taft dropped a double-header, losing the first, 6-1, to Southeast Merchants and the second, 5-4, to Elite Restaurant. In the other games, Northeast Body Works beat Elite, 8-5, and Philco outslugged Griffith Consumers, 12-8. All games were played on the Ellipse.

Big Day for Pitchers

Vita of Friendship Rebels, Hurls One-Hitter, Wins, 5-1

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The pitchers stole the sandlot spotlight yesterday.

Bill Vita of the Friendship Rebels turned in the best pitched game, a one-hitter, as his team beat the Maryland Wildcats, 5-1, at Fairlawn. He struck out eight and walked four in an Arena League game.

Ed Ferran hurled a five-hitter as his Kensington Fire Department mates pounded out an 11-2 victory over the Georgetown Bears at Kensington. Ed struck out nine. Lou Kengla had four singles in five tries for the Firemen.

Jack Callahan's contribution was a four-hitter and his Eddie's Friendly Tavern buddies backed him up with 22 hits and an 18-3 win over Yellow Cab at Rosedale. Jack fanned five of the hackers.

The Junior Fairfax County League finished its regular schedule yesterday, with Annandale shutting out Vienna, 9-0, and Groveton downing Bailey's, 6-4. The playoffs begin Wednesday night with a double-header at Fairfax High stadium. Second-place McLean faces third-place Groveton at 7 p. m., and first-place Falls Church tangles with fourth-place Annandale at 8:30. The two winners play for the championship next Sunday.

Schaeffer's routed Mount Pleasant, 15-1, and Southeast Stores whitewashed Forrest Heights, 9-0, in Arena League tilts. In the Prince Georges County A League, Dixie Pig trimmed Campus Club, 12-4; Sunnybrook defeated Silver Hill, 5-2, and Fort Carroll beat Maryland Sport Club, 4-1. In the County B League Croome trumped Maryland Aces, 10-6; Jet Motors shut out Pumphrey's Grocery, 9-0, and Cheltenham tripped Brandywine, 9-3.

On the softball front the Takoma Decorators took their weekly out-of-town excursion, and split an American Girls Softball League double-header at Perth Amboy, N. J. Takoma lost the first game, 7-1, but came back to win the nightcap, 5-3.

Joe Martz's six-hit pitching landed Myron Cowell in first place in the Montgomery County Softball League. Supporting Martz with a 12-hit barrage, Cowell bumped Morningside Laundry, 5-2, and stretched its wining streak to six. Sentelle Construction Co. beat Kane's Tavern, 6-3, in another league game.

The District Amateur Softball Association's tournament goes into its second round tonight at Greenbelt. In the first game, at 7:30, Kings Park Inn faces Annandale Co. In the nightcap, at 9, Mount Rainier clashes with International Business Machines.

Black Cady Wins Show At Suitland

Black Cady won the Southern Maryland Horse and Pony Show jumper championship yesterday at the J. B. Bland farm in Suitland, Md. The show was sponsored by the Prince Georges Democratic Club.

Black Cady last year served a hitch with the Mexican Army team before being returned to its owner-rider-trainer, Fred J. Hughes, jr.

Roger R. Smith's veteran Dandy was the runner-up with five points, decided on a coin flip with George Fitzpatrick's Slo-Glo from Baltimore, Md., who also scored five points.

Before the largest spectator turn-out and the largest entry to be seen locally this season, Black Cady won the modified Olympia, the knock-down-and-out and was third in the open jumper.

Courtney Burton's Gates Mills, Ohio, lovely Dance King, with Mrs. James C. Hamilton as agent and ridden by Picken Hamilton from Warrenton, Va., scored 14 points to win the hunter championship.

Demaret's 273 Ties Greiner for Title

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 15 (AP).—Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif., dropped a birdie on the eighteenth hole to boost himself into a tie with Otto Greiner, Baltimore, Md., at the end of 72 holes of play in the St. Paul Open golf tournament today.

The birdie gave Demaret a 4-under-par 68 and a 273 total for the 72 holes of play. Earlier, Greiner had shot a 69, his second of the tourney, for his 273. They will play off the tie tomorrow.

Demaret went out in three strokes under par, carding a 33 and matched par figures all the way to the eighteenth hole and it appeared that Greiner's one-stroke advantage at the start of the day's play would be sufficient to bring him first money of $2450.

Demaret's second shot landed in the trap 20 feet to the right of the cup but he blasted the ball out to within about 3 feet from the cup and dropped his putt for the birdie four.

Lloyd Mangrum, the Tam O'Shanta pro from Chicago, was three strokes away from the leaders with a 276. He shot his best round today, carding a 67.

A stroke behind him was Ellsworth Vines, Iowa City, Iowa, who had a 69 today for a 277.

Skip Alexander, Lexington, N. C., turned in the tournament's best score, coming in with a blistering eight-under-par 64 to put himself in the money. His card was one stroke off the Keller Course competitive record of 63, held jointly by Horton Smith and Harry Cooper.

Stathis Hurls No-Hit, 1-0 Win

Harrisburg, Fa., Aug. 15 (Spl.)—Peter J. Stathis hurled an 11-inning no-hitter here today as the Pennsylvania Trainmen of Washington, D. C., edged out the Harrisburg All-Stars, 1-0, in the Eastern Division finals of the National Association of American Railroads baseball championships.

Stathis, who struck out 16 and walked but two, won when Fred White's eleventh inning double scored George Reynolds. The Washington team will compete in the National finals in Chicago August 29.

Parker Beats Schroeder for East Net Title

South Orange, N. J., Aug. 15 (AP). Frankie Parker, the Nation's top-ranking amateur player smashed his way today past Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Calif., 6—2, 9—7, 6—2, to capture the Eastern Grass Courts Tennis championship.

Playing what Davis Cup Captain Alrick Man termed the best tennis of his career, Parker could do no wrong. He bested Schroeder, the defending champ, at every turn.

Wimbledon Champion Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., top-rated, won the women's title by turning back second ranked Margaret Osborne duPont of Bellevue, Del., 6—3, 8—6.

Bill Talbert of New York and Gardner Mulloy of Miami, teamed to take the men's doubles championship with a 7—5, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3 triumph over Bill Sidwell and Colin Long, Australia's Davis Cup team.

Hippenstiel Wins 3 Times

Robin Hippenstiel, singles champion of the U. S. Air Force, had a busy time yesterday, the second day of the Federal Employes Tennis Tournament sponsored by the D. C. Recreation Department at Rock Creek courts.

In the third round of the men's singles, Hippenstiel coasted to a 6—0, 6—2 victory over Bob Burgess. Then he teamed with Jim Farrin in the doubles division to whip Mac Taylor and Joe McPadden, 6—0, 6—1, and Frank Manson and Frank Dunham, 6—0, 6—1, to jump from the second round to the semifinals.

The tourney continues this week and winds up with the finals Saturday.

Third-round men's singles—Robin Hippenstiel defeated Bob Burgess, 6—0, 6—2. Bill Hassett defeated Doc Carpouses, 6—1, 5—7, 6—2. Bill Gifford defeated Mac Taylor, 9—7, 6—1. Andy Evans defeated Frank Manson, 6—2, 5—7, 6—2. Don Leavens defeated Bob McMasters, 6—1, 6—0. Frank Shore defeated Dick Leighton, 6—3, 6—2. Frank Dunham defeated George Herbert, 6—4, 6—0. Cal Nick Powel defeated Henry Wenzel, 6—1, 6—4.

Second-round men's doubles—Don Leavens-Buddy Adair defeated Reitz-Johnson, 6—0, 6—0. Hippenstiel-Farrin defeated Taylor-McPadden, 6—0, 6—1. Manson-Dunham defeated Cowell-Mecutchen, 6—1, 6—0. Powel-Evans defeated Herbert-Leighton, 10—8, 6—4. Shore-Carpouses defeated Field-Kurty, 6—2, 6—2.

Quarterfinals men's doubles—Hippenstiel and Farrin defeated Manson-Dunham, 6—0, 6—1.

Today's pairings:

Semifinals women's singles—Willie Herbert vs. Frances Barry, 5:30 p. m.; Sksie Girgosian vs. Ann Fisher, 6 p. m.

Touring U. S. Olympic Stars Easily Defeat French, 10-4

Alex Jany Defeats American Swimmers

Paris, Aug. 15 (AP).—The big French swimmer, who couldn't win in the Olympics, today scored his third victory over the United States Olympic champions in a French-American meet.

Following up his triumph in yesterday's 100-meter relay sprint and his smashing, winning anchor leg in the 800-meter relay, the husky, 19-year-old French ace captured the 200-meter free style in 2:10.2 today.

Thus Jany proved a big factor in holding the United States to a slim 7-5 victory margin in the two days of competition.

Bill Smith, the Olympic 400-meter champ from Honolulu and Ohio State, was second and 17-year-old Jimmy McLane of Andover and Akron, Ohio, the 1500-meter Olympic king, was third.

Curtis Stone Wins In 5000-Meter Run

Paris, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Touring American Olympic stars, taking every men's track and field event except the discus throw, ran up a 10 to 4 lead over France today in the first day of a two-day track international meet at Colombes Stadium.

Racking up victories for the Americans were Curtis Stone in the 5000-meter run, Harrison Dillard in the 110-meter high hurdles, Barney Ewell in the 100-meter dash, Lorenzo Wright in the broad jump, Herb Barten in the 800-meter run, George Stanich in the high jump, Steve Seymour in the javelin, Bob Bennett in the hammer throw, and Audrey Patterson in the women's 200-meter.

Stone's win was the surprise of the day since the crowd had expected Tiny Alain Mimoun of France, who finished second in the Olympic 10,000-meter run, to take the shorter race. Mimoun, however, had to settle for third place behind Stone of Philadelphia and Jerry Thompson of Texas.

Divided Command Held Threat to Prompt National Defense in Modern War

into effect, vested in a commander who controls all the means of warfare.

As it is now, such an attack would call for a meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff who presumably would agree on some sort of defensive and retaliatory measures. And their agreement must necessarily be unanimous, since that is the rule under which they operate.

There would be no quick disposal of the means of defense; no immediate hammer blow against the enemy's field forces, his industries and his cities.

There would be a committee meeting.

What would come out of such a committee meeting would be difficult now to forecast. The Air Force and the Navy are bitterly at odds over the distribution and application of air resources. The ground Army, which so far always has borne the burden of war, has been relegated by its supposedly coequal services to a role so nebulous that many ground soldiers have become resigned to the status of housekeepers at bases from which the other two will sally forth in airplanes and ships to settle the issue against the most powerful gorund army the world has ever known.

What sort of decision would come from a committee so divided over essentials, and how quickly it would come from a committee any of whose members can veto the decisions of the others, nobody can guess. But that situation is one of the fruits of the fight over unification, with all its magnification of professional jealousies and ambitions.

In that it did not provide for a Joint Chief of Staff with a joint staff composed of officers from all three services, unification failed dismally to unify. The single operating head, the joint Chief of Staff with authority to use any and all means of warfare, was the single essential without which this Nation will inevitably stumble all over itself on the eve of another war.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff have set up a planning staff which is even now in the process of organizing itself to map out a practicable scheme of fighting another war. This planning staff, undoubtedly forced upon the Military Establishment by the muddle which hamstrung its efforts to present Congress last April with a concrete picture of its needs, is a step in the right direction. But it is only a step.

"Siamese-Triplet" Command

Without a single military head of the Nation's armed forces, instead of the present command by a sort of Siamese triplets, direction of their efforts in war will be slow and halting. Elsewhere the services have got together on the principle of unified command; all overseas theaters now are commanded that way, by an officers of the Army, the Navy or the Air Force.

But here at home, the heart and soul of all the Nation is, has been and ever will be, command is dissipated in a committee. It is not possible to believe that anyone in military office can be unaware that such an arrangement violates all principles of military command.

If that, nevertheless, is so, then the people of America can only hope that a watchful Province will be as generous next time as it was in 1812.

were reported in critical condition. All available space in the hospital was used.

At St. Mary's, nine victims were admitted, and the Veterans Hospital reported two came in.

Most of the injured were suffering from loss of blood from glass cuts. One of the injured, Lowell Mondy, assistant fire chief of Sparks, was described in critical condition.

An appeal for blood donors brought a line of nearly 300 persons to the Washoe Hospital.

When the fire alarm sounded at 9:55 a. m. (MST) (1:55 p. m. EDT) the fire appeared to be a routine blaze in a wooden store building that housed the Reno Wallet Co., the Western Coin Exchange and the Farm Employment office.

A crowd of several hundred persons had gathered closely when the explosion shook the neighborhood.

Dense smoke and a series of lesser explosions added to the confusion as firemen fought to prevent the flames from spreading to the adjoining hotel, rooming house and cafe. The fire continued for several hours.

In San Francisco the Red Cross said whole blood would be flown from the Stockton blood bank if needed.

Mrs. A. Johnson, a nurse, said she was watching the fire when the explosion occurred. Her shoes were blown off and she ran barefooted to her car and went to the Washoe Hospital to aid in receiving the injured.

What every woman ought to know about Dynaflow Driving

DON'T shy away, ladies, because we're not going to tell you how Dynaflow Drive* works.

Not even going to explain how this wonder-worker does away with both the clutch pedal and the usual low, second and high gears.

All we want you to get is this:

You slip behind the wheel of a Dynaflow Buick, start the engine and set a lever.

From then on, all you do is press the gas treadle and steer.

You move away from a standstill in one smooth, even build-up of power, easy and graceful as the start of a waltz.

You come to a stop light – and simply apply the foot brake. To go again, just feed the gas, without bothering to time your left foot with what the right hand's doing.

You take hills, steep grades, traffic tangles just by pressing down on the gas treadle. And you do all this without even thinking about gearshifting.

Why – because this drive shifts for you? No – because Dynaflow Drive does away with the need for changing gears in all normal driving.

The power plant does what gears used to do – so only when you first start out, park or back up will you normally have reason to touch the selector lever.

The big bothers of driving are gone. Anyone – man or woman – is a better driver, a smoother driver, with Dynaflow Drive.

If he likes, let your husband inquire into the technical side of Dynaflow.

As for you – just arrange to try it. In five minutes, you'll be saying, "John, whether or not we trade a car, let's see a Buick dealer now and order a Dynaflow!"

*Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster models only.

Five Parts That Work Wonders – Here's the heart of Dynaflow Drive – five simple-looking parts. But they make a clutch pedal unnecessary – and also the usual low, second and high gears!

When better automobiles are built BUICK will build them

Policeman, Eight Others Injured in Fights Here

Officer Treated At Hospital for Wound Received Stopping Battle

Violence, in the form of knives, fists and feet, bottles, baseball bats and other blunt instruments, broke out in Washington over the weekend.

Eight persons were treated late Saturday and yesterday for injuries received in altercations, one of them a Metropolitan police officer who intervened in a fight.

Police Pvt. Paul F. Thorne, of the Traffic Division, was stabbed in the upper right arm when he broke up a fight between Wirth Jackson, 28, 842 Howard rd. se., and Jax Jean Evans, 20, 1147 Howard rd. se., at 10:45 p. m. Saturday. Jackson received a stab wound in the upper left arm.

Officer Thorne and Jackson were treated at Gallinger Hospital and released. Evans was charged with two cases of assault with a dangerous weapon and will appear in Municipal Court today. The fight occurred at Howard rd. and Shannon st. se.

Luvenia Gore, 28, of 1208 O st. nw., was beaten about the head with a blunt instrument about 12:30 a. m. yesterday at her home. Police arrested James Gore, 29, of the S st. address, and charged him with assault with a dangerous weapon. He will appear in Municipal Court this morning.

In another altercation, Albert Steven Holland, of Alexandria, told police about 15 boys attacked him with fists and feet as he walked in the 800 block of Maine ave. sw. at 12:15 a. m. yesterday. He was treated at Gallinger Hospital and released.

Lewis Cotton, 25, 1223 5th st. nw., was struck in the head with a bottle by an unknown man about 11 p. m. Saturday in the 1200 block of 62d st. nw. He was treated at Freedmen's Hospital and released.

Injured in another battle was Leslie Wilson, 39, of 61 Fenton st. nw., who was hit in the head with a baseball bat about 2:30 a. m. yesterday at his home. Police charged Olan Wilson, 39, of the same address, with assault with a dangerous weapon. Leslie Wilson was treated at Freedmen's and released.

Marion Wilson, 43, received cuts about the head and shoulders during an altercation at 12:30 a. m. yesterday with Dewitt Jones, 39, 1603 New Jersey ave. nw. Jones, who sustained a head cut, was charged with assault. Both were treated at Freedmen's and released.

Veterans Subsistence Pay Speeded

Veterans applying for education or training under the GI bill may expect prompt payment of subsistence allowances under streamlined registration procedures effective September 1, according to the Veterans' Administration.

The VA has announced that certificates of eligibility, under which veterans enter training, will combine four forms previously used.

In addition, veterans will be required to apply for their certificates of eligibility at least 30 days before they plan to start training.

Veterans will continue to apply at their nearest VA office, which will issue claim numbers. The VA will then examine each application and determine the training time to which the applicant is entitled.

Within 30 days after application, according to the announcement, the VA will mail an original and duplicate of the eligibility certificate to the veteran, who then presents these to the school or job training establishment when he enrolls.

By keeping the duplicate of the certificate the school will have GI enrollment information for its files. Previously, the schools had to make their own copies, delaying certification of veterans for subsistence pay in many instances.

Falls Church Became City At Midnight

5338 Residents Take Status Change Without Emotion

Falls Church became a city at exactly midnight last night.

Its 5338 residents, most of them asleep, took little notice of the change from a town status which the historic Virginia community had held the past 250 years.

The change was made under an order of the Fairfax Circuit Court following a special census showing the community had attained the required population for a city, second class, classification.

Its "Town" council will meet in special session at 8 p. m. today to fill 2 of 10 new jobs created by the change. The old "Town" council will serve until September 1 when it becomes a "City" council.

To be filled tonight are the posts of commissioner of revenue and city treasurer.

Councilmen said candidates recommended by the new six-member city council which takes office September 1 probably will be accepted by the present "Town" council. Four of the present council will hold over on the new council.

The new posts of city clerk, Police Court judge, three justices of the peace, and three city electoral board members probably will be left until the new council takes office, Mayor-Elect Albert Orme said yesterday.

New Group Plans Sylvan Theater Gilbert-Sullivan

Tickets have been placed on sale for Columbia Opera Co.'s presentation of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe" and "The Mikado" on Friday and Saturday, respectively, at the Sylvan Theater.

Admission to the chair enclosure at the outdoor theater near Washington Monument will be $1.20, including tax. Tickets may be obtained at the Columbia Opera headquarters, 819 13th st., nw., phone REpublic 3010.

The program will be the first sponsored by the newly organized Columbia Opera, Drama and Ballet Association, which will handle arrangements for the opera company's presentations.

A cast of at least 50 performers is scheduled to appear in the Gilbert and Sulivan operettas under Conductor-Director Ethyl Manning.

'Miss Federation' To Be Chosen on Cruise

"Miss Federation" will be selected by the Federation of Business Men's Association on its annual boat ride Friday. The winner will be chosen from Washington girls representing each of the associations. The cruise will be made on the S. S. Potomac which leaves the 7th st. and Maine ave. wharves at 8:30 p. m.

The Rotary Club of Washington will take an imaginary trip to Hawaii Wednesday. A color film, "Hi-Way to Hawaii," will be shown to members at its weekly luncheon in the Mayflower Hotel ballroom at 12:15 p. m.

Honolulu Chief Congratulates D. C. Police

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

William Hoopai, veteran Honolulu police chief who visited here yesterday, got a quick and unexpected lesson in crime solution from Washington police.

At 6:32 a. m. yesterday, a suitcase full of clothes and valuables was stolen from his automobile parked in the 1100 block 15th st. nw.

Exactly 10 minutes later the suitcase was recovered, and a suspect arrested—all before the chief suspected anything was amiss.

"Simply Amazed"

Chief Hoopai, 59, with 19 years of service on the Honolulu force, came here as part of a two-month tour of the United States. He said he was "simply amazed" at this police efficiency.

"I have been looking over police departments all the way from San Francisco to New York," he said, "and you have the best force right here in Washington."

He and his son, Ollney, and daughter-in-law, Lorna, were just getting up for an early round of sightseeing when they were notified by Third Precinct police that a thief who had broken into his car had been caught.

Caught After Chase

Captured hiding behind the seat of a taxicab after a four-block chase, said police, was William Upshaw, 34, 1260 2d st. sw. Records showed he had been released from the District Jail on August 4 on a similar charge of larceny from an auto.

Upshaw was apprehended by Pvts. J. F. Caponelli and John McCall who responded to a call from the night clerk of the New Colonial Hotel, Arthur S. Lewis. The latter said he heard the crash of glass as the suspect tried to break into another parked car.

Lewis said he got a glimpse of the man and called police, giving them a description of the man.

Upshaw was charged with grand larceny.

Looking over police headquarters later in the day, Chief Hoopai compared his department with Washington. "One thing about our job in Honolulu," the chief said, "is that when we are looking for someone, we know he can't get off the island, he is trapped by the ocean."

The Honolulu department protects the Island of Hawaii (700,000 square miles) and seven adjoining islands. It has 421 policemen and 240 one-man scout cars, two radio communication and a crime reporting system recommended by the FBI with whom they are constantly in touch.

"We even have three men working on a loyalty check," Hoopai added.

Leaving headquarters with his recovered suitcase, he smiled and said, "You have got a mighty fine department, clean, neat and on the job."

"You can say that again" daughter-in-law Lorna chimed in," all my best dresses are in that suitcase."

Discuss Business Trends

Current business trends will be discussed by Dr. George C. Smith, research economist, United States Chamber of Commerce, at the weekly luncheon of the Civitan Club of Washington Tuesday at the Mayflower Hotel at 12:30 p. m.

War Pontoons Dock 60 Boats Near Pentagon

Barges Built for Emergency Bridge Utilized at Basin

Fifteen floating souvenirs of wartime Washington today make up a yacht dock for pleasure boats within a stone's throw of the Pentagon Building.

They are the 70-foot barges which were to serve as floating piers for an emergency Potomac River bridge should enemy action ever knock out Washington's regular bridge system.

The docks and basin, operated by S. King Fulton, Inc., under Government Services, Inc., on United States park property, are located in the quiet waters of the Pantagon Lagoon just off the river.

60 Boats Berthed

Opened last month, its 15 barges, bought as Government surplus, stretch end to end in a huge crescent. A total of more than 60 power boats line them, small craft on the inside, the large ones on the outer edge.

S. King Fulton, owner, says a majority of people who berth their boats there are Alexandria and Arlington Government workers.

Several boat owners are Army officers who work in the Pentagon Building, can see their cruisers from a window and drop down for some puttering during their lunch hour.

Charges by Length

Tentative rates for the basin are 50 cents a month for every foot of a boat's length, with a minimum charge of $8 monthly for outboard boats and $10 for inboards. A 30-foot power cruiser, at that rate, would cost its owner $15 a month at the basin.

Owners can tap the installation's water system, and get power to charge their batteries. Basin plans call eventually for a paved auto parking area and a refreshment stand.

Nursery School Seeks Quarters For $50 Rent

Unless new quarters are found for the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Cooperative Nursery School with its 30 children, it will be unable to open its fall term beginning September 13, Mrs. M. B. Wilson, president of the cooperative, said yesterday.

After closing its summer session at the Bethesda Elementary School a few days ago, mothers of the children found the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Recreation Center on Norwood dr., used as quarters for the school last fall and winter, has been assigned for use of Montgomery County Junior College.

The Montgomery County Board of Education in the past has helped to supply quarters, but this year, due to overcrowding of public schools, the board is unable to assist.

The nursery school is operated on a nonprofit basis and maintained only by a small tuition. Its pupils range in age from 2½ to a little over 5.

Auto Buyers Blamed for Gray Market

Used Car Dealers Cite Profit Sought; 10% Resale Option Called Partial Curb

Private individuals seeking profit drew most blame last night for Washington's reported gray market in "used" cars.

Two representatives of the second-hand automobile business and the editor of the American Motorist agreed in a radio round-table discussion, however, that the "10 per cent resale option agreement" between new car dealers and purchasers is helping to remedy the situation.

Speaking over Station WINX on the District Roundtable program were William Griffith, president of the Washington Used Car Dealers Association; Walter Hubbard, editor of the American Motorist, and J. H. Satcher, retail car dealer here. Moderator was Leonard S. Melrod, member of the District Bar Association, cosponsors of the program with the American Bar Association.

Defends Associates

Defending members of his association as operating "a legitimate business with fair return," Griffith said the individual buyer is largely responsible for "forcing prices up." This is because he suffers a loss of "from $300 to $500" by trading his old car for a new one, he said.

Satcher agreed with this contention, saying, "Every day customers offer us '48 cars for sale, feeling they must be compensated for the loss in trading in their old car for a new one."

Griffith said another factor in the high cost of so-called "used" cars is the abundance of accessories with which they are equipped when delivered new.

Add $400 to $500

Such added trimmings, he said, sometimes cost "from $400 to $500" more than the list price of the car.

Hubbard maintained that agreements whereby purchasers of new cars give new-car dealers an option on resale of a car within six months at a 10 per cent cut in price are helping to reduce illicit practices.

To abolish the gray market, which Hubbard said "no one will deny exists," participants in the discussion suggested:

(1) Contiuation of the 10 per cent agreement, (2) "policing" of their business by new-car dealers to prevent sale of unwanted accessories, (3) increased production of new cars, and (4) mutual cooperation among all dealers, as recommended by the American Automobile Association, to effect a return to fair practices.

No Big Change Contemplated In Greenbelt

No immediate changes in the government of Greenbelt, Md., are contemplated, Charles T. McDonald, who will become town manager of the Federal community today, said last night.

McDonald will begin his duties this morning but will not be sworn in formally until tonight. The official induction ceremony will be held at the Town Council meeting at 8 p. m.

The new town manager has been associated with the Green Towns since 1942 when he went with Greenhill, near his native Cincinnati. He came to Greenbelt in 1946 as maintenance engineer. He has also served as town manager at Greenhills and in the development program for Greendale, Wis. Since April, he has been general housing manager at Middle River, near Baltimore.

The Greenbelt post pays $6500 annually. McDonald succeeds James T. Gobbel, who resigned July 1. Chief of Police George Panagoulis has been acting as interim town manager.

Woodcutter's Death Ruled Accidental

Dr. Hugh Ward, Calvert County, Md., medical examiner, yesterday issued a certificate of accidental death for John Jackson, 72, of Lower Marlboro, Md., who was crushed by a falling tree Friday morning.

A sawmill operator and farmer, Jackson was cutting timber with several other men near his place when his foot became entangled in a dead tree as another tree was being felled. He was unable to move out of the path of the timber.

He died Friday night at Calvert County Hospital in Prince Frederick, Md.

Two Killed, 10 Injured In Virginia Bus Crash; Area Accidents Mount Accidents in July Increase Over June But Deaths Drop In Greater D. C.

Traffic deaths in Greater Washington decreased in July compared with June, but accidents and injuries increased.

Fatalities fell from 14 in June to 8 in July. There were 16 fatalities in July of 1947.

The total of 1442 accidents during the month was a jump of 64 over the previous month and 173 over July, 1947. Fifty-three more people received traffic injuries during July than in June, and there were 39 more traffic injuries in the Greater Washington area than in July, 1947.

During the first seven months of 1948, 89 persons died in traffic accidents in the area. The 1947 total for the same period was 100 fatal accidents.

For the fifth successive month the city of Alexandria had no fatal traffic accidents. Arlington County also had no traffic fatalities.

Scholarships Open at GU For 3 Students

Employed students residing in Greater Washington will be eligible for three five-year scholarships at Georgetown University leading to a bachelor's degree in foreign service or business administration, Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., regent of the School of Foreign Service, announced yesterday.

The scholarships will cover tuition and fees of approximately $375 annually during the five-year evening course. Candidates who submit their applications by September 1 to the Committee on Scholarships will be given a written examination. The awards will go to the three attaining the highest average.

The competition is open to both women and men, but excludes veterans under the GI bill, disabled veteran students under Public Law 16, and students liable for immediate military training.

7 Area Scientists To Be Honored At Metal Congress

Seven Washington area scientists will be honored by the American Society for Metals at the thirtieth annual National Metal Congress and Exposition in Philadelphia on October 25-29.

The scientists have been asked to present papers which they have written and described by the ASM as representing major contributions to metallurgical progress.

One of the articles, describing the influences of low temperatures on the mechanical properties of certain steels, was written by Dr. D. J. McAdams, jr., Miss Frances J. Cromwell and G. W. Geil of the Bureau of Standards.

S. J. Rosenberg and J. H. Darr, also of the bureau, will present a paper on intergranular corrosion of the alloy steel, while other articles will be presented by C. A. Julien of the Naval Research Laboratory and Gerrit DeVries of the United States Proving Ground, Dahlgren, Va.

NAN WHITEHEAD
Traffic Victim

Four Arrested

2 Pre-Dawn Chases Bring 25 Charges

Pre-dawn chase of two cars by police through downtown Washington yesterday was climaxed by the arrest of four persons on 25 traffic violation charges.

Cecil E. McDougal, 23, of 4435 P st. nw., who, police said, was the driver and only occupant of one car, was accused of unauthorized use of the automobile belonging to Mrs. Rose Litman, 4215 Acton pl. nw. He also was booked on 14 traffic counts.

Samuel L. Gray, 18, of 712 3d st. se., whom police identified as driver of the second car, was charged with seven traffic violations and with unauthorized use of the vehicle owned by Milton Costen of the same address.

Also charged with unauthorized use of the second car were two passengers, a 17-year-old boy, and Clifton Davis, 18, of 304 G st. sw., police reported.

McDougal was arrested at about 3 a. m. after being pursued for half an hour through the city's business section by Motorcycle Policeman C. M. Blackburn.

Blackburn said he ordered McDougal to stop at 17th and K sts. nw., for speeding 40 miles per hour. Instead McDougal sped off and a Yellow cab joined the motorcycle in the chase, police said.

Three police scout cars were summoned through the cab's radio. McDougal was captured by Blackburn at 1st and Seaton sts. nw., after he jumped from the car and tried to flee through a yard, the officer said.

In the second chase, about an hour later, Pvts. F. E. Hardesty and Malon H. Shreve, both of the Fourth Precinct, said they had stopped a car at 4th and F sts. sw., and told the driver to turn on his lights.

The car then sped off and turned east on F st. sw., and finally stopped at 2d and H sts. sw., when Gray jumped out and tried to escape.

Virginia Man Held In Auto Collision

Police yesterday charged John E. Alexander, 30, of McLean, Va., with leaving after colliding in connection with a Key Bridge accident Saturday night which seriously injured Philip James, 52, of 2020 N. 20th st., Arlington, Va., and his 7-year-old son, Philip, jr., 7.

Both father and son are in fair condition at Emergency Hospital, having suffered possible skull fractures. Alexander was arrested less than two hours after the victims were struck while crossing Key Bridge. He was placed under $500 bond.

Democrats Plan Rally

Montgomery County Democratic Party workers have selected Saturday, September 18, for a countywide rally and picnic to open the county's presidential and congressional campaigns. Tentatively the events are slated for Rock Creek Fieldhouse at Beach dr. and Leland st. in Chevy Chase.

Unidentified Negro Woman and Boy, 6, Die in Collision Near Fredericksburg

An unidentified woman and a 6-year-old boy were killed and at least 10 persons injured last night in a collision near Fredericksburg, Va., involving a Greyhound bus bound from Washington to Richmond, and two other motor vehicles.

Mary Washington Hospital in Fredericksburg said the woman was a Negro, about 35 years old. The boy also was a Negro.

Hospital authorities said 2 of about 10 persons treated were in critical condition.

The critical were listed as an unidentified woman about 40, and a man identified as Presnell Payton, about 40, address not determined.

Virginia State police said the unidentified woman who was killed instantly, was among eight persons riding in a panel truck. No one in the bus or automobile was injured seriously, according to first reports from police.

Incomplete police reports said the bus hit the truck about 8 p. m. and careened off the highway after the truck had blown a front tire and gone out of control.

Miss Nan Whitehead, 29, of 2441 40th st. nw., who was struck by a streetcar early Friday, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital of a fractured skull and other head injuries.

She was the District's forty-third traffic fatality this year.

Miss Whitehead was struck at 14th and G sts. nw. by a car operated by Raymond Frazier, 24, of 1754 Columbia rd. nw. Frazier will appear at a coroner's inquest to be set later.

Miss Whitehead had been secretary to Bill Herson, disk jockey for Station WRC.

She had lived in Washington since 1941, when she came from Akron, Ohio, to work for the War Production Board. She later was employed by the War Department.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. [illegible] Whitehead of Akron, and a brother, Gordon Whitehead of Doylestown, Ohio.

A three-car collision, in which three persons were injured, was reported by police yesterday on U. S. Route 1, near Fort Belvoir, Va. State police said a sedan driven by Percy J. Marin of the 470th Engineer Construction Battalion, Fort Belvoir, struck the rear of a second car and hit the third head-on at Engleside, Va.

Mrs. Ora Hyder of Johnson City, Tenn., suffered chest injuries and was admitted to Alexandria Hospital, together with her 6-month-old grandson, who suffered a fractured leg. Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Mack C. Hyder, 31, of 72 Woodmont rd., Alexandria, Va., was treated for cuts and bruises and released.

Driver of the third car was listed as Leonard E. Zongker, 4801 Connecticut ave. nw. Neither he or Marin were injured in the accident.

According to State police, a trooper had been following Marin's car just before the accident and had clocked him at speeds up to 70 miles an hour. Marin was charged with reckless driving.

Another District accident injured six persons and cut off power service for a short time near Minnesota ave. and Hay st. ne., when an automobile driven by Marine L. Dodson, 22, of Muirkirk, Md., knocked down an electric light pole.

Rebekah McGill, 69, of 1523 22d st. nw., suffered head injuries when she was struck by a car at Connecticut and Cathedral ave. nw.

Andrew J. Griggs, 37, of 4702 Bass pl. se., was struck at Central ave. and Benning rd. ne., and his left leg was broken.

Mobile Radiotelephone Seems Due for Definite Stay Here

Not many folks get a hankering to make long distance calls while driving to work of a morning, but the mobile radiotelephone is definitely in Washington to stay.

That is the contention of John A. Patterson, jr., manager of special services of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., operators of the system whereby you may call from a vehicle to any land-based telephone in the world.

Only 100 units are in operation in Washington at present, with the service two months shy of being 2 years old. This is in contrast to New York, which has about 1200 orders waiting to be filled, and to Chicago, with 1800 standing by, according to Patterson.

Facilities for providing mobile telephone service here—including one transmitter for highway communication, three for urban communication, and 12 receivers which serve as "boosters" for transmission—represent an investment upwards of $200,000.

This figure is based on records filed with the Federal Communications Commission, showing estimated costs set forth in C & P applications for licenses.

The service is still on an experimental basis, as far as the FCC is concerned, but it has authorized the use of 180 urban mobile units and 50 highway mobile units, by the District system.

Patterson attributes the differential between demand for the service in Washington and in some other cities to the fact that areas with more heavy industries find more use for the mobile telephone.

He says big manufacturing establishments, for example, find it helpful as a timesaver in widespread distribution of goods to a variety of terminals.

No radical changes have been made thus far in the original equipment, Patterson revealed. Bell laboratories nevertheless, are experimenting with smaller, more compact radiotelephone devices to reduce drain on batteries and generators in vehicles.

Availability of channels in the authorized megacycle range has been one appreciable obstacle in Washington. The service here originally was hampered by having only one channel. Two more have been acquired in the past year.

Another limitation has been the radius of communication, which now is about 15 miles, Patterson said. Experiments are being conducted to increase the range, also.

Cost of the service conforms to the following schedule:

Equipment installation charge, $25. Minimum monthly charge, $22, based on the following rates in the "5-cent to 10-cent area," 30 cents for the first three minutes; in the "15-cent area," 35 cents for the first three minutes, and in the "20-cent area," 40 cents for the first three minutes. Charges for calls from mobile unit to mobile unit are 40 cents for the first three minutes. Long-distance calls to or from mobile units cost the same as person-to-person day-rate calls on regular telephone service.

Area News in Brief

Judges Undecided On Coaster Car Race

When a Free Stater forays into Virginia and rides off with a prize meant strictly for Virginians—well, suh, it's downright embrassing.

What's more it may be illegal. That's why three red-faced judges of Saturday's northern Virginia coaster car race in Arlington will meet today to decide this ticklish problem of State honor and jurisprudence—caused by a 15-year-old Maryland boy.

It seems that Matthew L. Boring, jr., 7723 Eastern ave., Takoma Park, won first place in a race among 29 powerless coaster cars. But the contest was sponsored by the Arlington Optimist Club, the Arlington and Fairfax Police Departments and the Alexandria Recreation Department for boys from Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax.

Arlington Police Sergt. Frank C. Palmer, one of the judges, said young Boring had been staying with Arlington friends the night before the contest and that his father worked in Virginia.

But Palmer could not recall whether the boy had listed a Maryland or Virginia address on his entry card for the contest. Besides Palmer, other judges who will meet today in the Arlington Court House are Earl Barnwell, director of the Alexandria Recreation Department, and Sergt. Lowell Shumate of the Fairfax police.

At the meeting they must decide who should receive the first prize in the contest, a fully-equipped English racing bicycle and a cup which will be awarded later.

2 Boys Win $150 Each

Two Washington boys have won first awards and $150 each in the 1948 Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild competition, it was announced yesterday.

They are Galen Wickersham, 2811 Hillcrest dr. se., whose model automobile copped top honors in the junior division, and Leon Levand, 907 Michigan ave. ne., senior division winner.

Besides these awards, Wickersham and Levand also won first regional honors for Virginia, West Virginia and the District entitling them to compete in Detroit for national awards of university scholarships.

3721 Visit Dream House

More than 3721 persons yesterday visited "Mr. Blanding's Dream House" at 5613 Woodway, Sumner, Md.

A spokesman for one of the sponsoring firms last night said approximately 31,600 visitors had been through the house since it opened August 1.

The local home is a replica of the house made famous by Eric Hodgins in the best-selling novel, "Mr. Blanding Builds His Dream House." The movie version of the book is currently showing at RKO-Keith's Theater, 619 15th st. nw.

$900 Watch Stolen

A diamond-studded wrist watch valued at $900 was stolen from her front room over the weekend, Genevieve Miller, 1427 W st. nw., told police yesterday. She said the watch had a white gold bracelet and was set with three large diamonds, studded with 132 smaller diamonds.

'Pants Burglar' Active

Washington's adroit "pants burglar" struck for the third weekend in a row early yesterday, but found comparatively meager pickings.

Lewis Rochester, 44, of 705 C st. sw., told police about $25 in bills and $12 in change was taken from his trousers, which hung on his bedroom chair, between midnight and 8 a. m.

Donald Twining, 216 8th st. sw., said a $5 bill was taken from his trousers on his bedpost between 11 p. m. Saturday and 8 a. m. yesterday.

Twining almost lost his pants. They were found in his back yard. Both complainants said they had first-floor bedrooms.

Murray Hunt Still On, Says Canadian Aide

The Canadian Embassy here last night reported that "as far as we know the search is still going on" for Dr. Vance B. Murray, United States Public Health Service physician missing in Northwest Canada since August 7.

The search was reported abandoned earlier yasterday after a letter signed by Dr. Murray had been received here by Dr. Ralph B. Snavely, who is Dr. Murray's superior in the medical department of the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Dr. Snavely said he gave the letter to the Canadian Embassy in hope it would assist in the search. He added he knew nothing about the report of the search being abandoned. The letter contained nothing about Dr. Murray's plans. It apparently was dispatched from Edmonton, Canada, August 5, he said.

Murray, 4309 Van Ness st. nw., piloting a Cessna 140, left Edmonton for Grande Prairie, Alberta, about 250 miles northwest, en route to Fairbanks, Alaska. He was on a 30-day leave from the health service.

Dr. Meader Gets Research Post In Cancer Branch

By The Associated Press

Dr. Ralph G. Meader yesterday was appointed chief of the Research Grants Branch, National Cancer Institute.

He will direct the institute's extensive program of research grants-in-aid to hospitals, universities, laboratories, and other institutions.

Deputy chief since June 1, Dr. Meader succeeds Dr. David E. Price who recently was named chief of the Division of Research Grants and Fellowships of the National Institute of Health. Dr. Meader is a native of Eaton Rapids, Mich.

Clothesline Bandit May Be Baby or Man

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 15 (AP).—Police are hunting a clothesline bandit who's made a good start toward setting up a home laundry.

The thief has snatched around 100 items of wearing apparel off seven clotheslines and walked off with a wash basket and a bagful of clothespins.

200 Dog Fanciers Applaud Haymount's Aces Coquette

Clare Virnstein, 17, of 3911 Argyle Terrace, nw., with "Baron" a 3-year-old boxer owned by her father Dr. J. E. Virnstein. "Baron" won blue ribbon in open class

By Barry Goodwin—The Washington Post

Mrs. John H. Parker of Richmond, Va., brought along the youngest boxer, "Peanuts," 8 weeks old. When "Peanuts" is older and has been registered he will have much longer name

More than 200 kennel show enthusiasts yesterday attended the first Class A Fanttion Show at the recently organized Boxer Club of Virginia. The show was held at River Bend, south of Alexandria, on Mount Vernon blvd.

Haymount's Aces Coquette, owned by R. G. Lambeth of Marion, N. C., was judged the best dog of the show. J. H. Hill of Darien, Conn., was the judge.

First place in class showings were:

Also held yesterday was an informal show, part of the Washington Bulldog Club5s summer meeting at the home of J. A. Allen at McLean, Va.

Although eight Washingtonians were present with their champions, these were not allowed to compete with the 30 or more dogs entered by their "calling names."

Howard M. Grimm, 2622 Garfield st nw., a local handler, was judge of the show. He picked as the best dog to match Sam's Buttons, owned by Samuel M. Nash of Washington.

House Committee Hopeful on Oil Outlook in 1948

By The Associated Press

The overall petroleum outlook was described by the House Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday as more favorable for this winter than last. At the same time, the group cautioned against "unrestricted use of petroleum products."

Moreover, Committee Chairman Wolverton (R., N. J.), in a report filed with the House proposed a complete review of the Nation's ability to meet oil requirements of the foreign recovery program "without damaging our own economy."

While the immediate petroleum outlook has improved, the report said the committee views the longer range aspects "with continued concern, especially in the light of continued uncertainty in world affairs and our ability to cope with any national emergency."

State Utilities' Aid Asked for Phone Union Wage Drive

By the United Press

President Joseph Beirne asked 34 State utility commissions yesterday to help his Communications Workers of America obtain a third-round pay raise from Bell Telephone companies.

He said in a letter to each commission that it "is a proper function" to inquire into the wage rate structure of companies asking increased rates for telephone service. A "health and decency" wage standard is necessary to assure stability of employment in the industry and "prevent deterioration of telephone service," he added.

Beirne's union and the Telephone Workers Organizing Committee (CIO) will resume their wage drive by reopening contracts today.

Accepts Hopkins Post

Baltimore, Aug. 15 (AP).—William L. Clayton, special advisor to Secretary of State Marshall, has accepted membership on the board of trustees of Johns Hopkins University, Carlyle Barton, president of the board, announced today.

Army Outlines ROTC Student Deferments

College students who had been enrolled in the Reserve Officer Training Corps before June 24, 1948, will automatically be deferred from the military draft until after completition of their course, the Army and Air Force announced jointly yesterday. They must remain in good standing in their military and academic work.

The Army has an ROTC quota of 77,800 and the Air Force one of 40,800. These quotas are distributed among 231 colleges and universities.

To be eligible for deferment, the ROTC students must agree to accept a commission in the Army or Air Force, if and when offered, and to serve not less than 2 years on active duty as an officer subject to call by the Secretary of the Army or Air Force—in whichever branch he holds his commission.

Mine Inspectors to Visit Scene of Fatal Blast

Lonaconing, Md., Aug. 15 (AP). Federal and State mine inspectors will enter a drift mine at near-by Knapp Meadow tomorrow to try to determine what caused the blast yesterday in which three men were killed.

The George's Creek Coal Co.'s Waynesburg Mine No. 5 was closed shortly after the explosion roared through the shaft, fatally burning the foremen who entered the mine on their day off to carry out safety measures against coal-dust explosions.

The dead were Robert Dodds, 42, and George Loar, 38, of Lonaconing, and Bernard Smith of Allegany, Md.

Negro Slaying Suspect Hidden From Mob

Danville, Va., Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Pittsylvania County deputies rushed a frightened young Negro into secret custody today after some 300 angry men gathered at the Danville Jail and waited for him to be brought in for the razor-slaying of a Virginia farmer.

Police said Charles David Price, 22, of Philadelphia, was run to earth by bloodhounds early today and admitted slashing Walter Coleman with a razor in a fight last night.

Boy Scout Field Officials Shifted in Area

Changes in assignments of all field executives of the National Capital Area Council, Boy Scouts, were announced yesterday by Scout Executive Kenneth B. Spear.

The job changes, Spear said, provide maximum possible staff service in the face of necessary budget curtailments. Four field executives have left the council's employ and cannot be replaced "on the present budget scale," Spear said.

The new line-up follows:

John D. Shorrow, now field executive of the Francis Scott Key district of Frederick County, Md., will serve northeast and southeast Washington. Replacing Shorrow in Frederick County will be Don Simpson, present congressional district executive. Simpson will also direct the summer camp on Chesapeake Bay.

Jay H. Willett, Montgomery County field executive, will also head scouting in Washington's western district. Carl E. Hildebrand, scouting supervisor in four southern Maryland counties, will, in addition, head development of the recently acquired Camp Hoover, in Shenandoah National Park.

Field Executive Dale Smith, now of the western district, will transfer to the Alexandria and Fairfax County districts. The present Fairfax executive, Andrew J. Murphy, goes to the Arlington district and will also direct the council's activties and civil service programs.

Thomas R. Uffelman, now supervisor of the council's five southernmost Virginia counties, will also become secretary of the council's camping and health and safety committees, and direct operation of the new Pohick Camp on Mason Neck, off U. S. Route No. 1.

Richard N. Dixon will serve as field executive of the Frederick A. Douglass and Aaron A. Russell districts, and will continue to direct Camp Benjamin Banneker, near Laytonsville, Md.

All personnel shifts are effective September 1, Spear said.

U. S. Survey Shows Shad Is Gadabout

The Fish and Wildlife Service came up yesterday at College Park, Md., with proof the shad's a gadabout.

Twenty shad tagged at sea a year ago, in the Gulf of Maine, have been recaptured in rivers and coastal waters from Massachusetts to Georgia.

Southern shad mingle chummily at sea with their Yankee counterparts. Come spawning time, however, they steer like salmon for the waters in which they were born—the native southerners go South again, the northerners back home to the rivers of the North.

Under the direction of Biologist Louella M. Cable of the service laboratory here, 236 shad were caught in the Gulf of Maine last August, 17 miles at sea. Tagged with numbered celluloid discs riveted to their cheeks, they were released in the same area. The 20 tags sent back to the laboratory, were from fish caught commercially in coastal waters off Massachusetts and New Jersey, in Chesapeake Bay, and in the Hudson, Connecticut, Sassafras, Susquehanna, Potomac, Nuese, Pee Dee, Black, Altamaha and Ogeechee Rivers.

An additional 1000 shad will be tagged, but the results thus far, said Miss Cable, clearly indicate the interest each Atlantic coastal State should have in the marine shad fisheries.

Timber-Rich South Buys Coffins Outside

Richmond, Va., Aug. 15 (AP).—The South—with 195 million acres of forest lands—makes only enough coffins to bury about two thirds of its dead.

This is one of many examples citing regional lack of industrial development in a study of "Southern resources for industrial development" which was prepared at the University of North Carolina.

Two Rousing Productions End Festival

By Paul Hume

Rousing productions of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" brought the Lyric Opera Association's opera festival at the Watergate to a close last night.

One of the larger audiences of the current run applauded warmly during much of the evening. Cavalleria was restored to something like its rightful position in "verismo" opera. Credit for the passionate account of the sordid drama goes to Nicholas Rescigno, Florence Kirk, and Thomas Hayward.

Rescigno, in the five operas he has conducted here this week, has proven himself one of the top conductors in the country. It will be a distinct pleasure to watch his rise to that fame to which he is so well entitled.

Real Insight

Florence Kirk showed real insight into Santuzza's unhappy character. She did not for a moment allow the peasant girl to become craven, but made her role that of justified indignation. Her voice and manner dominated most of the opera as it should.

Hayward, substituting at short notice for Alfonso Cancelmo, gave stirring account of Turiddu's music. Vocally and interpretatively he surpassed his previous work here as Alfredo. His voice is pleasing and well handled. Bette Dubro was a provoking Lola, correctly held in check by Miss Kirk. In four roles, Dubro has displayed absolute authority in opera.

Here we must pay tribute to Maria Pasca. In the roles of Flora, Mercedes, Berta, Giovanna, and Mamma Lucia, she enhanced every scene in which she sang. More young American singers should take note of the career possibilities in such trained routine.

Pagliacci Impressive

Pagliacci is less massive than Cavalleria and can seem less exciting unless the Canio is a man of genius. Last night Francesco Valentino as Tonio, Helen George's Nedda, and support from John Rossi and Frank Palumbo, gave the score good impetus. Valentino's best work was in the duet with Nedda, though his later soft work was impressive also.

Miss George makes an alluring Nedda. Much of her work in the part is along soubrette lines, but she rises to moments of intensity when needed. Her voice is round and beautiful but could become more subtle through the development of soft passages.

"Singer With Voice"

Mario Pasquetto, our Rhadames of a week ago, is vocally well equipped to sing Canio. The highest notes of the score are no problem for him. But Canio is no fool. His action is complex, his part in the total picture the center of all that happens. Pasquetto, audibly prompted through most of his lines, seems to be a singer with a voice, period.

We shall miss the Lyric Opera Association as it leaves Washington for other cities. It has restored opera to a good honest place in our entertainment scene. Another year will find them here with an extended season and several laudable changes. We hope they bring Rescigno back with them. He is the kind of man opera needs.

Boy, 5, Guards Dead Mother With Fly Swatter

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 15 (AP).—The body of a housewife has been found near here with her 5-year-old son, Tommy, standing guard nearby in a four-day vigil.

Dr. Harold Smith, Chatham County coroner, said Mrs. Marion Anderson, in her middle 30's, died of self-inflicted gunshot wounds. He estimated the shooting occurred Wednesday. Police said the body was lying across a bed with a shotgun nearby. Tommy was standing over it wielding a fly swatter to protect his "sleeping mother."

The boy had subsisted on food taken from the ice box.

Mrs. Anderson was the wife of a merchant seaman.

Rock Creek Church Yard Offers Peace to Living, Too

As the oldest burial ground in the District, the Rock Creek Church yard has become as much a retreat for the living as a final resting place of the dead.

High up on a hill in Northeast Washington, the ancient cemetery seems to have a composed quietness about it—a quietness somewhat awing to those who come to see its old markers and epitaphs, many dating back to 1719.

The epitaphs, particularly draw the interest of visitors. In the epitaphs, time is reflected by the different ways the bereaved paid homage to the dead.

Around 1900, expressions of sentiment usually shown was "in loving memory," or some simple variation.

Grief Carved in Words

But in the late eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, the families of those who are buried in the Rock Creek Church yard seemed to feel a great need to express their grief for all to see.

Of one woman who died in 1825, there is the legend, "An amiable, tender friend, she lived beloved and died lamented."

Thomas Herbert, who was buried in the cemetery in 1856, drew this eulogy: "A respectable citizen of this city and it can be truly said that he was honorable, upright and just and respected by all that knew him. He has left a wife, three children, many relatives and friends to mourn their irreparable loss."

Above the grave of an 8-month-old infant who died in 1863 there is the legend: 'Peace to thy slumbers. Thou hast left a world of sorrow in thy memory's early bloom."

Last D. C. Governor There

Joseph Seymour, who died in 1814, is identified as "late of the Philadelphia Theater." Alexander R. Shepherd, last Governor of the District of Columbia, is identified only by name over the door of his vault.

The early markers, many of them sandstone, are chipping or breaking into pieces now. Some of them have been repaired numerous times. On others the engravures are no longer legible.

Squirrels and chipmunks were playing about the churchyard yesterday. Frank Oliver, 70-year-old churchyard employe who was "watching" the grounds, came around the corner of the church just about 4 o'clock, when he figured the shade would have hit a cluster of graves to the east.

Many Come to See Statue

Oliver, who says he is "too young" to dig graves any more, has been at Rock Creek for 22 years now. He pointed out the grave of the late Chief Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, and the Adams memorial, hidden from distant view by a mass of holly and evergreen.

"People come here from everywhere to see that statue," he said.

Earl Fortney, Ex-U. S. Fuel Official, Dies

Earl Lionel Fortney, 64, an official of the Solid Fuels Administration during World War II, died Saturday in George Washington Hospital after a brief illness.

Mr. Fortney was born in Fairmont, W. Va., and was graduated in pharmacy from the University of West Virginia. He owned a chain of drug stores in Fairmont before coming to Washington.

Since coming here in 1934, he had been employed with the Interior Department's Coal Commission and the Fuels Administration. When the latter agency was closed last year, he worked for the United Mine Workers' Welfare Retirement Fund until his illness.

He was a Mason, a member of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Arlington, and member of the Washington Golf and Country Club.

Mr. Fortney leaves his wife, who lives at 314 N. George Mason dr., Arlington; a brother, H. Glenn Fortney, and a sister, Mrs. Byron Warder, both of Fairmont.

Olin Wallen's Body Found In Chesapeake

The body of Olin Humphrey Wallen, 37, of 1631 Potomac ave. se., who drowned off Chesapeake Beach, Md., Thursday evening while fishing with two companions, was found yesterday about 2 miles off the beach by a passing ship.

Dr. Hugn Ward, Calvert County (Md.) medical examiner, issued a certificate of accidental drowning.

Police said Wallen, a Washington representative for Guddie Bros. Wholesale Food Co., Philadelphia, went fishing with two companions and was lost when the boat capsized.

A native of Fauquier County, Va., he came to Washington at an early age and attended local schools. Prior to his affiliation with the Guddie firm, he was employed by the Chestnut Farms Dairy for about 10 years. He lived with his mother, Mrs. Ritchie Souder, at the Potomac ave. address.

He also leaves his father, Albert Wallen of Miami Beach, a brother, Walter A. Wallen of Alexandria, and a sister, Mrs. Lawrence M. Morris of Midland, Va.

PBA Exhibits Go On View Today at Interior Building

A variety of garden and hobby exhibits is planned for today's annual show being presented by employes of the Public Buildings Administration in the basement of the Interior Department Building on C st. between 18th and 19th sts. nw.

The show, sponsored by the recreation council of the PBA welfare service, will be open to the public from 1 to 9 p. m. Judging of entries will be conducted between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m.

Garden exhibits will be in three classes of vegetables, fruits and flowers. The hobby show includes four classes—creative crafts, mechanical crafts, fine arts and collections.

A. R. Eno is general chairman of the event, which is restricted to exhibits by PBA employes.

Widow's Farm Won't Need Dry Ice Pelting

Frederick, Md., Aug. 15 (AP).—The Air Force says it can't send planes to pelt potential rain clouds which might head for Mrs. Nellie Thrasher's farm Wednesday.

But apparently the dry ice bombardiers won't be needed, anyhow.

Official observers predict that the weather over the 175-acre farm near Jefferson will be "fair and mild" Wednesday. That's the day a gigantic conservation field day program is scheduled to come off.

The highlight of the affair—which is expected to draw 40,000 spectators—will be the complete making over of the widow's farm, along conservation lines.

Mrs. Langley, Ex-Member of Congress, Dies

Pikeville, Ky., Aug. 15 (AP).—Former Representative Katherine Gudger Langley, daughter of one Congressman and widow of another, died today after a brief illness. She was 60.

Mrs. Langley, a Republican and the first woman to serve on her party's State committee, was elected to Congress in 1928 in the old Tenth District, and reelected in 1930.

She was one of the most active women in civic and political affairs in eastern Kentucky.

A native of Asheville, N. C., she was the daughter of James Madison Gudger, who served in the House for 12 years.

She was graduated from the Woman's College, Richmond, Va., and after graduate work in Boston taught expression at the Virginia Institute before her marriage in 1903 to John W. Langley, who was a member of the House for 19 years.

The Langleys came to Pikeville in 1906. After her husband entered Congress she served him as secretary, and from 1919 to 1925 was clerk of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mrs. Langley also was postmaster of Pikeville.

A. Campbell Mac Isaac

Chicago, Aug. 15 (AP).—A. Campbell Mac Isaac, 65, Canadian-born real estate editor of the Chicago Herald-American since 1915, died today in St. Luke's Hospital.

During World War II Mac Isaac served as liaison officer between Federal housing agencies and home builders and industrial war plants.

Walter K. Whigham

London, Aug. 15 (AP).—Walter Kennedy Whigham, 70, a former director of the Bank of England, died last night.

Tobacco Prices Drop 50c to $5 in Maryland

Upper Marlboro, Md., Aug. 15 (AP).—Prices dropped 50 cents to $5 a hundred pounds on southern Maryland auction tobacco markets last week, with practically all losses being scored by medium and lower quality offering.

The week saw a net auction sales total of 2,397,706 pounds at an average of $34.93 per hundred. This was the lowest weekly average of the season and a drop of $3.49 from the previous week. Season sales went to 32,436,854 pounds at an average of $42.01.

GOP Seeks Solid Congress Control

To Localities

States Pay $200 Million Aid Monthly

Chicago, Aug. 15 (AP).—States are helping support local governments at the rate of more than 200 million dollars a month.

This was reported today by the Council of State Governments after a study of recent United States Bureau of Census figures. The council said States paid $2,600,000,000 in aid to localities last year. This amounted to nearly a third of the $8,100,000,000 total spent by States during the year.

State aid to local governments rose 24.5 per cent in 1947, while State revenues climbed 17.8 per cent. This aid included both local shares of State-collected taxes and grants to localities for specific purposes.

Wisconsin used 54.2 per cent of its total expenditures in aiding localities. No other State used as much for that purpose. Colorado was second with 52 per cent; Ohio third with 43.8 per cent; New York fourth with 42.8 per cent; California fifth with 41.9 per cent, and Indiana sixth with 40 per cent.

In dollars New York spent the most on local aid. Of total State expenditures amounting to 907 million dollars last year, New York spent 388 million dollars on local governments.

The largest share of local aid was $1,131,000,000 to help support schools. Local public welfare services received 497 million dollars, highways 437 million, and other functions 539 million.

Federal Sales Tax GOP Goal, Dingell Says

By the United Press

Representative John D. Dingell (D., Mich.) said yesterday there is a "strong possibility" a Federal sales tax will be imposed if the Republicans retain control of Congress and win the White House.

His prediction was contained in a reply to statement by Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.) of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee. Knutson said many wartime excise taxes would have to be kept permanently.

Dingell, who frequently speaks for the Administration on tax matters, said Knutson's statement was "strictly in accord with Republican sentiment in Congress for a Federal sales tax." He said the records of the hearings of the Ways and Means Committee contain "dozens of references by Republican members in favor of a Federal sales tax."

One member, Representative Bertrand W. Gerhart (R., Calif.) already had introduced a bill to put on a general 10 per cent sales tax at the manufacturers' level, Dingell said. But he said the Republicans would never dare to try to put through a sales tax while there is a Democrat in the White House, because they know it would be vetoed.

Maharajah At Bombay

Bombay, India, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—The Maharajah of Baroda arrived by airplane today en route to New Delhi to tell the Indian government how he allegedly spent 10 million dollars of his government's money on a six-week holiday in Europe and the United States.

A chartered plane was standing by to take the fabulously wealthy Gaekwar of the princely state to the Indian capital Tuesday, before he goes home to face his enraged legislature. The legislature has demanded that the Gaekwar abdicate in favor of Crown Prince Fatehsinha Gaekwar, 17-year-old son of the Gaekwar's first wife.

A report from Baroda said police used tear gas yesterday to disperse a crowd of mill workers who demonstrated in front of the secretariat building. The demonstration had no connection with the legislature's grievance against the Gaekwar, this report said.

Friends forecast yesterday Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will shape his presidential campaign toward helping elect enough party lawmakers to cinch unfaltering Republican control of Congress.

Dewey and Gov. Earl Warren of California, his running mate, will fix their campaign dates at Albany conferences in the next few days. A Dewey spokesman already has made it clear these will include States with close senatorial races.

Republican Senate control is none too firm with only a 51-to-45 margin over the Democrats.

The six-vote difference has been enough on strictly party matters. But it isn't too dependable on controversial questions. In fact, the Republicans at times have had to lean on Democratic support—particularly from Southerners—to get their measures over.

The rub is that all of the 18 Republican seats at stake are in States where the Democrats can't be counted entirely out of the running. The Democrats are putting 14 seats on the voting block, only four of them outside the South.

Of the 18 jobs now held by Republicans, party members think they have the inside track in all but five contests. These are in Oklahoma, West Virginia, Kentucky, Wyoming and Minnesota.

Dewey's itinerary is expected to carry him into all of these areas for the help he may be able to give candidates by pepping up Republican enthusiasm through his speeches.

Republicans are gunning for four Democratic Senate seats outside the South. They are in Colorado, New Mexico, Montana and Rhode Island. They want Dewey to visit all these areas.

In addition, they think he might profitably spend some time in Tennessee, where B. Carroll Reece, former GOP national chairman, is the party's senatorial nominee. They have suggested that the New York Governor also take a crack at North Carolina and Virginia, with the assumption that he has some chance of carrying these States.

The presidential nominee did some preconvention campaigning in these areas and also in Maryland, where the Republicans want him to pay a return visit.

There is every indication that Dewey will do some campaigning in President Truman's home State of Missouri. His spokesmen have said he has tentative speaking dates in Indiana and Montana. They have indicated he will tour the Pacific Coast.

Watkins Pins 'Do Nothing' Tag on Truman

Senator Arthur V. Watkins (R., Utah) yesterday struck back at President Truman's description of the Eightieth Congress as a "do nothing" Congress.

Speaker over Station WINX, the Senator said "more evidence points to Mr. Truman as a 'do nothing' President."

Watkins also defended the Republicans and attacked the Democratic administration in a radio forum over WINX last night in which Senators George W. Malone (R., Nev.), John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), and J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) also were participants.

ERA, Defense Cited

In the afternoon interview, Watkins listed as the "two principal causes of inflation" the European Recovery Program and the expanded defense program.

Both were enacted at the President's request, he said.

Under the recovery program the President has powers to combat inflation, Watkins said, in a clause which declares that no assistance may be provided under the Act which will seriously impair the economic stability of the United States.

Watkins said the Republicans had insisted upon this clause, and the President should use this and other powers to limit export of scarce materials such as steel, clothing and food.

During the evening forum, "Did Congree Do Its Job?" Watkins said he failed to see "anybody get hot under the collar" about the special session's record, and pointed out that during the 13-day meeting, legislation for housing, credit controls and a United Nations Building loan had been passed.

Administration a "Dark Page"

Watkins' fellow Republican, Malone, said that instead of the record of the Eightieth Congress "being a dark page in history," the whole Roosevelt-Truman Administrations will be a "dark page."

McGrath, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, charged that Congress had "failed to enact a workable program to meet inflation."

McGrath's Democratic colleague, Sparkman, said the Republicans in Congress during the special session had played politics instead of doing the job, "dipping down the President's program to No. 13 on the program, civil rights, because they knew it would tie up the Senate, but the country has seen through this maneuver."

"We should have stayed in session," Sparkman said, "and done something to curb inflation."

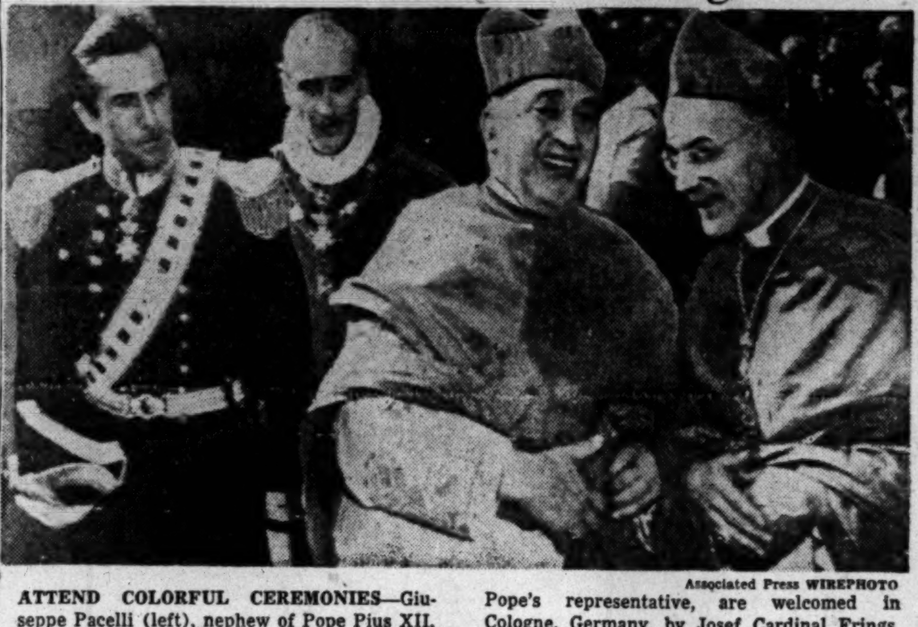
Chinese Government Orders Pay Increases

Shanghai, Aug. 15 (AP).—Vainly trying to catch up with inflation, the Chinese government today ordered wages raised 95 per cent.

Workers complained that it was too little, and employers expressed fears they could not get enough bales of currency at the banks to meet Monday's mid-month payrolls.

Latest black market quotation on the Chinese Yuan dollar was 11,500,000 to $1 United States.

250,000 Catholics Mark 700th Anniversary Of War-Battered Cathedral at Cologne



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

ATTEND COLORFUL CEREMONIES—Giuseppe Pacelli (left), nephew of Pope Pius XII, and Clemente Cardinal Micara (center), the Pope's representative, are welcomed in Cologne, Germany, by Josef Cardinal Frings, archbishop of Cologne

By Edwin Hartrich

Cologne, Germany, Aug. 15 (NYHT).—The 700th anniversary of Cologne Cathedral was observed today with pomp and solemnity by the Roman Catholic church and the people of this bomb-battered city. More than 250,000 worshippers filled the streets around the cathedral while Josef Cardinal Frings, nine-second Archbishop of Cologne, celebrated mass.

Seven other cardinals from Europe and 35 bishops, including two American prelates, marched in a colorful procession to the cathedral, returning precious relics removed during the war. Today's ceremony was the official reopening of the huge Gothic structure, badly damaged by bombing.

In his sermon, Cardinal Frings paid tribute to the generosity of Catholics abroad. "The Cathedral of Cologne lives again; its heart beats again; Christ the Lord dwells here again," Cardinal Frings said. "For this we must give our thanks to gifts of Catholics from abroad . . . especially do we want to mention the National Catholic Welfare Conference of America."

Assisting in celebrating the solemn pontifical high mass was Clemente Cardinal Micara, envoy of Pope Pius XII, who was accompanied by the Pope's nephew, Prince Giulio Pacelli.

In a letter read during the ceremony, the Pope, obviously referring to the Soviet Union, said:

"This wonderful event comes at a time when many troubles beset the peoples of the world, at a time when new threats come on top of old ones, at a time when no peace has really been achieved and agreements that have been reached have been invalidated by groups who, to use the words of Tacitus, do not have anything to expect from peaceful conditions and therefore are interested in stirring up trouble."

The cornerstone of the cathedral was laid on August 15, 1248.

Jap Premier Sees Hope in Allied Policy

Tokyo, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—On this third anniversary of Japanese defeat in World War II, Prime Minister Hitoshi Ashida said his people see a new ray of hope for the future and he praised the enthusiasm of the Allied powers in trying to put Japan back on her feet.

"The Japanese people now see a ray of hope in the future of their country as reconstruction efforts begin to bear fruit," he said.

He added that production is increasing and that the inflation spiral had slowed down.

More than 50,000 Japanese trade union members observed the anniversary at a meeting in the Imperial Plaza. They adopted a resolution against the new no-strike, no-collective bargaining policy for government workers.

American policy envisages a self-supporting Japan at a fairly early date with American authorities in Tokyo still favoring a peace treaty for Japan as soon as possible, it is reported.

Beach Idyll Ends in Rape, 2 Murders

Ormond, Fla., Aug. 15 (AP).—A summer night idyll on the warm sands of a moonlit beach for a young man and his date ended with the murder of both and the rape of the young woman, Sheriff Alex Littlefield said today.

The bodies of Gregory Blount, 23, of Lexington, Ky., and attractive, 24-year-old Mary Hucks of East Point, Ga., were found by a young boy.

Sheriff Littlefield said Miss Hucks' crumpled and bruised body, stripped of a scanty bathing suit, was found about 100 yards from where Blount lay as if asleep on a blanket.

"There is no doubt," said the sheriff, "that she was raped."

He said a physician placed the time of the murders at around 9 o'clock last night and added, "from the indentations in the blanket both were asleep and Blount was shot first."

Miss Hucks, awakened by the shot, sought to flee, but was run down by her asailant and dragged into a clump of palmetto brush, the sheriff continued.

She put up a bitter struggle, but before she died, the sheriff said, "they had taken their pleasure of her."

Arias Gets 48 Hours to Quit Costa Rica

San Jose, Costa Rica, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Former Panamanian President Arnulfo Arias Madrid has been ordered to leave Costa Rica within 48 hours because of his "imprudent attitude," it was announced today.

Arias was arrested by an armed patrol yesterday when he returned unexpectedly to Costa Rica from Guatemala. No reason was given for the action, but it was apparently linked to rumors he was assembling an army of Panamanian insurgents on Costa Rican soil.

It was believed he would leave the country sometime tomorrow.

Arias fled here from Panama August 4, asserting he had been cheated of victory in the May 9 presidential election. An early vote count had named Arias as winner of the election, but the final verdict proclaimed government candidate Domingo Diaz Arosemena president-elect.

Fetes Launch New Korea

Seoul, Korea, Aug. 15 (AP).—South Koreans noisily but peacefully celebrated the birth of the Republic of Korea today with a number of parades.

Most formal was the march of 10,000 constabularymen and 1000 coast guards.

Symbolically, the constabulary ripped off insignia—thus proclaiming itself an army—while coast guardsmen wore for the first time the new emblem of the Korean Navy.

Many civilian organizations also paraded.

In the ceremonies marking the inaugural of the American-sponsored government, General MacArthur told Koreans the barrier separating this southern half of their country from the Soviet-held north "must and will be torn down."

MacArthur and his wife flew to Seoul especially for the event. The MacArthurs flew back to Tokyo during the afternoon.

Actual transfer of the government from American to Korean hands is due to begin Monday.

Chinese Force Moves to Break Tsinan Siege

Nanking, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Chinese Central News Agency said today strong government forces were marching northward in an effort to break the Communist siege of Tsinan, Shantung provincial capital.

Tsinan has been cut off for more than a month. The relief column was reported to have moved more than 50 miles north from Suchow but still was more than 110 miles short of Tsinan.

Another government army was reported driving north from Sian in a bid to open an overland route to Taiyuan, capital of Shansi Province.

A Tientsin dispatch said a Communist division commander, Gen. Ku Ching-shan, had surrendered and was in "protective custody" there.

D. C., Va. Boys Win Soap Box Derby Heats

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Donald Strub, 13, from Warren, Ohio, won the national soap box derby today on his third try at the championship.

Donald piloted his sleek little red "crate on wheels" down the 975-foot "gravity grind" in 27.09 seconds.

Gary Turley of Charleston, W. Va., was second and William Brown, 15, of Atherton, Calif., was third.

A crowd of 70,000 watched young Strub win. He was racing as Akron's entry.

Fourth place went to Richard T. Martter, 15, of Los Angeles; fifth to Durward Collins, 15 of Indianapolis, Ind., and sixth place was won by Douglas Gsell, 14, of Mount Holly, N. J.

Heat 43 was won by John E. Broyles of Washington, D. C. Time—27.82. While heat 1 was won by Cirvine Cather, jr, Winchester, Va., in 27.79.

Burmese Planes in Action

Rangoon, Burma, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Burmese air force went into action today against insurgents attempting to capture a police station at Syriam, 3 miles up river from Rangoon, a government communique said. The statement said planes supported ground forces who engaged the insurgents, killing 10 and wounding several.

'Reynaud Plan' Aims to Make France Solvent

Paris, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Finance Minister Paul Reynaud has set out to put French industry and agriculture on a paying basis before American aid to France ends in June, 1952.

Details of the "Reynaud plan" are secret. But the broad blueprint has leaked out.

Reynaud wants to launch a big national loan, the first since 1944, to give the government the money it needs without increasing the number of paper notes in circulation.

The basis of the Reynaud plan is mass production at cheap prices. Domestically, the key is agriculture.

His main worry is that the present government, like all others since the liberation, will fall from under him before he can get his plan really working.

Coffee Niagara Tickles U. S. Palate Yearly

Beer drinkers are a poor third, soft drink devotees fourth and the "hard liquor" imbibers a limping fifth, they said.

The Northwestern National life Insurance Co. estimated that Americans will consume nearly eight billion gallons of coffee this year, enough to keep Niagara Falls flowing for 67 minutes.

The experts canculated that 80 per cent of the coffee is brewed and drunk at home, and the other 20 per cent consumed in public eating places. The total amounts to 55 gallons per capita.

Americans will consume nearly seven billion gallons of milk, or about 48 gallons per capita. This would keep a river the size of the Mississippi at Minneapolis flowing for 43 hours.

The beer drinkers will put away 2,700,000,000 gallons, or 19 gallons per capita. The total would fill a string of railway freight cars long enough to reach from Pittsburgh to San Francisco.

Hard liquor consumption amounts to only five quarts per capita, or about enough for a lost weekend, the statisticians said.

Meat Buying About Normal

Chicago, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Many of the Nation's housewives forgot about high prices long enough to put meat on the Sunday dinner table, a survey showed today.

A spot check of butchers across the country revealed that buying Friday and Saturday—the heaviest days of the week—generally was normal and even up a little, despite organized strikes or other resistance.

Some shopkeepers believed that "papa put the pressure on" to have meat for his Sunday dinner.

In a few cities there were reports of sharp declines in areas where housewives have been militant in their rebellion against high meat prices.

But at Dallas, where housewives spearheaded the drive to buy no meat last week, revolt leaders admitted they had failed in the first test. They said they were determined to carry on the fight through August.

A check of Dallas butchers showed business generally good, with some declines. But they, like shopkeepers elsewhere, preferred to blame warm weather and the vacation slack period for any slumps, rather than consumer resistance.

The survey showed only scattered instances of price cutting.

Council Recess Dubious

Lake Success, Aug. 15 (AP).—Hopes of the United Nations Security Council for a month-long recess today hinged on developments in Palestine.

Delegates have made plans to wind up business here this week and reconvene in Paris September 21, when the General Assembly opens its regular annual session. Only emergency meetings would be held during the interval.

However Israeli's bid for an early end to the truce and Egypt's outright rejection of the Jewish request for peace talks have complicated the Holy Land picture.

To Consider Request

The Israeli truce request, already circulated to reporters, probably will be laid before the council formally Wednesday, when Palestine debate is resumed. In effect, it asks the United Nations to lift the truce restrictions and allow the new Jewish state to settle the future status of the country in its own way.

Other problems which the council must dispose of—at least temporarily—are Trieste, Ceylon's membership application, and plans for global arms reduction.

Yugoslavia's demand that the U. N. find the United States and Britain guilty of violating the Italian peace treaty in their administration of Trieste will be discussed Monday. The Yugoslav resolution is expected to win the support of only Russia and the Soviet Ukraine.

Ceylon Veto Threatened

In addition to Palestine, the council calendar for Wednesday lists Ceylon. Russia has threatened to veto the application of the new Asiatic nation.

The commission on conventional armaments plans to meet Tuesday to approve a report to the council saying that actual arms reduction cannot be caried out under present international tension. The council probably will debate the report late in the week and pass it on to the Assembly.

Indian Independence Celebrated at Embassy

By Marie McNair

A year ago on August 15 the saffron, white and green flag of India went up for the first time at the Indian Embasy, proclaiming the end of that country's long fought battle to be free.

Yesterday the flag was raised again marking the first anniversary of independence and similar ceremonies were held on the rolling lawn of the hill-top embassy on Macomb st.

Since that day last summer a new Ambassador represents his country and India has lost its great leader Mahatma Gandhi, whose portrait wreathed in white flowers, yesterday stood upon a white-draped bier in the shaded garden.

A colorful pictorial scene greeted first guests arriving yesterday for the morning ceremony. There were the bright gold bordered saris of the ladies of the embassy staff dotting the lawn; the trim fitted, then flaring black coats topping long skin-tight white breeches of the men. And wide-eyed Indian tots in their native costumes scampered over the grass.

Yellow Rose in Hair

For her first party since arriving on Tuesday from England, Lady Rama Rau wore a creamy yellow gown with a tangerine-colored sari overdrape held at the shoulder with a jeweled clasp. She had tucked a pale yellow rose in her silver hair.

The Indian Minister and Mme. Nehru stood with the Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau to welcome the guests, Mme. Nehru in a muted rose-colored sari with edge of gold.

Miss Santha Rama Rau, Wellesley-educated daughter of the hosts, was there and winsome Asha Wagle, 4-year-old granddaughter of the Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau, was winning friends right and left as she darted through the gathering dressed in a green and white dotted swiss frock and carrying a rosy cheeked doll lovingly in her arms.

Overhead the sun shone brightly as the Ambassador made a brief address to commemorate the event, and uniformed officers snapped to salute as India's national anthem was chorused by a group of Indian girls.

Members of the Diplomatic Corps who are still in town in this favorite holiday month, came to offer their felicitations to the new Ambassador and his charming lady. I met the New Zealand Minister, Sir Carl Berendsen, and Lady Berendsen, wearing a cool pale blue and white print, both just back from a visit to Mrs. Robert E. Lee 3d, at Enchantment, her summer home, at Flat Rock in the North Carolina mountains. The Irish Minister, Sean Nunan, and Mrs. Nunan in gray and white, were there and the Minister of Syria and Mme. El-Khouri; the Liberian Minister and Mrs. Charles King, the Yugoslav Ambassador, Sava Kosanovic, and the Polish Ambassador, Josef Winiewicz.

The Canadian Minister, Thomas Stone, represented his country, along with the military attache, Brig. H. E. Taber, and from Cuba there was Joaquin Meyer, Minister-Counselor of the embassy.

State Dept. Represented

Ray Muir, assistant chief of protocol, Donald Kennedy, chief of the International Resources Division of the State Department, and Mrs. Kennedy, were in a group on the wide terrace where coffee lavishly spiked with ice cream was a popular drink.

Then I saw Mario Rodriguez, Minister Counselor of the Chilean Embassy, and the Ambassador of El Salvador, Dr. Hector David Castro, accompanied by Senora de Castro, whose brown and white print gown was topped with a brimmed brown hat; Mrs. English Gordon, all in white, with Mr. and Mrs. E Edward G. Cale, and Mr. and Mrs. Jamshed Vesugar, the latter wearing powder blue linen to match her eyes.

Lovely to look at was Mme. Ispahani, accompanying her husband, the Pakistan Ambassador, whose knee length tunic was of gray broadcloth and worn with a gray astrakhan cap. A black sari fell over Mme. Ispahani's long rose and green print gown and was draped in graceful folds over her dark hair.

Others there were Mrs. Loy Henderson, wife of the new United States Ambassador to India; the Colombian Ambassador and Senora de Restrepo, F. R. Hoyer Millar, British Minister.

Man Pleads With His Betrothed to Cut Her Hair, Which Falls to Her Knees When Loose; She Treasures Her Tresses, Causing Quarrels

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am engaged to a wonderful girl who was widowed in the last war, and we are planning to be married in September. Our happiness is complete except for one thing: we dispute about her long, heavy hair.

Jane's hair is a beautiful shade of auburn which falls in a shining mass to her knees when loose, but regardless of how she wears it, her head looks topheavy and out of proportion; and despite my insistent pleading that a short hairstyle would be more becoming, she stubbornly refuses to consider it, for the sentimental reason that her former husband liked her hair long.

She was merely surprised by my suggestion at first, but we've had some unpleasant arguments about it since. She claims that I knew how she felt about her hair when I proposed marriage, hence shouldn't try to change her now.

Stormy Session Sparks Appeal

IF JANE had refused to cut her hair all these years due to personal pride in it, I could understand and sympathetically accept her attitude; but old friends of hers have told me that she would have bobbed her tresses years ago if her husband would have permitted it.

I feel that if she is to be my wife, she should willingly make this sacrifice for me, but instead she treats her long hair as a living memorial to her former husband; and I am beginning to have misgivings about marrying her. I love her very much and this is only one small issue; but what of larger ones that may come later?

Am I wrong in forcing the issue, by insisting that she cut her hair—or else? If I just let matters take their course, there may be no end to these ghosts of her past. After a stormy session, we have agreed to abide by your decision, so please advise us. P. L.

Girl Camouflages Narcissistic View

DEAR P. L.: It may be that Jane's former husband cherished a fetish-attachment to her mermaid's tresses; but even so, her obstinate refusal to prune her locks to more civilized proportions cannot be attributed to his moot bias.

The truth is, that Jane is the slave of her own private theory that her heavy topknot is a most potent distinguishing feature of femininity; and in the one man's alleged preference she found a plausible defense against the majority's dim view of her obsolete hairdress.

It appears that her cumbersome coiffure has been a topic of unflattering speculation amongst her women friends for years; and during her first marriage she could hide her quirkish narcissism behind a mask of wifely subservience, by saying, "My husband won't let me cut my hair," an advertisement of his alleged mastery that was salve to his ego, no doubt.

No Warrant for Man's Jealousy

SHE is guilty of regrettable tomfoolery in perpetuating this line to the present time, inasmuch as it complicates the issue wretchedly, causing you to feel jealously inconsequential in her scheme of things as compared to the dear departed, hence at this point far more concerned to rout his ghost than to change her dowdy hair-do.

To minimize the quarrel, Jane should be honest enough with herself and you to admit that she clings to her frumpish hank of hair for compulsive reasons indigenous to her peculiar emotional make-up, and not in the least because her former mate felt thus-and-so. There is no foundation for your anxious assumption that he exercised (and retains) more influence with her than you can wield.

Jane is a stubborn individualist per se, and if you don't find her predominantly agreeable, attractive and acceptable as is, your misgivings about the advisability of marriage are seriously justified. In short, if she can't find pleasure in styling her looks to suit you, or if you can't abide a conspicuous attribute of her appearance, which seems hopeless of remedy, then your hearts aren't right in relation to each other and you ought to part company. M. H.

Better Buy

Grade B eggs, which are usually plentiful at this time of year, are often a better buy for many cooking uses than grade A eggs because they cost less by the dozen, the United States Department of Agriculture reminds thrifty housewives.

Grade B eggs have been selling on retail markets this summer at from 5 to 15 cents less a dozen than grade A eggs, yet they have essentially the same nutritive value and for most cooking purposes are just as good.

Every housewife who counts her pennies should understand the difference between the more expensive AA or A grade eggs and those of lower grade. AA or A grade eggs have a large proportion of firm white standing up well around the yolk, and the yolk itself is round and upstanding.

Eggs of lower quality have a smaller proportion of thick white and more thin white. When broken, the whites spread out more and the yolk is less round and may break easily. This is why grade A eggs are better for poaching, frying and cooking in water. But for scrambling and other cooking purposes, the thrifty housewife can save on her food budget by buying grade B.

Mothers Tell How to Travel Comfortably With Children

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

A number of personal experience letters have accumulated on my desk. So, I'll give you the benefit of what two mothers have discovered in practice.

The first is on traveling and I hope it doesn't come too late for vacationists. Mrs. C. L. writes, "I have found that for the baby it is most convenient to apportion out her dry cereal into individual envelopes, one for each meal. The cereal used to spill out of the box and glass jars can get broken. These are easy to carry.

"In place of orange juice I use ascorbic acid tablets when traveling. On our trip in the car we take the playpen, with extra bedding and the pad. Each night the baby uses the pen for a bed and when we reach our destination it doubles as bed and playpen.

Auto Seat Used

"I found baby's auto seat very convenient to use on the train. I put corn starch in an empty powder can to use when necessary. Also, I take along all the baby's medicines, just in case, and a rubber sheet and every necessity for the children, to save my hostess' bed and to avoid borrowing her belongings.

"I make a surprise package of small cars and dolls, 'Old Maid' cards, comics and small games to amuse the older children. And on the train I find the convenience of a drawing room is worth every extra cent it costs."

Try Road Games

It's well for mothers to devise games children can play while rushing through the country by car. My own children used to collect county numbers, State licenses (by sight only); all the barns on one or the other side of a road, or all the trucks, or all the white horses, making a game of it for a specified number of miles and getting some trivial prize for the winner.

It's fun, too, and holds their interest on straight stretches of road to find some distant object, estimate its distance and then check by the speedometer. Anything to keep children from being bored with the passing miles.

Mrs. W. P. M. suggests that some mothers may not recognize that a rubber pad directly under the sheet may be causing a child to perspire heavily. Always cover the rubber sheet with a quilted pad so the baby or child does not sleep directly on it.

Sundae Spells Festive Dessert

Did you know that the word "Sundae" used to be spelled Sunday?

The story goes that ice cream sodas were once considered too frivolous to serve on Sundays. Somebody decided plain ice cream with a little fruit or syrup on top would be all right though, started making this dish, and calling it "Sunday." Somebody else decided to get fancy and change the "y" to an "e", so today we eat Sundaes—whenever we get a chance.

Homemade toppings are the best of all. Poured over "boughten" ice cream, they make a quick-and-easy dessert. Here are couple of ideas for them:

MELBA SAUCE

1 cup raspberries
½ cup currant jelly
½ cup sugar
½ tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon water

Wash raspberries and drain. Add jelly and sugar and heat to boiling. Blend cornstarch with water and add to fruit, stirring until mixture is smooth. Cook slowly 10 minutes. Strain and cool. This recipe makes 1½ cups sauce.

CHOCOLATE MOCHA SAUCE

1/3 cup very strong, strained coffee
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 square chocolate, grated
2 teaspoons very strong coffee
1 teaspoon butter
½ teaspoon vanilla

Put the sugar, salt, chocolate and 1/3 cup coffee in saucepan and cook until soft ball stage is reached. Remove from fire, add 2 additional teaspoons of coffee, butter cut in bits, and vanilla, but do not stir. Let stand until lukewarm, then beat until thick and creamy. Turn over vanilla ice cream and serve.

Glamour on Ice

HOT TIP . . . There's nothing like cold cologne to refresh you after the bath. Summer frost right out of the refrigerator can give you a quick pick-up

By Betty Clarke

IT IS difficult to keep sweet-smelling and fresh as a daisy during the summer months even if you dunk yourself in a tubful of water at least once a day. But there are other tricks that help you keep cool and lovely when the mercury soars.

Cold showers often are too shocking after a session in the sun, and sometimes make you feel even warmer afterwards. Be sure to take the chill out of your bath or shower water.

Some girls move their cosmetic shelves into the refrigerator so that they are not bothered with hot astringents or mushy creams. On a hot day put a little of a good rich cream or bottled sweet cream over your face and neck before climbing into the tub.

After the bath use some of your ice-cold astringent, pat it gently over face and neck. A light, fragrant, frosty cologne right out of your refrigerator, if patted directly on your warm body after you step out of the tub, will keep you dainty and fragrant for hours.

As a matter of fact, it is a good idea to empty some cologne from your big bottle into a small jar or other container which can be carried in your handbag and used throughout the day. Then, for times when you are hot and sticky and must keep appointments, you can pat a bit of the cologne on your wrists, arms and throat to give you a quick pick-up.

One model passed on her own beauty-cologne trick. To remove makeup in emergencies, she dabs a bit of it on cotton and swishes it over her face, follows it quickly with cold water.

Prune Nut Bread for Sandwiches

Delicious for summer sandwiches is prune net bread. Use cream cheese, jelly and peanut butter for the filling. Here is the way to make the bread:

PRUNE NUT BREAD

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ cup sugar
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup rolled oats
1¼ cups buttermilk or sour milk
2 tablespoons melted fat
1 cup diced, drained, cooked prunes
½ cup chopped nut meats

Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, soda and salt. Add rolled oats and mix thoroughly. Combine buttermilk with slightly cooled fat. (To make sweet milk sour, add 1 tablespoon of vinegar to 1¼ cups of sweet milk.) Add to the flour mixture with prunes and nuts, stirring just enough to moisten the dry ingredients. Batter should be lumpy.) Put into well-greased loaf pan, 9x5x3 inches. Place extra halves of prunes and whole nut meats on top. Bake in moderate open (350°-375°F.) for one hour or until done. Turn out on rack to cool. Yield: one loaf.

About Hand Bags To Be Remodeled

Will you tell me where I can have handbags remodeled? V. S.

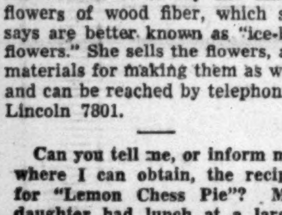
Several local firms do repair and minor remodeling work in leather handbags. However, they say that complete remodeling jobs—on old-fashioned alligator handbags, for instance—are rarely worthwhile as they cost more than a new bag would. Such firms are listed under "Leather Goods" in the yellow section of the telephone book. I'd suggest your taking the handbag you want remodeled to one of these shops and discussing your problem with a worker there.

To L. L.: Still another reader has written in to say she makes flowers of wood fiber, which she says are better known as "ice-box flowers." She sells the flowers, and materials for making them as well, and can be reached by telephoning Lincoln 7801.

Can you tell me, or inform me where I can obtain, the recipe for "Lemon Chess Pie"? My daughter had lunch at a large Richmond department store recently and the pie, which she says was the most delicious she ever ate, was served there. It was baked in the crust, a golden brown on top. B. E. S.

PETUNIA!

Fresher than the wind is . .
Subtler than the sea . . .



The taste of avocado
Is sheerest poetry!

And to be sure you get the full flavor, Petunia, NEVER store a hard avocado in the refrigerator, or it will lose its ripening power. Store it in a cool place, but NOT under 40 degrees.

Bishop-Bracken

The only chess pie recipe I have is the following:

- 1 cup sugar
- ½ cup butter
- 2 or 3 eggs
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ¼ cup thick cream
- 1 cup chopped walnut meats
- 1¼ cups raisins
- Enough pastry to line 12 3-inch tart shells or muffin tins.

Sift sugar and add gradually to the butter, which has been beaten until it is soft. Blend until creamy; then beat in the eggs, one at a time. Add lemon juice, cream, chopped walnut meats, and raisins. Pour this mixture into baked pie shells. Place in slow oven (325 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake until filling is firm. Let pies cool in pans. If desired, top with whipped cream for serving.

This chess pie differs from those served me in my youth—and possibly from those your daughter found in the Richmond tea room—in that they did not contain walnuts and raisins. Possibly you can obtain the exact recipe by writing the restaurant, although such culinary secrets sometimes are not divulged. Or perhaps one of our readers has a prize, old-fashioned chess pie recipe and will be generous enough to share it with us.

Will you tell me what kinds of flowers dry successfully, and how one goes about doing it? J. A. M. M.

From your question, I take it that you are interested in drying flowers to use as decorations in the home in the winter, rather than in pressing flowers. This is quite a wide subject, but here are a few ideas gleaned from several sources.

"Flower Arranging for the American Home," by Gladys Taber and Ruth Kistner (which you may be able to obtain at your local library or buy in a bookshop) has a chapter on dried flower arrangements. They list the following among flowers, plants, etc., which lend themselves well to this use: Strawflowers, Queen Anne's lace, goldenrod, yarrow, Joe Pye weed, bittersweet, poppy and iris seed pods, Scotch broom, mullen, dock, cattails, ferns, bayberry, magnolia leaves and seed pods, thistles, wheat, oats and rye. Practically all of these can be obtained in fields and woods, though some, like the strawflowers, poppy, and iris, are planted in the garden. The authors suggest hanging flowers head down in a cool dry place in order to preserve the color while they are drying.

The winter floral arrangements in the restored buildings at Williamsburg, Va., have become quite famous. Here autumn leaves are gathered as soon as they attain their most brilliant hues. They are put between layers of newspapers, weighted down by board frames, and left for 3 weeks in a warm dry place such as a warm attic until thoroughly dry. Hydrangeas are gathered at three stages—green, beige, and colored—and dried head down in a warm, dry, dark place. Goldenrod is cut just before it bursts into bloom and dried in the same way. Red and yellow coxcombs from the garden are also used, as well as Yorktown onions, which are peculiar to that region and bloom in big purple balls. All sorts of native grasses and seed pods are used.

The Missouri botanical gardens worked out a scheme for sand drying flowers a few years ago. Dahlias of the smaller type, zinnias, marigold, Transvaal daisies, and sunflowers can be preserved in this way, according to an article on the subject. Fine sand is sifted through three layers of ordinary window screening. It is then heated in the oven in order to thoroughly dry it out. A little is put in the bottom of a large bucket and the flowers are stuck in this, stem down. The bucket is then slowly filled with sand. Particular care must be taken to fill the flowers carefully so they retain their shape. The sand must completely cover them. The bucket is then placed in a dry room and left undisturbed at least a month, sometimes five or six weeks if necessary. The sand is then poured out carefully. Flowers thus dried will retain freshness, coloring, and shape for months if protected from dampness, sun, wind and dust, says the article. Not too many flowers can be dried in one bucket or the sand will become too moist.

I wish to give a friend of mine a drinking glass with a message inscribed on it. Can you tell me of anyone in Washington who does this kind of work? J. J. M.

A local firm which can have the message cut into the glass can be reached by telephoning Columbia 2131.

Overweights Can Improve Bust Contour

By Ida Jean Kain

Most overweights have a problem bust measurement because these tissues take on fat readily and the added weight causes the bust to sag. There is only one way to reduce the size of this measurement and that is to reduce the weight generally. It is possible to reduce the size from a 40 to a perfect 36 by cutting calories and taking off the excess pounds.

But there is more to dieting than simply leaving off the fattening foods. The low-calorie menus must be high in the protective nutrients so as to increase vitality as the weight is removed. Vitality has a direct influence on the glands, and the breasts are glands. Reducing on an inadequate diet or taking the weight off too rapidly would simply ravage the bosom since this is the first place affected by weight loss.

There are any number of reducing diets, but there is only one that is safe to follow—that is the 1000 to 1200 calorie menus made up of protective foods. You may know them, but do you have daily: milk, eggs, cheese, lean meat, fish or fowl, fresh fruits, green and yellow vegetables and whole grain bread or cereals? These can be included in adequate amounts for the 1200 calories that meet the average reducing requirements. It's not really "dieting," it's protective eating on a low-calorie scale.

Tones pectoral muscles..

Now, about exercise. The pectoral muscles need toning. The pectoralis major is a large fan-shaped muscle which lies just under the skin and spreads over each side of the chest. The action center of htis muscle is in the upper arm, and special arm exercise will help restore tone to these muscles. Exercise will not reduce the bust, but it will improve the tone of the muscles and help to raise the bust to a normal lovely position.

Skin tone is important too, and it is a good plan to splash cold water over the throat, chest and bust morning and night. The cold water helps to tone up the skin. But it takes exercise to tone the muscles. Resistance and stretching bar exercises are among the best.

Position: Rig up a stretching bar in a doorway and stand grasping the bar, stretched to full extension.

Movement: Pulling upward, raise the toes almost off the floor. Hold and lower. Do not try to chin yourself, just pulling upward tones the pectoral muscles. As you pull up, lower the head slightly backward to stretch the throat muscles too. Repeat 10 counts, later 20.

Send self-addressed, stamped envelope to The Washington Post for Ida Jean Kain's Summer Slimming Diet.

Cooking Cues

The flavor of the dressing used will best permeate the cabbage if cold slaw is made about an hour or so before it is to be served; it should be chilled in the refrigerator.

Cooked rice is excellent added to chicken and celery salad; it not only gives a pleasing texture contrast but is a good extender. The rice used in this way should be cooked only until done and then spread in a wide pan and dried in the oven.

Strawberries, pineapple and rhubarb team up well in a fruit cup, a salad, a pie or a pudding.

In buying a pork loin for a large family have some chops cut off for one meal, then roast the rest of the meat for another.

If you are serving chilled cream of chicken or mushroom soup be sure to garnish each bowl with a bright vegetable: use very thin slices of radish, thin cucumber strips, chopped green pepper or parsley, coarsely grated carrot.

Try baking a meat loaf mixture in a square pan, then cutting it in squares for serving.

To pep up a macaroni or potato salad add a little prepared mustard to the mayonnaise, blending well. Finely diced or grated onion is also a flavor help for both these salads; or use a generous amount of onion power and mix with the dressing.

A Good Scrubbing

Never use a metal coffee or tea pot that has been standing for a long time without giving it a good scrubbing with a metal cleanser. There is a certain amount of corrosion that must be removed before the pot is used even though it is not apparent to the eye.

A Little More Handy

If a jar of silver polish were kept in close proximity to the sink, it might inspire the housewife to rub up a few pieces of silver that are in need of cleaning when she is doing her dishes.

THINK YOU MAY FIT?

Betty used to be a dept. store clerk, Sadie and Blackie are ex-Wacs, Helen and Carol were teachers, Chris had a dress shop, Bobbie is a recent high school graduate—and we all 20 make up the Classified Dept. at The Post.

Talking to people, typing their ads, putting ideas to work, keeping a few records, selling advertising—many different duties, make our jobs lively. Dealing with many people by telephone really keeps you on your toes.

If you plan to stay in D. C., and are looking for full-time work with plenty of opportunity to put your initiative to work, call us—NA. 9118, Monday.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

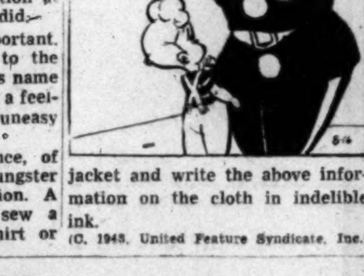
"My Name Is . . . ."

As a precautionary measure, a number of parents I know have made a special effort to teach their child to be able to give his name, address and telephone number soon after he began to talk.

They didn't expect their Johnny or Marie to get lost, but they think it a good idea for the youngsters to have such information at their tongues' end if they did.

One thing is most important. No fear should be given to the child. Helping him learn his name and address should give him a feeling of achievement, not an uneasy or anxious attitude.

There's always the chance, of course, that a frightened youngster will forget such information. A further precaution is to sew a piece of cloth inside a shirt or jacket and write the above information on the cloth in indelible ink.



I'M LOST, OFFICER-- MY NAME IS JIMMY JONES I-LIVE-AT---

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

'Pied Type Dept.' Keeps Alert Readers Amused

William H. Heywood of 1301 Vermont ave. nw. is still figuring out which wheel was meant by the author of this gem from one of our afternoon contemporaries:

"An Australian motorist recently had to remove his front rear wheel to remove a dead snake."

Calvin Fallin of Falls Church, Va., thinks we shouldn't overlook this profound thought from our own sports page:

Kurt Nathan of 320 Nicholson st. nw. is alarmed by a report which appeared recently in the Boston Daily Globe. It stated that:

"The Republicans favor whatever laws are needed to prevent lunching."

Kurt feels that it will take more than a couple of laws to change this Nation's lunching habits.

TRAFFIC NOTES

Every time I get a chance to talk to Traffic Director George Keneipp I wind up with a couple of items.

This time, for example, I've finally found out why westbound traffic on Washington dr. encounters a sign which forbids a right turn at 14th st.

This "cutting across" played hob with 14th st. traffic until the sign was put up about 10 years ago. Now we go down Madison dr. instead of Washington dr., and continue straight across 14th st.

Another trick traffic question concerned the light on the northwest corner of 7th and Independence ave. nw.

In addition to the usual red and yellow, it has a full green and also a green arrow. There are no wing signs to explain these lights.

So I once asked a police inspector (now retired) whether auto traffic was permitted to turn right into 7th st. on the green arrow only, or on the full green light, too.

He scratched his head and muttered, "You've got me." Then he spent an hour checking regulations, and finally had to admit defeat.

"I couldn't find anything to cover your question," he told me. "But inasmuch as a green arrow has been provided, I would guess that you're not supposed to turn right on the full green light; you're supposed to wait for the arrow."

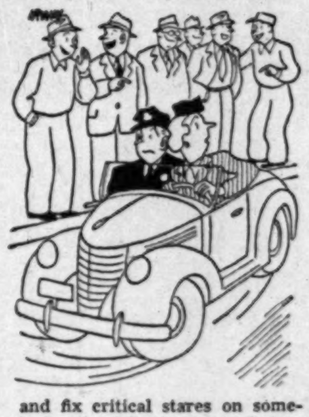
Keneipp tells me the inspector guessed wrong. Autos are permitted to turn right on both lights. Streetcars turn right on the green arrow only.

"Incidentally," I informed the genial traffic director, "Ellen Wilson of 1819 G st. nw., thinks you're a meanie. When she took her driver's test, she had to stand up on the sidewalk for an hour and a half until it was her turn."

"Why didn't she sit in her car?" asked Keneipp.

She didn't have one. She came down with a group of Auto Club pupils, and she can't understand why you object to installing benches at that point, so that applicants can wait in comparative comfort."

"The reason for that," said Keneipp, "is that we're trying to discourage those who are waiting from congregating at that point. They stand around and fix critical stares on somebody who is trying to back into a parking space neatly enough to pass his test, and they sometimes even make wisecracks which are audible to the applicant. Could you pass a test with a gallery like that?"



"I dunno," I replied. There have been times when fellow motorists have expressed the opinion that I must have won my driver's license in a crap game."

Nice fellow, that Keneipp. He laughs at my jokes.

DOUBLED AND REDOUBLED?

The pastor of a local congregation was expounding the evils of gambling the other Sunday.

"These so-called friendly games of bridge are a good example," he said. "They're played for varying stakes—sometimes high, sometimes low.

"But the amount involved doesn't matter. It's the principle that's important. Such gambling is wrong, even if you play for only 5 cents a point."

The bridge players shuddered in silence at the thought of holding Yarboroughs at a nickel a point.

As the congregation filed out at the conclusion of the service, one District Liner remarked to a neighbor:

INFLATION NOTE

A couple of months ago a District Liner gave me a $10,000 bill—Chinese. It was worth more than 3 cents in American money.

The morning mail brought another $10,000 in Chinese currency from Lieut. E. W. White, USN, who is a District Liner even when he's at sea.

Lieutenant White tells me that when he dispatched his bill, China's inflation had already depreciated it to a value of one half cent.

At that rate a million dollars wouldn't get you into an F st. movie.

And after seeing a few of the current releases, I'm inclined to think that might not be such a bad thing at that.

Listen to Bill Gold each noon, Monday through Saturday, over WINX (1340) and WINX-FM (96.3).

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—Bill Veeck, owner of the Cleveland Indians, received his education in baseball from his father—particularly about the sale and exchange of ballplayers. When the elder Veeck was an official of the Chicago Cubs he had an infielder named Hollacher who was one of the best in the major leagues. The Giants wanted him and John McGraw offered $100,000 for him. "I am very much interested in your offer," Veeck wrote in reply. "Please send me the batting and fielding averages of your $100,000."

The American Broadcasting Co. offered $10,000 each for Al Jolson and Bing Crosby, to appear in the Palace Theater show which inaugurated its new television station. Both refused the offer . . . Dore Schary, who left RKO to become head producer at the MGM studios, was in New York this week for a two-day conference. Schary, who signed a 14-year contract with MGM, said: "I'm in fine shape, unless Howard Hughes buys Metro" . . . Ambassador Lawrence Steinhardt returns to his post in Prague this week.

Next month the London hit, "Edward, My Son," will open on Broadway. The producers, who will be billed in that order, are Gilbert Miller and Henry Sherek. When the show was produced in England, Sherek proposed putting Miller's name first, and said: "That's what we call British hospitality." Miller replied: "That's very hospitable of you, and it also prevents a fight" . . . Sherek then suggested reciprocation—that when the show opens on Broadway, the Britisher's name should come first. "I am a hospitable man," replied Miller, "but in the Theater, hospitality never applied to laugh-lines or top billing."

Mac St. John, son of Adela Rogers St. John, is writing a book on Grover Cleveland Alexander the pitcher. One of the stories St. John will tell is of the days when Alexander, then the greatest pitcher in the big leagues, would help the veterans on the decline and the frightened youngsters coming up. He knew that their careers depended on their getting a hit, and if his team had a big enough lead, Alexander would groove a ball for them to hit . . . One afternoon a rookie came to bat twice and struck out. When the rookie came up for the third time, Alexander decided to encourage his career by pitching an easy ball for him to hit, and the rookie hit a double. "And from that day on," said Alexander, "I never could strike out Rogers Hornsby again."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Skouras' Part in Youth Month

By Drew Pearson

Skouras

When Charley Skouras came to the United States as a Greek immigrant boy 40 years ago, no one ever figured that some day he would become head of the largest movie theater chain in the world.

Nor did anyone ever dream that last week he would help the President of the United States dedicate a special "Youth Month Stamp"—a stamp commemorating the month of September and the drive which the theaters of America and most of the communities of America will make toward wiping out juvenile delinquency?

Charley Skouras is heading that "Youth Month" drive.

Sometimes I think many of the Americans who have become United States citizens by adoption, who know first hand what it is to live in the old world, are more appreciative of the USA than those born here who take this country for granted. Certainly this is Charley Skouras' viewpoint toward the USA.

When he first landed in New York, Skouras got a job in a Greek restaurant paying him 50 cents a day, plus meals and the privilege of sleeping on bags of coffee in the rear at night. Later he moved to St. Louis, where he worked as a bus boy. His two brothers, Spyros and George, were also in St. Louis hotels, worked hard, saved their money.

The bartender who employed Spyros made him recite "The Star Spangled Banner," from beginning to end, every morning before he began work—which is probably more than most native-born Americans can do at any time. Spyros can still recite it, all the verses, and later gave the bartender an interest in the Shaw Theater in St. Louis.

Top Movie Magnates

The Skouras brothers got into the theater business when a friend offered to sell them a descrepit St. Louis nickelodeon. They had saved $3500 and gambled it all on the then relatively new movie business. Fifteen years later, the Skouras brothers had acquired 36 theatres in Missouri, later sold out to Warner Brothers, became bankrupt in the 1929 depression, subsequently signed up to manage 550 theaters in the West.

Today Spyros dominates 20th Century-Fox. George operates a chain of theaters in the East, while Charley, the oldest brother, is president of National Theaters and Fox West Coast Theaters, operating 1500 movie houses.

I first got to know Charley Skouras when the Friendship Train was being organized. His theater managers had been asked to tell the public about the idea behind the Friendship Train, and to that end Skouras called them to Los Angeles for a conference.

"But, boss," they protested, "we're just opening with 'Forever Amber.' How can we publicize that and the Friendship Train, too?"

"Which is more important—" grunted Skouras. "'Forever Amber' or your country? 'Forever Amber' can come later.

Youth Month

Today Skouras is heading the National Committee for Youth Month, backed by the Theater Owners of America whose 10,000 movie houses will do their best to create more interest in youth activities, beginning in September.

"One trouble with most of us," says Skouras, "is that we talk too much about juvenile delinquency and not enough about juvenile achievements.

"When I go to the county fairs and see the prize cattle, chickens, hogs and all the things that the farm kids raise all by themselves, it gives me a big thrill. That's achievement. Those kids won't go wrong, because they've got pride in their work. And some of them are more self-reliant at 12 than adults three times their age.

"But kids in crowded cities have a tough time," pleads Skouras. "So we've got to provide incentives, give them a chance to want to achieve, to improve themselves.

"Most American boys are hero-worshippers. They don't want to be sideline sitters. Give them healthy outlets for their pent-up energy and they'll land on their feet.

Joiner

The joiner is a person who . . . Is eager as can be . . . To take a part in every club . . . And each fraternity . . . He wants to join the civic groups . . . Wherever they may meet . . . And proudly wear their emblems as . . . He walks along the street . . . At church and social gatherings . . . His name is on the list . . . And he would like to be in all . . . The orders that exist . . . He usually is prompt to pay . . . Whatever sums are due . . . And tries to interest others in . . . Becoming members too . . . And while some folks may criticize . . . The sort of life he spends . . . He surely helps his fellowman . . . And makes a lot of friends.

See THOMAS for THICKER HAIR!

"I'm a Thomas hair expert—I KNOW how to rid your scalp of growth-choking dandruff infection. I know, too, how to bring a pleasant surge of health-giving circulation to your sluggish scalp. I know how to check your thinning hair—how to relieve aggravating scalp itch. My knowledge and my ability to help you solve your hair problem is soundly based on The Thomas' 25 years of success in treating a half-million other persons. Only Thomas can offer you such a background of skill and ability in the field of modern baldness-preventing technique. And—odd as it seems, many persons have found that genuine, original Thomas treatment usually costs less in the long run than imitations!"

You don't have to wait to feel the stimulative, growth-promoting effects of Thomas treatment. Your scalp tingles with a feeling of renewed life and vitality with the very first Thomas treatment. And almost before you realize it, your dandruff has disappeared, and hair begins to thicken on the thin, starved areas. You'll readily understand why up to 1800 persons take Thomas treatment each day, day after day, and year after year.

Come in today for free scalp examination and advice. See for yourself how this modern, reliable Thomas method makes it easy to prevent baldness. Further delay will only lead you nearer to baldness. Let Thomas help you—remember, no charge for consultation and advice in private.

THIS WEEK THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE

Veterans Administration

and its people who promote the welfare of our millions of veterans

- The Veterans Administration . . . is an independent government agency . . . directly responsible to the President. Its scope of operation is tremendous . . . veterans and their families constitute one-third of the total population of our country. By 1952, it is estimated that veterans and their families will make up forty-three per cent of the population.

- The Veterans Administration . . . is overseeing the training of more than two million eight hundred thousand veterans . . . in schools, colleges and on-the-job. More than four billion dollars have been spent on veterans' education and training since 1944 . . . more than half of it last year.

- The Veterans Administration . . . maintains one hundred thirty million administrative records (not including insurance, which has one hundred million records). The VA handles one hundred twenty-five million pieces of mail a year . . . more than is normally handled by Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Kansas City or Seattle.

- The Veterans Administration . . . is now training more psychiatrists than all of the schools in the country. Only two per cent of doctors are qualified psychiatrists . . . while sixty per cent of the VA medical problem is in this field.

- The Veterans Administration . . . maintains thirteen branches to supervise the field operations of several hundred offices in the United States, Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands and Puerto Rico. Offices are also maintained in the Philippine Islands, although they are no longer governed by the United States, and in all parts of the world where American troops are engaged in garrison duty.

All material contained here has been obtained from the Veterans Administration and the U. S. Library of Congress.

America's eighteen and a half million veterans of all wars . . . and their families . . . make up one-third of our country's population. For their contribution to our country in times of need, they justly merit the assistance and protection of a grateful nation. The people of the Veterans Administration . . . almost twelve thousand of them here in Washington . . . provide the machinery which translates gratitude into action . . . into the finest of medical care in modern hospitals . . . into vocational training or college education . . . into the operation of the world's largest life insurance program. The VA's task is ever-increasing . . . as the families of our veterans increase. As the young men and women of World War II marry and settle down . . . as their families grow . . . new responsibilities are brought to the people of the VA . . . for not only veterans, but their families and dependents, deserve and require assistance from time to time. Such a vast operation . . . affecting so many of our citizens . . . demands most careful planning and cheerful cooperation. The VA's record is its badge of achievement . . . millions of veterans in training schools and colleges . . . over one hundred thousand veterans in hospitals . . . a GI life insurance program demanding the keeping of a hundred million records . . . the handling of tens of millions of visits by veterans to VA offices for aid and advice. The Hecht Company is most proud to salute the people of this outstanding Government agency . . . who are doing so much to help those who have fought to protect and make secure our way of life.
